Being that President Obama speaks for himself, as an American with old fashioned ideas that women should not be picked for vice president, or mention to the Negro community out there that President Bush depended on a conservative, Negro National Security Advisor (George is just so insensitive, huh?), which proves without a shadow of a doubt that President Obama is making this illusion of gender inequality so obvious? We thought this artwork would be appropriate after listening to the positive, upbeat Sarah Palin?

Or does President Obama have a point, the media is full of stereotypes that think a woman is incapable of accepting credit for success or failure? Why does Barbara Walters ask about the Russia reference, when Russia is not to be ignored in any credible comprehensive international policy, and neither is Russia the entire scope of her policy views, which the press should let emerge, and not jump at the first nano second to discredit her views? When the press does so, it discredits itself, and it discredits the entire American education system, because Congress sets foreign policy, the United States is not governed by royalty (although some act like it)?

Meanwhile, Glenn Beck is commenting on Newsweek, a magazine I feel is more involved with creating their version of the news, than real news concerning unauthorized pictures of Sarah Palin next to the American flag wearing bike shorts, which he says was an unauthorized picture? I think Newsweek is doing Sarah a great favor, by inspiring young women in America that you too, can be a conservative icon if you simply apply yourself, and that is what is scaring the David Letterman mentality out there, isn't Mr. Obama? Or will no young Americans will be inspired by Newsweek because they are going out of business, and no bail out from the Democrats will help them, and Newsweek will not be able to spin their way out of their obvious disdain, and out right hatred, for Conservative Americans, who compose the majority of the country?

Everybody was kung fu fighting.....da da da da da dat dat dat dat.....

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Do you feel lucky?

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.
c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.
d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).
f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.
g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.
h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.
j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.
l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).
p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

That's funny, when I heard her speaking on Fox News, she said that Congress was ignoring phone calls and letters, and reminded people that it is their right to come to Washington and tell their members of Congress in person that they do not want them voting yes for the bill?

Must have been some kind of typing error on her website, because I understood her perfectly?

Oh, so the Democrats in Congress want to send a message to America that they are not welcome to come see them in buildings that tax payers pay for?

What happened to all the calls for citizen involvement in Washington?

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

WE are still in Japan and Germany 70 years after we beat the living shit out of them.... Total and unconditional surrender.

Still being there is hardly a defining point of winning.

But leaving is up to the Generals.

Sometimes it is not possible to keep an existing bridge in operation, and even with the same local population traffic may become too much for a roadway,
I live near such a road, and there are no plans to build a parallel road or widen the existing one.

There are other advances in social engineering possible than socialism, bigger government and taxation, times have changed, we don't need as many shovels in the ground or men driving plows.

And too much planning is being done on the basis of past history, superstition, old wives tales and gossip.

There can be a better world ahead, watch for my offer of membership in a new political party. :-)

I just came across an used Radio Shack DX-394 receiver.

Is it worth getting?

What mods are available?

Is there a better (newer) receiver in the same price range that one should look at?

Thanks

I have looked through all the garbage you gave us, lying sack of Republican pig shit. And _SURPRISE_, _SURPRISE_, SURPRISE : That statement that you claim Obama has made many times cannot be found anywhere in the right winged garbage you have cited. I find words from Obama in a speech, but not those words. And the reason the statement can't be found is because he never made it, lying pig

3868. How to deal with thug unions holding "prayer vigils" outside your house

The Persuasion of Power

The Glenn Beck show mentioned that Andy Stern said "if the power of persuasion does not work, we will use the persuasion of power"? Is that what greedy communists do? So does a prayer vigil, like the one in 2007 validate the accusation that unions and their political action groups act like thugs? Or does the persuasion of power, represented by false numbers on the US Government 18 million dollar web site, which apparently is not paying for fact checking, for stimulus tax money spent the persuasion of power? So who is comparing how the money was allocated (was that money allocated to imaginary people and congressional districts?) and how it is spent? Using a fine tooth comb, or simply being negligent in your job?

And here is the problem with this public relation web site, www.recovery.gov. 25 different agencies are inputting data into the system, apparently with no auditing? So why the rush for the public relation web site without verifying the numbers unless you really don't have faith in the program in the first place? Why wasn't this created and tested before the money was spent? So a lot of this are ad hoc efforts to further political actions, and perhaps further political spending in the future? Does that alarm you, if they are reporting imaginary congressional districts, are they issuing checks to imaginary projects? Given the past record of government credit card records, that is not a partisan question, but one of common sense? (info taken from http://money.cnn.com/2009/03/19/news/economy/recovery_website.htm)

And should accounting and auditing debacles distract us from the more important questions, who designed the stimulus spending bills and packages without good auditing trails in the first place? Getting back to Joe Lieberman, do you know what you do when people are making noise outside your house all night? Other than burning bales of hay (might not work in a metro area)? Put a copy of Joel Osteen's sermon(s) in the DVD player, with the stereo jacks hooked up to your home stereo, and put a speaker outside. Turn up the volume so they can enjoy the sermon (with out violating noise regulations). Either that or simply put on the local radio gospel station?

One day, I met a truck driver at lunch time. He was recognized in the company as having driven over not just one million safe miles without an accident, but was one of the top ten industry safest drivers. He was a humble, hulk of a black man, a Negro. And he was obviously conservative? This is what he said, he said, "retirement is a man made invention, God did not invent retirement". That is the persuasion of power.

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

Do you feel lucky?

information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not

enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Now that Vancouver has won the chance to host the 2010 Winter Olympics, these are some questions people from all over the world are asking.

Believe it or not these questions about Canada were posted on an International Tourism Website.

Obviously the answers are a joke; but the dumbass questions were really asked!

Q: I have never seen it warm on Canadian TV, so how do the plants grow? ( England )
A. We import all plants fully grown and then just sit around and watch them die.

Q: Will I be able to see Polar Bears in the street? ( USA )
A: Depends on how much you've been drinking.

Q: I want to walk from Vancouver to Toronto - can I follow the Railroad tracks? ( Sweden )
A: Sure, it's only Four thousand miles, take lots of water.

Q: Is it safe to run around in the bushes in Canada ? ( Sweden )
A: So it's true what they say about Swedes.

Q: Are there any ATM's (cash machines) in Canada ? Can you send me a list of them in Toronto , Vancouver , Edmonton and Halifax ? ( England )
A: No, but you'd better bring a few extra furs for trading purposes.

Q: Can you give me some information about hippo racing in Canada ? ( USA )
A: A-fri-ca is the big triangle shaped continent south ofEurope Ca-na-da is that big country to your North...oh forget it. Sure, the hippo racing is every Tuesday night in Calgary Come naked.

Q: Which direction is North in Canada ? ( USA )
A: Face south and then turn 180 degrees Contact us when you get here and we'll send the rest of the directions.

Q: Can I bring cutlery into Canada ? ( England )
A: Why? Just use your fingers like we do.

Q: Can you send me the Vienna Boys' Choir schedule? ( USA )
A: Aus-t ri-a is that quaint little country bordering Ger-man-y, which is...oh forget it. Sure, the Vienna Boys Choir plays every Tuesday night in Vancouver and inCalgary , straight after the hippo races. Come naked.

Q: Do you have perfume in Canada ? ( Germany )
A: No, WE don't stink.

Q: I have developed a new product that is the fountain of youth. Where can I sell it in Canada ? ( USA )
A: Anywhere significant numbers of Americans gather.

Q: Can you tell me the regions in British Columbia where the female population is smaller than the male population? ( Italy )
A: Yes, gay nightclubs.

Q: Do you celebrate Thanksgiving in Canada ? ( USA )
A: Only at Thanksgiving.

Q: Are there supermarkets in Toronto and is milk available all year round? ( Germany )
A: No, we are a peaceful civilization of Vegan hunter/gathers. Milk is illegal.

Q: I have a question about a famous animal in Canada , but I forget its name. It's a kind of big horse with horns. ( USA )
A: It's called a Moose. They are tall and very violent, eating the brains of anyone walking close to them. You can scare them off by spraying yourself with human urine before you go out walking.

Q: Will I be able to speak English most places I go? ( USA )
A: Yes, but you will have to learn it first.

It's interesting, the number of people who come out of the woodwork with 'I was there' stories, expecting blanket acceptance of testimonials in defense of John FF Kerry.

Especially, in light of the number of people who come out of the woodwork with blanket dismissals of 'I was there' testimonials in defense of George W. Bush.

Here's the difference. Even the Navy questioned the after-action reports Kerry amended in order to qualify for his Purple Hearts. His commanding officers questioned their veracity. His medical officer questioned their veracity. His crew questioned their veracity.

Full service records for Kerry have not been released by the Navy.

But the National Guard had only honorable recommendations of George W. Bush. And his commanding officer directly stated his support and his commendation for Bush. His flight instructors said he was the best F-102 pilot they'd ever had.

Full service records for G. W. Bush have been released by the National Guard and the Air Force Reserve.

In other words, the same sources that are dismissed for the condemnation of G. W. Bush are the ones cited in defense of John Kerry.

Hmmmmmmmmm.......

Really? I ask for no "acceptance" of any thing I say because I was there.

But the fact remains, I was there.

No, they did not.

Of course you won't come up with a source, as there are none.

>His

Dr. Louis Letson was not present when the wound occured. He did testify to that fact that there WAS a wound, and that he TREATED it.

>His crew questioned their veracity.

A bald-faced false hood. No one on his crew who was present for ANY of the incidents for which he received an award, has questioned his veracity -- to the contrary, they back up what he said happened.

You can not find a single instance of any of his crew, present when those incidents occured, who have questioned his veracity.

Another source we will never see.

> Full service records for Kerry have not been released by the Navy.

Navy records are available for the asking -- just file a FOIA.

You posted a number of falsehoods.

You have provided no sources, not will you, as there aren't any.

The bit about Kerry's crew was especially laughable.

"FULL service records have been released..." ?

It seems to be universally accepted by ALL concerned that the last portion of his tour and where he served it is STILL in question. They claim either that the records were "lost" or that "nobody can remember". All concerned agree that he did not take his flight physical, again for reasons unknown. If "he was the best F-102 pilot they'd ever had", don't you think a little more effort would have been expended to get him back in the cockpit?

And really now, you quote his commanding officer and flight instructor's gushing praise for W? As Pappy Bush was either the sitting President, head of the CIA or at least some high muckety-muck in government at the time, do you REALLY think these fine gentlemen would commit career suicide by saying anything but the very best of W? Sorry, Maus, it's the age-old story of no one wanting to tell the Emperor he's not wearing any clothes.

How naive (or devious) of you.

Hmmmmmm....?

Unless you consider two things. 1) F-102 was being retired, 2) training in an new aircraft would have of greater duration than the remainder of his term of service.

And there we have the point of my original comment: That you dismiss the very source types defending Bush that you endorse defending Kerry.

Interesting, indeed.

3885. Mike Starling's FM-HD power increase, NPR, and LPFMs

I find it amusing that Mike "The Wimp and Blimp" Starling's original FM-HD power calculator only allowed a few FM-HD stations to go to -14db, and most no power increase at all, but the new calculator allows almost all to go -10db:

http://www.nprlabs.org/publications/distribution/interimIBOCpowerallowance/index2.php

Yea, Mike, your original calculations were totally bogus. More like you caved to iBiquity, or was threatened termination by NPR. Mike, you are a "wimp and a blimp". Maybe, Mike, you were give stock options in iBiquity, along with the rest of the radio execs?

"NPR's war on Low Power FM"

"NPR opposes proposals to strengthen rules allowing LPFMs to obtain channel interference waivers when an encroaching full power station arrives on the scene. And the broadcaster decidedly dislikes measures that would require new full power signals to offer technical and even financial help to an LPFM that they've suddenly squatted on (or squatted next to). This is a serious issue, because over the last decade the NPR service has expanded from 635 to 800 affiliated stations. Public radio's stance on this puts it at odds with practically every media reform group in the country."

http://tinyurl.com/ybgpt9p

"Media Access Project"

"With respect to MM Docket No. 99-325, Mr. Tridish and Ms. Desai urged the Commission to deny the request for a blanket power increase. The parties noted that testing thus far has failed to take into account the impact on LPFMs. The parties also noted the impact of self-interference to the analog signals. Additionally, Mr. Tridish and Ms. Desai noted the adoption of digital radio is minimal and a power increase could negatively impact the large number of radio listeners that still rely on the analog signal."

http://tinyurl.com/ygcbedh

Could it also be, Mike, NPR's war on LPFMs, where your calculations didn't take into account the affects on LPFMs? Mike, I have lost all respect to NPR Labs, and you, my friend, are a scoundrel, along with the rest of the iBiquity hoodlums. Yup, and I've got it all on my blog, for those recent FCC visitors - LOL!

"No End in Sight in IBOC Interference Dispute Between Two AMs"

"Midwest Television, licensee of KFMB(AM), a Class B in San Diego, has submitted a second interference complaint to the commission about Kiertron, licensee of KBRT(AM), a Class D in Avalon, Calif., and has asked the agency to suspend KBRT's authority to transmit in digital... Midwest says it's receiving interference complaints from listeners and asked Kiertron to take part in more joint testing, but says Kiertron won't, believing further testing isn't needed... Kiertron says the earlier FCC ruling is not final and it has a pending request that the earlier decision be reconsidered; it finds Midwest's proposed remedy drastic. Showing that it is cooperating, Kiertron says it has reduced its IBOC power a full 75% of authorized power, or 6 dB."

http://radioworld.com/article/86140

"Re: Rochester Station Says IBOC Interferes"

"WYSL has filed FIVE separate pleadings including two detailed interference studies, over a period of 19 weeks encompassing a variety of local weather conditions, in all three antenna modes and powers, reply pleadings to two CBS responses (notably thin on data and highly implausible) including scores of field readings and audio recordings on CD. All of WYSL's data is supported by engineering statements from TWO unimpeachable professional radio engineering firms representing many decades of experience, all submitted UNDER OATH. One of these engineers is renowned as an experienced researcher in the development of terrestrial digital radio. All in all, including exhibits, over 100 pages of text and measurement data were filed with the Enforcement Bureau with copies to the Mass Media Bureau. The FCC's response to this mountain of persuasive data? They simply ignored it." Bob Savage, CEO, WYSL

http://tinyurl.com/cdybql

And, Mike suggested using the same interference complaint procedures used for AM-HD. The FCC will do nothing to mitigate interference complaints.

The Persuasion of Power

Revised 11/18/2009

You know what? It is none of the bankrupt business of the State of California to tell people how many watts their tv's use. They already want to dig in our trash, bug our house, bug our phones, and watch our bank accounts? What's next, hair dryers, air conditioners, lights on at night time (safety)? Just how many people in California can afford to buy these things? A plasma tv only uses 330 watts per hour? Do you have any idea what web site servers use, or people that have to do any kind of video editing of their family cameras, or simply play a video game, or a pc flight simulator? So you bust your tail end all year, so you can save up money to use electricity the way you want to, and these stoned out liberals think they are saving the planet? OMG! Just who do you think you are fooling?

The Glenn Beck show mentioned that Andy Stern said "if the power of persuasion does not work, we will use the persuasion of power"? Is that what greedy communists do? So does a prayer vigil, like the one in 2007 validate the accusation that unions and their political action groups act like thugs? Or does the persuasion of power, represented by false numbers on the US Government 18 million dollar web site, which apparently is not paying for fact checking, for stimulus tax money spent the persuasion of power? So who is comparing how the money was allocated (was that money allocated to imaginary people and congressional districts?) and how it is spent? Using a fine tooth comb, or simply being negligent in your job?

And here is the problem with this public relation web site, www.recovery.gov. 25 different agencies are inputting data into the system, apparently with no auditing? So why the rush for the public relation web site without verifying the numbers unless you really don't have faith in the program in the first place? Why wasn't this created and tested before the money was spent? So a lot of this are ad hoc efforts to further political actions, and perhaps further political spending in the future? Does that alarm you, if they are reporting imaginary congressional districts, are they issuing checks to imaginary projects?
Given the past record of government credit card records, that is not a partisan question, but one of common sense? (info taken from http://money.cnn.com/2009/03/19/news/economy/recovery_website.htm)

And should accounting and auditing debacles distract us from the more important questions, who designed the stimulus spending bills and

packages without good auditing trails in the first place? Getting back to Joe Lieberman, do you know what you do when people are making noise outside your house all night? Other than burning bales of hay (might not work in a metro area)? Put a copy of Joel Osteen's sermon(s) in the DVD player, with the stereo jacks hooked up to your home stereo, and put a speaker outside.
Turn up the volume so they can enjoy the sermon (with out violating noise regulations). Either that or simply put on the local radio gospel station? You would be surprised how many delinquent teen agers disappear because they loose their interest in watching others drink beer?

One day, I met a truck driver at lunch time. He was recognized in the company as having driven over not just one million safe miles without an accident, but was one of the top ten industry safest drivers. He was a humble, hulk of a black man, a Negro. And he was obviously conservative? This is what he said, he said, "retirement is a man made invention, God did not invent retirement".

That is the persuasion of power.

Being that this is the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world,

You've got to ask yourself one question....

Do you feel lucky?

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.
d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.
e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.
g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.
h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.
i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.
k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.
l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

He's been in campaign mode for a while now, huh?

LOL.

Palin or Beck? Vice President Beck? But that would put him in charge of the Senate, and foreign policy in certain situations?

OMG! Kommie Krooks in Kongress would have as much power as Kermit the Frog?

Reading the 2000 page health care bill out loud will take approximately 130 hours? Will the computer do it, or will we get brilliant commentary by Rep. Boehner?

Change you can believe in?

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author,

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

When you shut Iran up, there will be no complaints from Palestine?
Israel has ceded land, and in return, got Iranian missiles and bombs thrown at it? They could be richer than their elders wildest dreams if they stopped thinking about their imaginary inheritence and create their own wealth instead?

Well what gosh darn golly gee good is talking about your grand fathers gonna do, if you can't do what they did, and create your own wealth?

Stop making excuses and blaming it on God?

Should a FAILED STATE like Kalifornia be allowed a congressional

Should a state - which federal estimates say has half of all illegal apportionment methods let those wetbacks each count as much as a

I prefer Yaesu myself. I have an FRG7700 and an FRG8800, both not having been used for quite some years now. My daily listener is a Sony ICF-SW7600, a very nice portable. The only Realistic/Radio Shack unit I have is a scanner, a 400 Channel Pro2005.

The DX394 is a nice looking beast but it has gained a poor reputation because of design deficiencies that were, to some extent, addressed in the DX394b.

The site listed below has a number of modifications that might just bring the 394 up to speed. If you're a tinkerer, handy with a soldering iron and up to speed with SMDs, go for it.

http://www.monitor.co.uk/radio-mods/dx-394/dx-394.htm

Some owner opinions are here;

http://www.eham.net/reviews/detail/2108

The dx394 even has its own fan club. Expect some biased opinions here.

http://groups.yahoo.com/group/RADIOSHACKDX394/

As well as a lack of ability to control a tape recorder, other features missing from this receiver include passband tuning, AM synchronous modes, bandwidth selection, AGC options, memory scanning and computer control. The receiver is clearly focused on the broadcast listener. The meter buttons and the preset band limits for tuning within the international broadcast bands show the intended purpose of this radio. Given that a lot of the major broadcasters are giving up on shortwave, you may want to be scouring the utility and amateur bands so this receiver might be a bit limited for that purpose.

At the right price, I would buy one as it would suit me for use as a bedside radio but little beyond that.

Hope this helps

Excellent. We are not all Amerikans who claim everything they could ever do is bad like a Ron Paul does, as serves no just purpose but to mindlessly escape a Mr. Bush or Cheney for high treason. As out-laid in the Constitution a real Patriot holds proud. Ideologues like Ron Paul are mostly corporate stooges puppetted to let your family die murder victims without effectively run health insurance, if they can get off on the sadistic takes leaving you undefended by sound maths that make sense, like good laws. Free market to a libertarian, is this lawless market where near everyone is victim to undressed banker frauds, run by military dictatorships that enslave everyone for being useless to the real struggles against tyranny. Do Ron Paul fans, support the arrest of those responsible for 911 by following the crime scene leads at the real mass murder scenes? Do Ron Paul fans acknowledge the mass murders in Iraq were crimes against our innocent Humanity? How about earmarks as continuing thefts against all Americans? Like; that the banks don't cover

Witnesses for the Prosection

/ / A Senior Military Officer: He said an MP told him that authorities considered the man to be a suspect in the shootings after having overheard the man say he was with the shooter. \ \ This sounds as could be, only after the fact, for where he is, is 2.5 miles away from the crime scene speaking to MPs (- er or as told someone then ran.?) And if not, then it was established before the act, with the suspect fleeing more than 2.5 miles - as implausible unless he runs like, faster than a speeding train, and more scared of rescue, than the fear of magic bullets travelling miles still wizzing. 2.5 MILES.

A Senior Military Officer, or MP would not make THAT up. And SURPRISE! the actual "Suspects" were escaped by Bushites wearing suits driving in a Crown Royal. Not Military Police in 40 cars who apparently were ordered to wait for back up (stuck out in the middle of the range) and wait for cleverer arresting actors. Yet, the Obamanoids have announced only one single suspect will only be tried top secretly among Bushite Cop Killers, without a chance to speak fairly in OUR Courts of Justice. ("Judge" Mattis was/is all into ordering grunts to specifically murder all women and children at wedding parties for example, to get killed Marines rightly later for HUGE cash profit along with his hansome Title of "Judge", without knowing a damn thing about Law School. - or like "Judge" John Head, who ruled 'it is a crime to refuse a criminal order' ...[yeah if you were a traitor /criminal thieving from America you would be but what do i know right?]) Will Americans defend Justice???? as..the MPs involved being witnesses that the Obamanoids, (like Rumsfeld and the now likely dead bushite who set the thermate in tower seven are for example) will have to murder? IF it was a conspiracy of some sort to escape the cuprits, as it does appear: with the media silence on the other suspect's Olympic running skils, AND with the denial of real Justice against the officially accused. We can be sure these, bushite mass murderers will kill any and all dumfuk grunters without a second thought. Rumsfeld couldn't chance it, nor can they. .. Or, as the shooters not, but now, multi millioniare lawless mercenaries sounding good to you as the dying for stolen profit Zionist Neocon Peenacker victims? Bushites killing Bushites for stolen nickels? Does dying America care? We know the lawless bushite don't care for nothing about true Liberty, as the pursuit of Happiness for any or all others, 911 THE example, but do YOU my friends, do YOU? Demand Justice, or fuk you and die rightly for the Neocon's further plunder. For the "Judges" have ruled already. Hi!

"A Senior Military Officer, or MP would not make THAT up." (unless the accuser is your typical evil bushite nazi whore who spews any guy that has dark hair and booksmarts is visavee, an auto-guilty without puhlic trial innocent demonized Arab Muslim)

And please, forward this post, I'm growing weary, hungry, and thinking of quiting this no pay, dead

US wars in Iraq and Afghanistan are traitorous, un-American, and cowardly
http://www.examiner.com/x-18425-LA-County-Nonpartisan-Examiner~y2009m9d16-US-wars-in-Iraq-and-Afghanistan-are-traitorous-cowardly-and-unAmerican

Justice to the war criminals of indiscriminate warfare would better serve ourselves to halt for our safety.
The bushmob did 911.

1. The ISI's General, Mahmoud Ahmad funded 911's Atta

2. We have video of iron flowing like water from the towers

"U.S. admits it has no case against teen held at Guantanamo"

Then arrest, try, and execute the bushite grunters responsible for the torture and kidnapping, that does still, warrant death under American law ushered by Reagan. Then, hunt the "American" who believes these rights are not your own to defend to the death.
Freedom for all.

Is this America? A place where 'Men' live?

US officer "upset" innocent Iraqi SUSPECTS taken alive
http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/main.jhtml?xml=/news/2007/03/14/wsold...
(imagine these bushite grunters "Policing" American cities)

/ / A US military officer sounded "pretty mad and upset" that a group of soldiers had taken suspected Iraqi insurgents alive during a raid in which they had been told to kill all military-aged males \ \ages 10-55 for ALL males(no ID required), which turned out to be all the little girls too, because it was claimed by the grunters who deserve Public death sentences as mass murderers warring Humanity thieving to escape PNAC as lawless godless disciples of the evil antichrist, 'Arab males could be wearing dresses'. A popular Zionist tactic, as in Lebanon, where Anyone (like You my friend) in a house could be bombed because, 'they could have had rocket launchers in their basement'. Mr. Pantano shot two unarmed kids in the back more than fifty times each, then told us that is the best friendship he and Mattis can extend to anyone on the Planet, and currently is a psycho multi-millionaire best selling author funding more "popular" Zionist causes as you read this. The Haditha child killers for example are set free to roam the streets of New York City by "America" for OPENLY admitting they murdered little kids on purpose - no accident as officially, FoxNews' "Heroes". Why?
The Haditha child killers, Demon Sattler had ordered to murder every man, woman, and child in Fallujah, and they did - proudly, as CNN's "Heroes". In fact, I remember seeing FoxNews cover that some bodies in Fallujah were cut up into little pieces to set some threat against all of Humanity apparently - it's US six billion plus innocent folks, against a hundred or so Repuglicons with a few Demonrats who command the mindless grunting savages to spew they don't care for nothing, included naturally, that Bush and the Peenackers are escaping for mass murder against America on 911 - and guess what? America is still losing. Do YOU care?

Armed for Murder Bushite Grunting Policer "I don't care"

Note: un-arrested traitor Mr. Bush, who officially closed 911 Police investigations, is the for real Antichrist enemy of all God's 'great' Creation. Why? No evidence, person innocent.

Yeah Way Man

U.S. Resigns over Afghan War

"I have lost understanding of and confidence in the strategic purposes of the United States' presence in Afghanistan"

It's to rob America with pushing dope, raping women, and dying as evil for a pipeline to benefit Enron - all the while escaping the Neocon Peenackers for high treason on 911. America is a nation of Cowards.

"Emergency! Congress Debates Burying the Goldstone Report!"

THIS IS TREASON. I ask, if the Bushite McCainiac can't argue a single fact incorrect of the deliberate mass murder of innocent Christians, being as godless lawless Zionists, shouldn't they be publicly trialed for death, as the glory of defending the righteousness of True American freedom?

Armed for Murder Bushite Grunting Policer "I don't care"

Scahill: Obama may be afraid of Blackwater http://rawstory.com/2009/11/scahill-obama-afraid-blackwater/

/ / You know who guards members of Congress? Blackwater. They have half a billion dollars in contracts in Afghanistan right now. CIA, State Department, Defense Department. Why is President Obama keeping these guys on the payroll? \ \

Why are Americans allowing this in silence for Justice? THE BUSHITES, responsible for escaping the Peenackers for the crimes of 911. The pimps of child prostitutes. The vermins that randomly shoot down Peoples for fun in what they describe as "turkey shoots". The demon fuks that randomly torture innocent people to death. The terrorists that blow up girls schools, while claiming that, 'no no no, that's a crime the Taliban would do to their own kids, instead of gunning down an antichrist enemy of Allah.' The Taliban, who fought to the death to defend woman's rights, and had a girl's school program instituted for Afghanistan.

I say we hunt each and every last Bushite demon enemy down for war crimes prosecutions, with public trials, and glorious executions along with the Neocon Peenackers. Just think of all the innocent children's lives we would save. Don't care for any of the murder victims of 911? Just in this for all you can lie, cheat and steal from your Humanity and God too? I HATE the bushite, I really really do. Nothing better than to see them dead, those who speak nothing for the defense of the 911 victims, while murdering more of us as 'lawless' TERRORIST enemies of everyone. Die bushite die.

Yeah... you know, the "suicides" are HUGE. So big, that if I told you the truth, you would more likely doubt my quoting of military brass quoted on ABC news I think it was.. Anyway, something like 300 a month in total..

While FoxNews is somewhere around one or two still. Who cares for the facts, when Hannity and Rush are paid millions to lie dead straight faced. See, when a grunt "suicides", or lives all the way to the hospital but croaks just before the left turn to the morgue, Rumsfeld and the Neocons score near $300,000. (didn't die in combat) Big money when you consider the value of an American life to the Neocons responsible for the treasons of mass murder on 911. Incidentally, they 'train' the Air-Force to pretend the grunt isn't dead when he's in several missing pieces, for, it's what the proud and brave would naturally do?, to make it like the innocent Peoples were not gaining ground over the lawless murderous thieves and rapists. I swear to Allah, I've heard a soldier who flies one of the medi-copters say such things directly. Make you proud dying for a lawless cause to escape the Peenacker?

"Haji Girl" or as in Iraq, willingly pimping toddlers into slavery for $300 while stealing the emergency water supplies from the dying, or as in Afghanistan, killing everybody in entire towns, every man, woman, and infant, (10th Mountian) to then run the dope for the CIA, to poison American school districts with

THE NEW WORLD ORDER FOR THE GOOD OF HUMANITY

Let's get Ron "I Is Bad" Paul, and his pack of lying cons to give up the public services they fight to your death to deny ourselves how about? How about it Ron? Actually I already can guess what he would say. Like what he says about the near trillions of dollars STOLEN through Earmarking. 'They, the government (you and me and everyone in between) is all bad as complete failures, so naturally, I don't want to exercise Constitutional laws against war criminal traitors. Then, so why shouldn't I too, steal from America as a naked thief hiding in the darkness?'

Ron "I Is Bad" Paul will refuse these facts, among many others, selling out for tyranny, to escape Zionist Neocon Peenackers who planned 911 before hand. MSNBC. Bush, Cheney, Rumsfeld, Condi, and so on as the evidence (near never mentioned by the NWOer crowd as significant) dictates. Instead, it is that popular divisory tactic so popular with the NWOer mind controlled bigoted twits 'No it's those liberals, or socialists, greens, lefties, loving gay folks, feminists, welfare parents, Mexicans, black peoples, or someone old and near powerless who can't defend themselves from something only stupid they said 30 something years ago, or Michael Jackson fans of grooving words and upbeat tempos, EVERYBODY else but a, goose stepping right winging mindless corporate shill for furthering corruption, who cares not for respecting the rights of others by real Justice, fair play, respect. Thus is why the NWOers like blaming the CFR, Builderberg, Illuminati, and so on, without building a possible case for public warrants as impossible without establishing SOMEONE'S guilt. Like a, Condi, or Rumsfeld. The NWOers are making escape for criminals of, THEIR New World Order. The NWOers are 'in' with Kissinger and Co.. Claiming powerlessness to stop unheard of war criminals. Like George Walker Bush refusing to pursue the 911 culprits as himself closing investigations immediately. Like 1441. Or even the 661 Committee.

The bankers do not cover our loans. Ron Paul Sucks. The reason Life is dishonored by all Americans, is because all this fancy science and philosophy, or Justice as Freedom, makes them all into the big evil dying tyrannies they actually is truthfully. They would rather die yourself as innocent victim for not being fairly spoken of, than work themselves to the task, of demanding this speech on the front page of every major American city, as a good thing for all to contemplate freely. Eventually.

ï¿½It is permissible to kill the Righteous among non-Jews

Righteous?

No, for that would be ungodly satanic murder. I would ask every Jew in this world to hunt down Rabbi Yitzhak

A rightful death. Why should all Humanity be silent

Remember: all a private Bank does is take our money for loans they don't cover, while bribing Repuglicon and Demonrats alike to have us pay-out even more religiously because they ares a hurtin'.
Where then did our money go lost 'mysteriously' into their personal private trillion dollar accounts - out of a poof of this Ninja smoke?
This is a fraud case of epic proportions, costing Honorable Police Man Pensions, and all America's Elderly. These corporate war experts on censorship for murder are going to deny all of EVERY American the simple score to allow US to decide for ourselves. How about You? Big loser crime victim to bankster verbage, or winner of liberty in the New Twenty First Century? Either read a small fonted, 1900 page (no rules) "Derivative", or know, they don't cover our loans, we do. They sold off our risks without a care for the growing hardships. The bail-outs were a trillion dollars crime resting on the frauds of what is simply termed America's 'loss'.
Extortion is against the Law in America. Let's start there.. back in Oct 2008. Either we pay them without question, or come Monday morning, they would run the country into the ground. JP Morgan had more than a trillion dollars in capital, through out the entire so labeled "Crisis". At a hundred to one, we could have simply borrowed, as continuing dumbfox, as much as a hundred trillion from JP at low interest, other than give out an estimated 25 trillion dollars to whoever for nothing back. Absolutely nothing asked.
Trillions for Ziltch. Only "Hope". The ol', "Give Free to the Banker thoughtless buildings are, as the center structures at every major American City of purposeless sacrifice given to the, 'no rules' free marketeers who don't pay our dire costs, but bill us for credit they took.., not the other way around silly. Treasury. Who needs

Video: US House rejects Goldstone report

Rep Ros Lehtinen and Rep Berman Take on God with DEMON TREASON

http://www.uruknet.org.uk/index.php?p=m59643&hd=&size=1&l=e

"Whereas the mandate of the `fact-finding mission? makes no mention of the relentless rocket and mortar attacks, "

Demand Public Trial on these two Nazi heads for death. These were the most serious of war crime offenses ever recorded. Now, it's true, Hammas is a Zionist funded entity, regardless, the arranged cease-fire was broken by self admitting Nazi child killer Godless Israeli.

Israeli Government Contradicts its Own Self-Defense Argument
http://mwcnews.net/content/view/33738/26/

A fact is a fact, and those innocent Christian children targeted officially as mass murder victims, are dead now by America's stolen will. Forsaken by the evil ungodly demon contempt of Rep Ros Lehtinen and Rep Berman. ..Can't no one tell if they are Repuglicons or Demonrats? from who's state that "elected" them? Never heard of them either stumping for the murder of innocent Christians? Children? They hide as demon enemies of a civilizing society, to advocate more mass murder against God and Humanity. Public trial for death as traitors the truth demands.
And we demand it to-day.

"it is not evidence that Hamas forced civilians to remain in their homes in order to act as human shields."

See? The objective of Demonic Zionist enemies of God and Man were to murder innocent Peoples hiding in their homes. A. Cooper on CNN covered that Nazi Israeli were traveling about ten miles an hour in the air, killing everyone, everywhere with war crime weaponry for hours, hiding in our meager homes, without so much as a sling-shot to down what almost looked to be a blimp in the blurred back ground shot traveling without fear, fifty feet up.
No shit. Youtube pulled the video if that isn't enough for you. Pulled like of Israelis who claimed the Nazi State was purposefully murdering Jews to make it all look good for prime-time, for; the technology exists to shoot down tin can rockets that travel 22 miles, to leave a 12 inch scratch in the pavement. Though, the tin can rockets do/did kill Jews - likely those who religiously appose tyranny if we looked I'm sure. But who cares for the right of innocent Children victims? Again, that Israeli Nazi admit to targeting for mass murder. ADMIT. America is a nation of cowardly evil liars dying from Zionist contempt. God awful.
They STEAL innocent God Loving Peoples Homes there don't you know?

They kidnap, torture, and murder the innocent, openly,
as the ungodly war criminal terrorist enemies of everybody.

While, a bushite says he don't care, and Americans are shown only TV proud to die that way for lawless tyranny..

More than a million American homes have been thieved, by TV American's, silenced voices against indisputable war crimes, and mercury in Vaccines. Trillions are being paid to Banksters who never covered the initial loans, trillions that Americans will continue to pay from some time until Justice is called for fairly to all concerned rightly. However, a bushite says he don't care, and Americans are shown only proud to die that way for lawless tyranny.. It's so easy as they told themselves quietly without a word for caring where they are as taken. CNN, CBC, FoxNews and the rest know the bushmob did 911 because I've told them so. They obviously don't care. NYC poisoned. Dead Cops and Firefighters with Afghanistan and Iraq made lawless as targeted for robbery, rape, and mass murder. Israeli murdering innocent kids as openly heniously evil beyond description, made pleasant and friendly as Alie. They obviously don't care.

Alex Jones, "Liberals don't like Bush."for mass murdering Humanity as never elected demon enemy of God he means?

Mr. Bush, Cheney, Rumsfeld, Rice, and Tenant knowingly conned Congress and the TV viewers to get in and murder millions in Iraq for more stolen capital gains. Just as they planned to do before hand. Note: hospital in Germany counted 50,000 dead grunts years ago. And they would know. There is no reason to bomb Iraq with complete 100% access to go wherever we please, without delay. Bombing more than a million innocent souls only lowers the ability to move freely about. Teen soldiers have/are dying for continuing tyranny to America. War criminals.

http://ukraineplague.blogspot.com/

/ / He is not worried because he heard that the Ministry of Health has taken a somewhat unusual step. "They sprayed the city," he explained, "with the necessary products." \ \

This is a serious crime for National Governments - Interpol?
Asian-African-Union?, or, how about a, everyone but the war mongering censors of Justice in international Prime-Time, step forward beyond the lights... Come here for a sec..
This a, spraying with/for viral contaminates, like with molecular by-products from poisonous vectors that are more than a line on a chalkboard as fully expressed, likely with military aircraft, would definitely make us sicker especially with the Barium, or even die out rightly. Not good. Not science. Not Faith. Name the valid science of molecular virology recently discovered here, and we'll back off, till then, there is no such scientific basis of understanding in this Universe, to spray the constituents of viral particulates with ground up pig/monkey livers, willy-nilly all over the places as a possibly 'known' health benefit with toxic Barium. The electron microscope was invented somewhere in the forties, where when we discovered, inside the Cell, was a universe unto itself, not made linear. It's like little trucks, and factories, and shipping channels, vast array of NOT UNDERSTOOD surreal communications, like a... wow have you guys ever heard of how DNA is like a blue print for like, thousands of molecular machines - some of which, run near 250,000 rpm, have four gears, including a reverse? See? how likely is it that the hugely inefficient Hummer with whale dick leathered Captain seats, just happens by fluke to be seated by a guy with a enormously near impossible stick shift, with every essential engine part lifelessly(?) not knowing any purpose, but for the mysteriously elusive unplanned sp*rk pl*g... Not so miracular appeared in all it's wasted tangents? Now, that would be allot of trial by 1X48+ try,try,try,try..(ect.) failure.. (?) Oh well, back to the black board. (Darwin, incredibly, foresaw the possibility, as writes of such in Origin of the Species.) Then along came Steven Behe, who brought us closer with his explanation of, Irreducible Complexity. Of which, strangely, many of those who obviously can't comprehend the significance, while ridiculing ourselves out loudly as hypnosters, frantic in fear of the great big universe somehow, are sometimes, unfortunately, detrimentally controlling our children's furthering study. Example: Monsanto is actually stationed as mentors to University grads, even with me as Earth's most prolific writer of recently excepted Scientific Histrionics. Horizontal gene transfer has shown us, that when for example, you take the deadly, "Cauliflower Mosaic Virus", render it corporately "harmless" with your magical voodoo nonsense, as becoming the tool for muti dimensional vectoring to mutate potatoes with a poisonous pesticide, as our "improved" genetics (pay them without choice for the service thank you very much for having no rights to speak of - we've now patented the Species.. (duh, whatsa peeridiotic table)) what happens? Well, the fast as light sometimes Cauliflower Mosaic Virus comes to try killing you for being a proudly ignorant blind corporate product for more profitable deaths to benefit a traitor like Rumsfeld. Life is of a Science corporate America does not want you to pursue as Yourself for the loss to scammed revenues. People, We will suffer if we don't demand ourselves the leadership in Science we require. The science we know of Genetics teaches, we shouldn't allow this unbounded area go undefended by the lunatic fringe made popular as highest bidders on your commercial news channels, patenting Life with poisonous deaths as if such contempt wouldn't show. Mass Murder. Or, by Flu vaccines for a virus that is impossible to guess what specific strain is going to kill next

- yet - the WHO is able to get that part right.. Or that ant-acids cause acid reflux, or as anti depressants make everyone clinically depressed? Wondering why? Well you should have had, if corporate, for private profit public news entries of informative science did tell of our findings to honorably defend ourselves. They don't. Proof: Leiberman supports a 'death camp' for innocent healthy American children in NYC to die murdered at. We, as Humanity, are not being fairly represented I feel, and we want to improve our conditions by hosting the NEW! Coast to Coast Radio Shows. Where Justice for 911 will be pursued for the interests of all innocent people still left unawares.
So, in closing: the science does show, through what we gathered to know, we have yet still, a ways to go, just in understanding,
The Way of Moe.

The Entire Point of a Public Option

http://www.democraticunderground.com/

/ / The entire point of a public option was to provide competition against insurance companies to drive down costs and provide an alternative choice to citizens. A REAL public option would have been open to all Americans, it would have rates tied to Medicare, and it would be implemented in a relatively short period of time after the bill becomes law. The legislation contains none of these mandates

The current reform labeled as a public option:

- only covers 2% of the population
- will LIKELY be administrated by the private insurance companies
- is estimated to be priced HIGHER then private insurance plans \ \

We are not this gullible, but for the fact, CNN, CBC, the NWOers, and Fox-News play us lower than the maths should allow. Look, you, me, and some Joe put in for health insurance, then Joe goes, 'well you do know I'll regarding the profit of the scheme's purpose to begin with?

Americans are being taxed for health care, of which most of the expense, goes not to doctors or nurses, patients, of the tens of millions, with 50,000 PAID bribers, bribing in "Health Care" bribes to Repuglicons and Demonrats for / / Derivatives Meaning = Lets say: A bank has a deposit of $1000 - they are suppose to only lend up to 90% of that deposit out. So they then lend $900 out to someone, now they add that $900 loan to "deposits" - because it is seen as money in the bank. \ \

Sort of.

Derivatives have no basis in rules/law to define, thereby, as near as we can tell, they are bets, where the bookie banksters, always get their cut. (The 'Mob' would give you a better odd however) And additionally, with Investment Banksters, they trade with themselves, maybe zillions in derivatives bundles, to pay commissions with Police man Pension funds that go, as Ron Paul would claim, "LOST" as perfect examples.
Bear Stearns went bankrupt with 77 trillion in derivatives. All the pension monies stolen, and Americans were left with worthless pieces of paper said to be written down as 77 trillion.
A derivative doesn't need investments of capital to claim it fictional value. At least that is how I count it, with my limited knowledge on how these buggers are now all magically trillioniares.
A trillion is a thousand billion, and a thousand million is a billion. TRILLIONS 'earned' by one person in the space of one or three years, as FRONTLINE reported, who didn't truly buy or sell anything worth our interest. Yet, ACTUALLY has trillions of our pension dollars, living in a fifty thousand square foot, Italian Marbled Mansion.
With foot servants too!

"now they add that $900 loan to "deposits"
- because it is seen as money in the bank."

They repackaged the debt to capital by selling it out, while STILL collecting payments. (on debts including "Ninja Loans" they knew were valueless, but for the brand new free homes they stole) So, they sell a group of mortgage debts, into a sub-standard AAA security, however, STILL demand payment due, and shockingly! will foreclose on the 'delinquents' to seize the homes they never covered the loans on as it was, and sold off the debt that was owed. Free Houses and cars for payments we made twice over.. er.. thrice. (which is why Obama and Co. was/is encouraging American suckers to re-finance for a loan many didn't no longer owe truly if they had a voice here near crazy enough to sanely sort this out for the Public interest.) All because the Banksters passed a Repuglicon/Demonrat law that actually states, they, as magical banksters, do not have to prove they own the Title to the homes in a court of "Law": to therefore, Officially, STEAL American properties, Titles (they didn't pay for regardless sucker) they sold off to someone else before.
Remember: many of these Cons are actual TRILLIONIARES.
Tricky? Yup. Anyway..

Chris Cox changed it from 8 for every 100, to 20 to 1, then 40 to one, 80, then PBS Bill Moyers covered that it went as is now, 100 to one. Guess what? all a sham because, GLASS-STEGALL was removed by the Libertarian/anarchist/Alex Joneser type ideologues, who don't know what they blindly believe as true idiots who don't want people who do know what they are talking about to have a Well sure. Look at Ron Paul like Alex Jones and the NWOers running cover for the bushmobsters.

http://www.prisonplanet.com/ron-paul-vs-michael-moore.html
(a conspiracy??? for Alex Jones has been pushing the same)

Ron Paul states on CNN all governing fails - (traffic lights a bad idea Ron?) And NOT that extortionists, (like war criminals who conned Congress and Soldiers,) should be publicly arrested under the Standing Law (aka Government) to recoup our stolen loses. Just ask yourself, what is a "Liberal". Is it Stalinist Russia, who according to the Oxford Dictionary under 'socialism', is the control of all expression such as artistic literature, to by force, praise the un-elected mass murdering dictator. Or, as in Canada, where instead of private de-health companies pocketing trillions of tax dollars for doing nothing, the Government of the People, just hires a guy at a good salary to handle the health care book keeping. It's BOTH. (maths isn't suppose to be competitive capitalist mis-adventure in error - only one way to do it right.) Duality Einstein called it.. but who wants to hear from Mr. Smarty Pants in America? Not the NWOer, bigoted talk radio controllers who push selling gold and running to the hills from the clever fellows as the answer to all your worries that's who. Ron Paul (who won the Republican leadership convention) really sucks man. Where's the love? Example: Ron Paul knows more people, (800 per week) die from regular flu, yet, doesn't demand the arrest of the Obammanators for the wide criminal assault with mercury. For, influenza is a constantly mutating virus, thereby, making it impossible to know several years in advance, which exact strain will attack next - without giving it to US in the first place.

Americans are paying Insurance companies billions demand actual evidence to convince ourselves who is who here. False capital accusers, particularly in the American and Israeli military, must be challenged publicly for facts on still, blindly targeting our beloved families for capital murder.

Done all to better our circumstances against these deserve to die being the cowardly nazi enemies they are to everyone. No love for Life in their dead black hearts. Die bushite die. Rumsfeld's official war plan coded as, 'P2OG', is the plan to take more from Innocent America as left un-guarded for looting. (anddontforget, there was/is no justifiable reason to start bombing Iraq for officially being one-hundred percent compliant to the Nazi aggressors that didn't want to hear the facts on how they were to make their escape, murdering millions in America's name for stolen cash 'profit'. CBC, CNN, CJOB, George Noory and FoxNews REFUSED to allow my/our voices of un-contended reason) Rumsfeld is a traitor on so many levels. It's good to be King, so let's not be bad how about? Support this call for addressing ourselves openly as the public concerned, seeking Justice for all the victims of 911. I am great, you, not so good.

Make Me Holy Again

We need Justice to rule our Freedom to speak. Justice grants a Freedom to achieve. Like we needed on 911 that was absent. Our fault, let's fix this. Issue by issue is the plan, not blind ideologged party affiliations, and so; priorities need setting. In war, war is the priority. Why? Because your kids are risking their deaths for something apparently, they tell us without mentioning much. Like, OUR DEMANDS: evidence to form a conclusion on another's guilt or innocence for instance. Bushite must be arrested for kidnapping and torture, as trying cowardly to foolishly escape the FALSE ACCUSING traitor Peenacker Neocons we all know about, the Zionists, for mass murder in God's Country. A space where free speech will be again, common place.

Rooted in the indivisible rights we share equitably. Why do we arrest bad guys whom have told us they are good? Because that this is what they are to US innocent folks: Torturers, kidnappers, and mass murdering CIA and Air Force bombers of cities. Lest you as an American "think" We, the People, don't deserve such a right to say as much in our own defense? Think hard but quick, think hard but quick. Reference some of Johnny's earlier acknowledge the wanting of Justice for the high crimes of Banker fraud, Iraq, or 911! He took the "Truther" money, but refused to support the arrest of Bush for treasons times 50. Social Security he wants to gut

Alex doesn't ask Americans why they don't support the arrest of Bush for high treason because a world where all are treated equitably is beyond his understanding as a bigot. He could change, but he is 'light years ahead of the Public'.. but of what?
All you need do, is every time Alex says "they", ask yourself, WHO? - then know: the bartender at "Bilderberg", isn't as FOR SURE guilty of crimes as Condi from "Builderberg" is. The 911 plan came from her very desk according to MSNBC, never mentioned by Alex Jones. Why? You have to be near genius like

NOT MAGIC, more like meditation through understanding our universe is ruled by good ideas. Alex is a man, an irrational aggression (not thought through) that found him blindly supporting the murder of two innocent men. Not freedom. while I, am of God. An

the bushite would die rightly by the day in hundreds to get

/ / The left is already telegraphing its strategy to discredit the town hall movement. \ \

This is so stupid, I am pained to even explain.
ahhsee? a right winger is an absolutionist aka, dummy. Why? Because they, like children building buildings with a single Lego piece, BLINDLY as foolishly
"believe" things like, 'privatize always' Simple yes, but DUMB. While near universally looking for someone to pay/bribe themselves as sell outs, like your typical successful Congressman. Ideologue Ron Paul comes to mind. And then there is everybody else, like those that actually understand how freedom is won,
or, that a choice to pay private insurance companies
FOR NOTHING is being sold as a wise investment move to the prudent investors. (A needless market that wouldn't otherwise exist - IT'S INSURANCE - trillions and trillions in total vanished as "Health") 50,000 high salaried insurance employees are paying out a conservatively estimated, 1.5 million dollars in cash bribes a day to the Bushite McCainiacs. AJ doesn't like that truth, because he knows, on these grounds he would have to humble himself, as reaching for the Justice angles, or look the blinded sell out for us sold as.

So, what does he do? instead he blindly attacks as a bigot does, cause, despite everything he says by himself, he's really not all that on Rights. Advice to insecure Americans about their cultish identity: don't stand as a "Conservative" or a "Liberal", stand as a person with a unique take on just about everything - admitting your weaknesses makes you stronger, and where Our interests meet, is where Freedom resides. Laden as Innocent until proven otherwise. Some of these real world complexities of life's Constitution, are much more simply labeled "Liberal" philosophies/idears by Repuggers, as dismissing all together ourselves with censorship from public accounting/consideration. Go to a "Conservative" leadership debate, and they are all so the same as villianing, card board cut-outs near identical, boot stepping,

while a Green/Liberal/NDP/Metal/Reform/Democrat is nearer always, completely unique figures with good and bad characteristics representing differing takes.
Name an honorable Republican who has cared to serve the public's interest in the last 50 years? You'd be hard pressed, then think of the Democrats. Now, both parties, that encompass "Americans" entire political universe, without almost exception, couldn't care less about the sacrifices American teens are still paying as/for the Peenacker hijackers.. so what does that say? Our wisest and most brightest with a dictionary and slide ruler a "Conservative" fears for their cons of pissing willful ignorance. Public and private. Hense, the American psychosis of righty chauvinism. A 'Christian Conservative' would label Christ the do gooder, most likely as "liberal" or "Socialist" with smarter sentence/thought structures.
If we simply asked them what they believe. They don't appreciate US because we make'em look as dumb or evil as they truly are. Surmise the entire Koran in one breath for more insight. err.. or.. nevermind..

"Every Obama Critic a Racist" http://www.prisonplanet.com/every-obama-critic-a-racist.html

Who says? Yeah, yeah, Alex Jones mocking as a "Liberal", sure, but who else would be that dumb actually? To believe such nonsense serving whom I mean? The thoughtless NWOer cult?, who intent to fall "our" blame on innocent others to escape the Peenackers? Bad idea. As like when claimed by Burmas: bad guys are hidden out of reach for our convictions, as attempts made being just silly words organized on some papers, pay no attention to the voice pocketing your absentee vote. (like as with Ron Paul and the W.H.O. el al.) but who else states every critic a racist? Who is this personality type? we must DEMAND Alex Jones show US who is a "Socialism" whom? Canada? Cuba? China? France? Nazi Germany AND present day Germany? Norway? Happy San Fran?
How about North Dakota where they are better at banking? - damn heaven all together before the NWOers will allow US the rights of Man to sing together in glorious harmony for real Vengeance?
Note: Texas is THE WORST STATE of the Country for fiscal book keeping on Health issues - too many murderous thieves, so; Socializing is a 'no no' to the AJ crowd of illiterizing their, 'they are so smarter than "everybody" else is', by knowing little of nothing to name call billions a falsehood of 'vision', but just to say: no to Justice
as Freedom is truly garnered.

Just My Opinion

Yeah, that's right, it is 'just my opinion' that YOU let yourself go this way willingly, lying to yourself as a slave to allow the Innocent of Humanity suffer YOUR contempt of silence like Ron Paul does. Ron Paul supports escaping war criminals like Bush and Cheney, AIPAC, and earmarkers worth 16 billion dollars stolen to a private place never to be found again, in just one single example of repeating highway robbery that he has formally called for more of.

Millions were donated to Ron Paul winning for The People, of which he pocketed the cash for himself and his extreme right wing, cash for free, pro-pirate banker family, while giving in to a rigged election for the Republican Party, of which HE PERSONALLY SABOTAGED. I even remember a time when he expressed a concern where he stated something like, 'well, we don't want to steal any delegates'. SEE? Show some self respect, Ron Paul certainly hasn't while conning he candidly knows something, but he's not telling US right now.
EXAMPLE: The Nation of Georgia, (a Zionist controlled entity), targeted for FIRST DEGREE MURDER in South Ossetia, defenseless innocent children, men, and women. Targeted. Fully admitted now by everyone. MURDER, of which they, with bushite American and zionist Israeli military advisors, ACUTALLY COMMITTED, and Ron Paul fluffed it all off (while okaying a ten billion American TAX dollar payment to Cheney's personal friend), by selling ourselves, as just "some people think". Ron paul refused to exercise his CONSTITUTIONAL Rights to demand the arrest of Bush and Cheney for PROVEN HIGH TREASON. Iron flowing like water from the 911 Towers, and Ron Paul sells the mass murders exceeding well over a million innocent persons, is all just a lefty
"Police" action preformed by bushite teen grunt minds, of whom many, call Home Base third world military dictatorships. To CON America for death to rob from Iraqis for the Neoconner demonic naked liars. Torture, IS against American Standing law (War Crimes Act), and warrants the death sentence. Kidnapping also is a crime under the laws of every Nation. The bushite must be actively hunted to destruction by Our Police Services with American Law, to defend the lives of the next targeted innocent victims whom the bushite holds in contempt. Ourselves.

When I see the women and her child, left outside

I grow weary with ourselves for not speaking right.
Nazi Israeli are committed to deny US our God given

Then.. Hammurabi founded Civilization.

I go concerned for any hesitations of condemnation by Obama. It's like, he's talking some jive about how now he'll NOT let the words of Hamas reach his ears. Being against war criminals, doesn't make you pro-Hamas, necessarily, it means your against

Thanks, but I did what I should have done earlier . . . . . Google
it :)

Turns out they were originally used to ferry people to/from oil rigs, but not in Vietnam, in the Gulf of Mexico.

It was that type of boat, or something reasonably close, that the Navy had someone build when they realized they needed a boat with that type (use in shallow water) of capability.

DX-394 was an attempt by Radio Shack to toss a bone to the SW market it had long abandoned during a short rebirth of SW listening in the late 80's and early 90's. It was a general coverage receiver built by GRE, and it was not one of their finer efforts.

There are at least two iterations of DX-394. Some say three. And they can be distinguished by an A, B, or, if actually manufactured, C on the model/serial number on the back of the chassis.

The differences between these models is small. The A version is the worst. It's sensitive enough, but overloads with little or no provocation. Filters are way too wide for the crowded bands of the late 80's. And audio is passable. There are a nice aggregation of features, including timer on/off of recording gear, and a decent number of inputs and outputs. As well, an s-meter, VRIT tuning, keypad entry, a reasonably effective noise blanker, clock/programmable timer; scan, sweep, and standby modes; and four tuning steps for more agile dialing aup and down the dial.

There is a whip antenna for portable use and an SO-239 connector for more significant external antennae.

The A version would also not hold an alignment if you put a gun in its mouth. Service access is readily achieved by removing a few screws, and lifting off the chassis cover, and the alignment procedure is easy enough, but some examples actually drift back out of alignment by the time the chassis cover is replaced. Drift factors include thermal, humidity, and poor inate component stability.

Controls work well, but feel cheap. Tuning is known for it's backlash. Dial accuracy is fair.

The B iteration is somewhat better. More stable, able to hold to an alignment better than the A, but still not particularly well.

Somewhat lower noise floor and higher headroom. Not exemplary, but not as God-awful dreadful as the A.

There is talk of a C. I've not seen one, but that's ok. I've not seen Lauren Graham naked, either. That's no indication such things don't exist. The C is supposed to be DX-394 done as it should have been. Better filters, stable circuit design. Better immunity from overload.

The whip antenna may be omitted from B and C models.

There are copious websites dedicated to modifications of DX-394. Like a number of ICOM receivers, modifications can make DX-394 a nice little radio. Better filters are a must, and such mods are plentiful. Unmuting during tuning is a good choice. Input mods to significantly raise headroom are numerous and a very good idea.

Truthfully, though, most mods are a waste of effort on the A model.

Like a 57 Chevy Bel Air, you can pick up DX-394 for little cash, and mod it to death, ending up with a pretty snappy toy that will hold its own in performance, and play with the big boys in DXing competitions, Field Days and Hamfests.

Mike Maghakian modded a DX-394 and used it as his primary receiver...with claims of outperforming some R75's. I don't doubt him.

Whether all the work is worth it to you is for you to decide. There is considerable fun in bringing a project to completion. There is considerable fun in making an inadequate project rock.

But as it sits on the table, DX-394 is largely a waste of good plastic. There are much better radios out there for the same money.

Sangean's ATS-803, and ATS-909 come to mind. And, if cost is an issue, they can be had for around a hundred bucks.

For a little more, ICOM's R75 is decent. But may require some mods to make it more user friendly.

There are a lot of proponents of (Tecsun) Grundig SAT-800. QC is spotty. And there are, contrary to the claims of some creative internet (eBay) sellers, only two versions of SAT-800. One WITH a tuning shaft bearing, and one WITHOUT. There is only one generation of the circuitry. Service availability is through Drake. Parts availability is limited, and through Eton. Documentation is largely not available, so self service is possible, pursuant to your own technical skill.

A better choice would be a used Drake SW-8, upon which SAT-800's IF strip is based. SW-8 is portable, works VERY well in a fixed installation, great audio and very good performance with an external antenna. There are two versions of SW-8. With sideband selectable sync and without. An input mod is available that will better match the built in whip with the input circuitry for better performance as a portable. Service through Drake. This will be pricey, but a good value.

Two excellent choices would be Ten-Tec's RX-350, and Drake's R8. Both excellent performers, highly configurable to existing listening conditions, feature rich, and very good audio. Not cheap. Worth every penny. RX-350 comes in two iterations, RX-350, and RX-350D. The difference is the D has an IF output for use with a PC in demodulating DRM and some utes. Ten-Tec's support is non pareil.

Drake's R8 comes in three flavors: R8, R8A, and R8B. Any one will get you where you want to go. Excellent performers, decent ergonomics. Excellent audio. R8 was the first, and is most basic. R8A has about the same performance, but with 440 memories. R8B adds sideband selectable sync. Drake's support is exceptional.

There are also the Lowe's: HF-150, 225, 250 and 350. AOR's cut apart--AR-7030 and 7030 Plus. Any of these are excellent receivers. Prices will take you to 4 figures.

And, there are the Eton/Grundigs available today. You'll have to do your research on those.

If you're seriously looking to save money and still want a decent receiver, there are some decent tube sets by National, Hallicrafters, and Heatkit out there that offer decent listening, nearl bulletproof construction and serve as very good learning platforms as you delve into Shortwave listening.

Enjoy.

Here's a nice little post from SCT, a conversation in fact, that wasn't crossposted to RRS. If there ever was any doubt that Gregg's troll buddies were out to harass specific people, this should remove it. I wonder if it's a coincidence that the troll's victims are also people Gregg likes to harass? Nah, Gregg would never invite trolls to RRS ... or would he???

For what it's worth Sarah Palin is not a Democrat -or-http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sarah_Palin Republican -but- a POPULIST Conservative-Libertarian http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Populist who 'connects' with Common Every Day Hard Working American People {Voters}; and is Hated and Feared by both the Elites of the Democrat and Republican Parties.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Libertarian_conservatism

This is !WHY! the Elites of both the Democrat and Republican Parties are trying time and time again to destroy her 'image' in the American Mass Media :
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Populism
Because the Parties Can Not Control Sarah Palin; and what they can not control : They Fear most and they organize active campaigns to devastate and destroy through political and personal attacks on her and her family.

IMHO - Sarah Palin {Age 45} should run for the US Senator from Alaska and then after a term or two in the US Senate seek the Presidency;
when she will still be in her early to mid 50s.

No, the health care debate is not finished Mr. Durbin, I have not heard the details about who will be subsidized, I mean, who would have ever thought, Sen. Schumer, that you could contain your surprise at no mention that your plan is illegal, or that NO ONE WILL GET COVERAGE FOR FOUR YEARS while smiling ear to ear pretending that everyone will get immediate coverage when you sign the bill? Reduce the deficit? Hah! Remember cash for clunkers?

No one is following you to march over a cliff of socialism Mr. Schumer, and Mr. Durbin, you can't call that bait and switch plan on the internet something you can be proud of.

There are no guarantees of health care in that bill, and the dirty little secret Mr. Durbin and Mr. Schumer, is that those that will not be covered in the bill will be cast as irresponsible citizens for various reasons, and you will keep your noses high in the process?

Do you really think Americans can avoid personal responsibility? You loose your job and you have to prove to some apathetic clerk who is probably chewing bubble gum and talking to their BBF on the phone while on the government dime that you qualify for a subsidy? How long does that take, despite the fact you were raping our pay checks for decades?

Well, Sen. Murray, why all this demonization of the health insurance industry when the money coming out of our checks already are for programs that are not working? And why do the bills have to be passed now, if they are not in effect for four years, unless the Democrats are just raping America?

NO, this Pearl Habor attack by the Democrats is not going to work, and if they don't like Americans that oppose their views now, they have not seen anything yet.

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Well, it may face no choice? What if they try Gitmo prisoners in NYC, convict them, and then someone who writes something somebody does not like, is labeled a terrorist, and then denied basic civil liberties because the laws are effectively rewritten by fiat, and not by consensus? Mandatory purchase of health insurance? Not constitutional.

Firing civilian government workers simply because of the political affiliation? Denies civil rights, freedom of speech, etc. Firing inspector generals and EPA scientists because they don't like the reports?

Bail outs, not constitutional, that's why laws of bankruptcy were made. Crashing the currency on purpose? Doesn't that break international treaties somewhere?

This list is not conclusive or comprehensive, and there is too much power contained in a proposed government health care bill. Tell me Mr. T. R. Reid, "foreign correspondent" which county the size of the United States are you comparing your theories to?

Oh, and the cap and destroy the energy industry? Lunacy!

Good intentions does not make up for incompetence and a rush to do these things without any safety nets of caution, but only based on the fact that you are in political power, and actually hid a major elements of your policies and who will form them? Who can create jobs when these eccentric members of Congress are willing to choke businesses out with regulations and taxes on whims produced in only days, instead of years?

Who ever designed the stimulus package is enough evidence, even if you ignored everything else? Americans would applaud the military if they did this, and explained why in great detail? Seizing 10 percent of worker's pay in California, interest free (violating the 5th amendment, no seizure of property without compensation), as an "interest free loan"? The rest of us are next?

I was thinking about Echolink recently and it’s inspired me to make the following proposal for next year’s New York City marathon.

Beginning next year, so long as participants in the marathon either begin and/or end the race on foot, it’s okay for them to ride in cars, buses, etc. the rest of the time.

I see the following merits in my proposal:

1. It will allow those who are too ill or weak to participant to be included in the event as active participants.

2. A lot of people are interested in BOTH running AND cars. My proposal will give these folks a perfectly natural way to combine these interests.

3. By allowing participants to ride in cars and other vehicles for the majority of the race, the event will be completed in far less time. It will also result in less physical stress on participants, which will make the event both safer and more comfortable.

It’s also worth noting, just as an aside, that the marathon scene in many communities is completely dead at present. I believe that, if we go on to allow vehicles in all marathons, this will result more marathons in more communities!

From a student of the Advanced Institute for Conservative Studies of the Excellence in Broadcasting Network:

Top Ten Signs You Might Be Taking Too Many Meds after surgery:
Number 10, You mock Carrie Prejean for complaining to Larry King that he is inappropriate for asking about “juicy details” of her sex life?

Number 9, you talk about cannibalism enthusiastically during your show?

Number 8, you talk about eating human entrails enthusiastically, during your show?

Number 7, imagine that MSNBC news anchors call people sluts?

Number 6, references to getting shot with bullets during your show?

Number 5, constantly talk about yourself?

Number 4, constantly talk about others talking about you?

Number 3, say the word Jesus with a cackle in your voice?

Number 2, perform your show prep based on plagiarized material from South Park and call it the “fusion of entertainment and enlightenment”?

Number 1, if asked a question during a mock debate for President of the United States between Glenn Beck and Rush Limbaugh, the following scenario will likely occur, that Rush Limbaugh will probably begin the debate with the phrase

“I want you to know that also I will not make age an issue of this campaign. I am not going to exploit, for political purposes, my opponent's youth and inexperience, compared to how long I have been in radio.”

Oh, well, I guess that only makes 9 reasons, huh, if you can't use your imagination? Do you find Jerry Lewis shows very funny? Did Clint Eastwood give us a hint? You sprinkle humor, you don't unscrew the top of the spice jar just enough so someone will pick it up, and then dump it on a dinner, ruining it? Don't worry Bill O'Rielly, I don't want your job, your shows are great lately?

Go ahead make my day. But being that Google is the most powerful search engine in the world, and could possibly return over 213 million hits for the phrase “the dumbest thing Glenn Beck ever said”, you've got to ask yourself one question.....

Do you feel "enlightened"?

By listening to Rush Limbaugh, you too can know what it is to be the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world, and without a doubt, can answer the following question.....

Do you feel lucky?

Thank YOU, Rush Limbaugh!

purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Thanks for the info so far.

I thought there was an unmarked orginal DX394, an A version, a B version...three versions but no C version.

My understanding is that the A version has a small board with mods and the B version was a remake of the main board incorporating those mods....with essentially the same performance as the A version.

True or false?

It's possible but, in my experience, "original versions (ie. 1.0 or A) are usually never marked as such. It's only the revisions that are thusly marked. I take this to indicate a degree of (misplaced) optimism on the part of the manufacturer and the release of revisions is a crash to earth or a reality check.
This is true in the case of my netgear devices. Original versions are unmarked whereas revisions are v2, v3, v4, etc. I suspect that, if a product does well in the marketplace, they bring out a "new & improved" version with appropriate markings to indicate this. If it bombs, then the product line is dumped with no revisions.
It really depends on what you expect from your radio. From what I gather, the revised versions still didn't make the DX394 into a great radio, just one that was a little better suited to the market spectrum for which it was intended. If the DX394 fits your needs. then go for it.
A good starter radio if nothing else.

Thanks for the info so far.

I thought there was an unmarked orginal DX394, an A version, a B

My understanding is that the A version has a small board with mods and the B version was a remake of the main board incorporating those

True or false?

Nobody would be stupid enough to respond to your troll attempts.

Perhaps you should stop wasting bandwidth and start thinking for yourself instead of spending your entire night watching Glenn Bleach and regurgitating the FAUX/GOP mantra here.

What strikes me as a joke is that we went to the moon over 40 years ago and now baby Bush dared to have a vision of landing a man on the moon by 2020. That was bad enough, and we now have a (N-word) president who wants to cut NASA to the bone and cancel any ideas of another moon mission.
Too bad old man Bush didn't go down with his plane!

I was thinking that I hadn't quite "faded into oblivion" as stated by I'd also like to know how those trolls are going to "run them out of

Happy Birthday Pat Gray!
I want to thank Pat Gray from the Glenn Beck Radio show for his contributions to the show, and with all honesty, if it were not for his involvement with the show, I would probably change the channel on more occasions than if Glenn Beck was all by himself. Happy Birthday Pat.

The other guy, Stew (probably not spelled right?) adds some spice to the show. The show has come a long way, and Pat seems to think that those who “attack” Glenn are jealous? How about you admit when you are wrong, and apologize? But, but, but, President Obama, I am jealous of your stash, you should give it away? He will just laugh? Jealousy is not an excuse for excellence?

Well, let's talk business, who is your target audience? Teenagers skipping high school, or middle aged black Negro housewives who have borderline out of control teenagers? When Senate races are determined by less than 5000 votes, is it really, really, necessary to turn off a female listener who just happened to tune in, eating breakfast, while you are performing a satire on eating human entrails? Herman Cain, or human entrails?

Do you want to sit down to dinner later and listen to the pod cast with that on there? Gee, do you have any idea how sensitive some women are? Let alone how squeamish they can get? Just say, you don't like what a reporter from a tv station does and leave it at that? OMG! You mean to tell me your target audience should be Oprah's stash? BINGO! Why? Because President Obama is one of the most aggressive campaigners we have seen, and you can't just ignore that audience?

Who ever decides to run against Mr. Obama in the next election (if he runs, which I doubt he will) will have to be just as aggressive in campaigning, and where does loyalty start? Ignore the audience, where does your loyalty lay? Hey, I tune in to South Park for a few minutes (4 or 5 times a year) if it is not offensive, but lets face reality, South Park is a revolving audience? You can be really obnoxious to your audience because you are going for shock value on a rotating basis, since you know you are going to loose audience members? Sort of like what employers do with minimum wage earners, these are minimum intelligence audiences (drunk or high?)?

So that's why I wrote a critical piece on the comedy aspect of the show, not out of jealousy (no one can do what Rush Limbaugh does) but because I want the Glenn Beck show to be effective, not just profitable? I bet the Democrat Party thinks it is profitable, but is it effective at helping people? And it makes us angry, that talented people that can put on a show like South Park, end up using potty language and topics even though they don't have to?

Well, I did not write out of anger, and I left plenty of room in there for what needed room? Go ahead, rip people's heads off in your imaginations and put them on sticks? See if I continue to care? I've got more important things to do?

And last but not least Mr. Beck, who I have admired recently more than any entertainment or news person that I have seen in a long time, I will not let you even think about becoming addicted to pain medication while everyone around you pretends it is not happening if it is? I don't want to see you pushing a shopping cart under a bridge one day? If people want to vilify me for caring, then I am guilty. Rush Limbaugh says that the media will tell us who they are afraid of, who could aggressively campaign or change things in Washington?

Apparently, some one, or some thing (an effect?), has written 213 million web pages to talk about Glenn Beck? Does that qualify as the media being terrified Mr. Beck, if you can keep the gift of self control? Is it self control to call someone a dictator, or is it self control to say someone is acting just like a dictator, which is a sign they are fundamentally against the principals, values, ideals, and representation of what being an American is all about? Effectiveness is not jealousy. You can build a life boat if you want to, I prefer to walk on solid ground.

And that scares the doubts out of libertarians, and could convert them into something more useful? By listening to Rush Limbaugh, you too can know what it is to be the most exciting, most entertaining, fact finding, idea busting, fun loving, egg shell mind crunching, invincible smacketh downeth erectus among us, you can't see the truth coming, but you know it is anyway, sonic boom of Conservatism, and, most powerful keyboard in the world, and without a doubt, can answer the following question.....

Do you feel lucky?

This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse

examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong.

Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Oh sure, you use a trick of science to hide the data? That made a lot of sense? If this was a ponzi scheme, the public would be demanding they be put in prisons the rest of their lives for deceiving them into spending billions they did not have to? Let me guess, the FBI will not be able to just ignore the implications of what these emails say?

What if the "hackers" turn out to be members of the military of Russia, who are conducting a training exercise, International agreements are so exciting, huh? Or just a good novel plot that will not involve the US military?

Hemp house, huh?
Might work since hemp was the preferred item to make ship's large ropes from. I have a garbage bag of stalks (hemp, not pot) and was kind of wondering about making some home made rope.
Barring that, if the government wasn't so anal about it, hemp seeds could be sprinkled over burned out zones to prevent soil erosion and huge deadly mudslides.
You don't have to smoke it to get some good use from it.

The downside of instant mass connectivity is the same as programmed Stealing from others is.

You can't "share" what you don't own.

Maybe I think you can share your tooth brush and so I'll just take it use it to clean the toilet and put it back.... we just shared it, no harm done, right? Besides you don't really own it...

Once again you prove your total stupidity. Hemp for rope and construction material contains no active THC so you can't get stoned on it. I have some Hemp and the fibers are really strong, like enough to slice your hand before it breaks. Good rope base.
If you had a brain, which I seriously doubt, you would know that it is safer than Alcohol or tobacco, but of course, I expect you to be an abuser of those products.

They call it 'hydro-lastic suspension.' It was on the DS and the SM models, as well. In fact, it's the system that Rolls Royce uses.

That's the Second Sign of the Apocalypse, btw. When the French build a complex system so well that it attracts the attention of Rolls-Royce.

Either Way . . . whether your IQ and Score was 55 or 145 : You Could Not Flunk It !

As a Matter-of-Fact an IQ Score of 55 or 145 shows that you are truly 'The Exception'; and Not-the-Rule; where-as an IQ Score of around 100 just simply means that you are 'average'.

Devilmint, Devilmint, chemin gummm,,,

I wish I own me one of those old Citroen Deaux CV frog eye cars, with the corrugated tin body on it.I saw a lot of those little cars when I was in Vietnam.

One of my old 1950s Popular Mechanics magazines has an article about a couple of guys who drove one of those frog eye Frog Citroen Deaux CV cars across a desert in one of those foreign countries.Somehow, they ran across some rocks and busted a hole in the oil pan.They patched up the hole and they put some bananas in the engine because they didn't have any engine oil.They made it to the next city where they had the engine properly repaired.

4025. Something about radios for once.

I would like to start a thread about antennas, like how to build some oddball indoors types, outdoors, matching networks, and any other pet projects involving the front end of a radio and what you can feed it for the best DX'ing. This is receive only so nothing too fancy should be needed.
Indoors;
3 loops around the radio room, 1 around the ceiling, 1 around a wall from floor to ceiling, and another on the other wall. A switch and some kind of matching network should work well.
1 big wire in the attic (If you have one).
Your turn.

Outdoors;
Single long wire with stake in ground for earth side. Wire is looped through trees at my house, all trees and no clear spot.
Multiple long wires at different angles with switches to select the one with best signal.

General;
Antenna tuners, not MFJ or whatever those toy boxes are.
Noise blankers for us with a noisy neighborhood, or mobile.
R.F. amps, tuned or not, tuned preferred.
I have one for B.C. band 540 to 1800 KHz.
It has better 'Q' than the radios I hook it up to.
I built it with a JFET for the amplifier bottom then ran it's output to a 2N3904's emitter and use the output of the 3904 to drive a loop around the usual old tube clock radio I am playing with. The tuned circuit sees no resistance except the wire so the 'Q' is insane.
D.C. to about 30 MHz is where I play most of the time.
Projects or politics and I am tired of the latter.

OK, then I am an exception since the 145 is an easy mark for me.
Even average people think I am a smart ass because I know about stuff

You have to have a radio that can handle a lot of millivolts if you're going to use big antennas. I'd avoid using an amp like that; it's likely to cause intermods. What's wrong with MFJ?

Hemp rope only fell out of favor after strong enough nylon type synthetics were discovered/designed. Now rope can be just about anything. The funny part is that hemp still beats most of them for outdoor durability and UV tolerance.
I think some countries may still use it, but that's only a guess.

I only have one AM station to worry about and that is another subject, like how to use a tuned circuit to notch it out and get power from it.
There were some articles in the past about using this technique to get some good use out of the free power for your amplifier stage.
MFJ has been described to me, by a Ham, as Mighty Fine Junk.

I want to roll my own, so to speak, just to keep a bored mind busy.
My pile of parts has a military antenna tuner with some big variable caps and a roller inductor.
I want to build something out of this mess, not just buy more junk, which by now is probably made in China anyway.

The Citroen 2CV was made until 1990 and almost 4 million were made.
Wierd looking hippie specials they may have been but they did for France
what the Model T Ford did for America.

Here is a potted history with quite a few pictures of the various incarnations of the 2CV

I think you mean the Citroen DS with its hydropneumatic self-levelling suspension.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Citro%C3%ABn_DS

The 2CV is an entirely different beast.

Historically, the first mass production car with front to rear mechanical interconnected suspension was the 1948 Citroï¿½n 2CV. The suspension of the 2CV was extremely soft ï¿½ it had low roll stiffness, but its pitch stiffness was increased by using an interconnected suspension. The leading arm / trailing arm swinging arm, fore-aft linked suspension system together with inboard front brakes had a much smaller unsprung weight than existing coil spring or leaf designs. The interconnection transmitted some of the force deflecting a front wheel up over a bump, to push the rear wheel down on the same side. When the rear wheel met that bump a moment later, it did the same in reverse, keeping the car level front to rear. The 2CV had a design brief to be able to be driven at speed over a ploughed field. It originally featured friction dampers and tuned mass dampers. Later models had tuned mass dampers at the front with telescopic dampers / shock absorbers front and rear.

I thought at first that they may have used torsion bars in the suspension but it seems they use coil springs inside a sealed container.
Makes sense given they are noted for their extremely soft ride, a feature impossible to attain with typical torsion bar suspensions.

Sounds like an urban legend to me. Haven't seen too many liquid banana skins and vehicle engine lubrication systems rely on oil being pumped through small passages to the bearings. Need a complete rebuild if they travelled any distance at all. In reality, they'd need to do a complete stripdown just to clean out the banana sludge.
The old banana skins in the differential story is getting long in the tooth too. Might have worked in the days of bevel gear final drives but wouldn't work with modern hypoid bevel drives.

Back in the days when we were into hotrods, a friend topped up his hypoid final drive with a non-hypoid gear oil. Bad move as it heated up, became noisy and died in no time flat. Hypoid final drives need an EP (extreme pressure) gear oil as the gear teeth have a wiping motion that will remove any lesser grade oil.

Can't be bothered with cars these days. Messed about with 'em enough in the 50's, 60's and 70's. More interested in sedentary hobbies like short wave radio listening and computers. In the old days, those chaps crossing the desert might have used shortwave radio to stay in touch with home base. Nowadays they'd use a sat phone.

(How's that for dragging the thread back on topic?)

I stand corrected, they were DS models in the shop and I did see some CV's of unknown vintage around the campus. The one I saw with the hood up had the engine set way back and my memory says it was a V-4 liquid cooled. Of course that was in 1966 so it is a stretch to say "For sure" at this point.

4042. Shortwave for cars?

Has anyone seen any shortwave radios in cars lately? I remember a few from across the pond back in the 60's but it seems to have died out as a fad. I would like to put one in one of my cars rather than a boom box thing and be able to tune the world from wherever I find myself.
The other advantage is that I can drive to a spot with no power lines for miles at night to listen relatively static free. I could (in theory) take a long wire on a fishing pole (28-32AWG?) and put on a disposable weight and toss it as far as possible into some high trees. Once it is stuck firmly just back the car up until the whole spool is used up and connect the car antenna to it.
Anybody tried it or anything like it?

Sony still makes some really nice AM/FM/SW radios for cars (with the requisite CD/MP3 player, etc.) that have, although not full coverage, at least pretty decent coverage.

As for the antenna, car radios are made to impedence match to the relatively short standard car radio antenna, and usually do not respond too well to additional antenna length. You CAN, however, place a variable capacitor between the car antenna and your random longwire, and tune it for best reception for a given frequency. This would at least give you the advantage of the extra capture area.

You are right on this one. The banana itself will mush up enough to get squirted onto enough critical parts (Rod bearings) that it could go some miles if you didn't mash the gas or expect 6,000 RPM.

Sure is the truth. I owned about 6 Renaults, both R-8 and R-10's to appreciate them and the engines were infinitely rebuildable since the cylinders were replaceable. My wife joked that I liked the cars so much we would drive them until the doors fell off, and the next week the driver's door fell off the upper hinge. It was an easy fix but we were both laughing so hard we didn't care.
The only thing that took them out for good was a warped Aluminum cylinder head that could only be milled a few times.
Water cooled but damn good cars. One got 54 MPG on a road trip so I have to laugh at these new car commercials bragging about 32 MPG highway.
Yawn.

I will go look. A CD/MP3 player would be wasted on me since I prefer to listen to the sounds the car and road make while I am driving.
Was going to look. The Sony home page won't work with my version of Firefox and IE will never be allowed to slime my drive.
Maybe Egghead or Frys or some other large consumer place.

As a rule when I buy a car one of the first things I adjust is the antenna trimmer, which is usually a bit off anyway. Funny how most people don't even know these things exist. Thinking about it, an MFJ tuning box sitting under the dash should be a real conversation starter.

There is always XM radio. BBC world service all the time, and many other shortwave stations on a rotating basis.

If you are going to do any SWL with a fixed antenna, there is really no need to mount it in the car. I have a Welbrook ALA100 that I have used in the field many times with home brew wire loops.

It's close but not exactly what I want. 4 times 40 watts? CD? Limited coverage! A noise blanker is a must in a car even if the noise is not from your own car. I have had a CB radio and been literally blasted by someone's million volt super blaster ignition.

The point was I want to do my own searching and not listen to some lame satellite station. I will never buy a car that requires me to pay a satellite station $10 every month.

Interesting looking setup, could be used as a direction finder too.
I have a marine RDF but it uses a pre-mounted loop-stick in the rotating antenna. Too bad it cuts off at just over the old 2805 frequencies.

Damn. I would have probably bought one. Selling the car would require the stock radio but that is not hard. I saw some Canadian CB's that a,

Now I'm gonna get busted for balloons in Air Force space. I know the FAA allows 170 feet for a tower and that's about enough wire for a fishing reel. If I get real ambitious I might try it, except I don't have a helium source nearby.

It is possible that they were fitted with a larger V4 liquid cooled engine in the 70's and 80's models, at least those intended for export to places like the US where fuel is cheap. There were a couple in the inner suburbs here that I used to pass through on my way to work some years back. Never saw under the bonnet of one so don't know what they were equipped with.

Used to knock around a bit in an R4 in the mid 60's. Now they were utilarian! I still remember the body roll. Never upended one though. I think the body roll was a safety feature. The body roll scared you from pushing it to the limits.

The Meharis I saw in Vietnam had a habit of dropping doors off. Those plastic bodied Meharis were a load of junk. The plastic wasn't even properly UV stabilised.

It's all relative. Modern fuel injected engines are much more efficient than the old carburetted versions were back in the 50's - 70's. Fuel economy is aided and abetted by a number of factors; engine efficiency, vehicle mass and aerodynamic factors being the three most important. Power to weight ratio also plays a role. The Citroen 2CV had a very light body coupled to its miniscule engine. It was practically impossible to get poor fuel economy. You must remember, they were designed for use in places where the price of fuel was akin to the price of gold.

Way back, my old Jaguar Mk 10 had a radio made by PYE that had standard broadcast and short-wave. Or was that the Mk II????? Short-wave reception was spotty, and I never did try a long wire antenna on it.

I did, but we sold the car, and the radio, unfortunately, stayed with it. Used to be nice to be able to listen to NHK, CRI, Radio OZ, VOA, etc. when out in the schticks with nothing else to listen to. Our new car, A Ford Flex, is not conducive to installing an aftermarket radio.. :( It's got a decent AM/FM with lots of bells and whistles in it, but I can't even change the station spacing for 9 KHz, which makes it a bit crappy sounding trying to listen to AFN stations on 1197 and 1512. Not to mention most of the Korean stations that don't happen to fall on even 10's.

I miss my shortwave.. in the car out on the open road is the only place in Korea that you have anything like a listenable band.

The serial number of mine is C003704

The radio without mods isn't that good, just like the DX398, I have both those pieces modded out and at least at my QTH....there is no comparison - - the 394 smokes the 398.

The last mod that needs to be done ( if I want to include my computer)
- is the interfacing with the computer. I doubt I will even mess with that though.

The part that is great/bad about each of those radios (394/398) is that with the mods - those radios are really fine performers. They should have been done that way from the factory IMO. There was NOTHING that my friends R75 could hear in the same room with different antennas - - that the modded DX394 couldn't hear.

I have two small toggles right underneath the LSB/USB/AM/CW lettering.
The one on the left is for selectivity. Flip it up for the 4KHz filter or down for the 6KHz. The one on the right is for the AGC - middle position is off/ up is for slow AGC/ down for fast AGC. In all if I remember right is 12 different mods. Black grained contact paper was added to the radio, really looks nice. Both radios with all the mods -- be it taken on a DXpedition or in the house - - the DX394 outperforms the 398 - even in UTES which surprised me.

I seem to remember an old valve car radio that had some shortwave indicators on the dial. It was one of those common brands (AWA, Kreisler, Pye) but exactly which one escapes me now. It was a long time ago. Not my car, a friends, and we used to go on trips in it. Slow to warm up and heavy on the battery if you used it too long without the engine running. Caught us out once or twice but a roll start got us under way again.
I seem to recall that car radio sensitivity on MW broadcast bands was a lot better in the fifties and sixties than it is on modern car radios.
During the evenings, I used to be able to pick up stations 1 or 2 thousand kilometres away with ease. Nowadays, I only need to be a couple of hundred kilometres way from my home city and I lose the signal. Maybe the transmission power has been reduced? I know there was a time when the MW spectrum became a bit crowded So that might have been why the front end sensitivity of car radios was decreased. Well, the MW spectrum is getting less crowded now.

Hi,

Figured you folks would know.

Have a bag full of USB cables.
Some are probably the older USB 1, and some the newer 2.0.

No labels on them.

Is there any distinguishing marks on the cable or connectors that I'm missing perhaps that tells one which is which ?

Thanks,
Bob

Sharing his life of theft from others is is evil....
Instead of teaching people how to use government to steal, he needs to teach the people how to create their own.

Remember

It's better to "give" than to receive and better to "earn" than to steal. I gave what can NOT be taken and earned what I have.

A parasite can only live as long as there is a host.

I have a Becker 2340 I used in my 308 for years. That was the last aftermarket radio I saw with SW. I've heard tell of some Sony's, but not being interested in anything from Sony, I never pursued them.

The Becker offered excellent SW performance on the car's antenna. A little ignition noise in deep fades, but not enough to complain about. The injectors on 18 wheelers were more of a problem than ignition noise. It has 40 or so memories. And exceptional audio.

As for driving out into the weeds...we had a member of this group, living in Colorado, who used to drive out into Wyoming and about two miles outside of Jackson Hole would hook his SW-2 up to the guard rail and use that as a makeshift pseudo Beverage.

With dramatic results.

But attaching anything to your car radio antenna will not get you where you want to go.

A car antenna does not really operate as an antenna. It's too short for medium wave. It operates more like a capacitive element, and is trimmed at the input to optimize performance. Attach a wire to the car antenna, and you'll change it's capacitive value, and throw your input out of balance. You're also likely to change that whip into something that behaves more like a real antenna and seriously overload your front end. On some models this can be disastrous.

A better option would be to see if you can find an in-dash on the used market, or take something like an SW-8 with you, mount it underdash and enjoy it as a real shortwave receiver with a separate antenna system.

Society can't "deem" it constitutional, they can either change the constitution or obey it, society can't simply ignore the constitution.

If society tries that then the individual has the right and duty to stop society.

I became aware a few weeks ago that Garry Meier was now on WGN 720 Chicago. So far only gave a brief listen. Ya heard him there?

Impressive, eh?

Actually, I need to make a correction...hydro-elastic, as on the 2CV was used in cars like the Mini, Austin 1100, and it's MG variant. It was a soft, relatively speaking, suspension that would raise and lower the car on bumps rather than hobby-horse. This was achieved by interconnecting hydraulic reservoirs fore and aft at the wheels in place of springs. And it worked very well. Body roll was still dreadful, but you take what you can get. And body roll didn't have nearly the impact on control as the pitching fore and aft did.

The system used on the DS and SM and by other makes like Rolls-Royce was 'hydro-pneumatic.' This was a mechanical system that developed hydraulic pressure through an engine driven pump. (In one iteration I worked on, the pump was electric, but I don't believe this was a factory installation.)

I got to drive an SM in '75 for about 2 weeks. Maserati V-6, and all the candy. It was something else.

The suspension would, indeed raise and lower the car as it was started or stopped. What was seriously cool was the range of adjustments available. For performance driving on paved roads, it could be dialed down to lower the car for better ground effect. Or raised on rough roads to increase clearance.

It could also be dialed in to increase or decrease stiffness. On the track, lowered at maximum stiffness, it handled like an open wheel race car. Less stiffness and raised, it handled like a luxury sedan.

Not unlike the Italians.

> Didn't the Citroen's have a 4 cylinder Hemi or something to that effect?

Actually, it was a watercooled flat twin, rumored to have been based on the BMW Boxer engine. In fact, "2CV" is an abbreviation of 'deux chevaux vapeur', which translates to '2 steam horses.' But, you're correct, they were hemispherical combustion chambers.

Thanks for the response.

I really like your approach of keeping the mods attractive....mind if I copy the approach?

My SN# is C005813 with a "A" added at the end.

The "A" also is shown on the manual.

Yeah, he started on WGN earlier this year. He's not half bad. And without a sidekick, he acquits himself pretty well. Not as hilarious as he was with Roe Conn, but I think the time at WLS allowed him to His ratings aren't as good as Spike O'Dell's in that same time

Well, they've got this goof, Greg Jarrett, in morning drive. And he's got no personality. Hold him up to a beige wall and he disappears. No sense of humor that I've detected. And he REALLY doesn't get Chicago. If he lasts his first contract, I'll be surprised. If he does make it, he may go the distance.

They've moved around most of the rest of their talent, brought in Garry Meier and hired Jerry Agar for swing and weekends.

It's definitely not Uncle Bobby's WGN.

The big guns have all abandoned SW to developed countries. BBC still broadcasts to africa. DW, RNW and the others have moved to satellite and internet distribution.

But as politics in the world heat up, SW will become an important element of communcations again once tensions reach the point where walls start going up. Internet streams can be censored. Satellite radio can be shut off. That leaves terrestrial radio. 500,000 watts can't stopped at national boarders.

The Cold War was the reason for the pervasion of SW broadcasts. Of course, there were jamming attempts. Some more successful than others. But, the messages got where they were intended through radio beamed in from out of country.

The technology isn't dead. It may be dormant, now. But it's not dead. And when communications are down, Radio is one of the few technologies that can be brought to bear quickly, and competently. With organized traffic nets in every state.

So, no, SW radios are not obsolete. Nor will they be for some years, yet.

Yeah, he got bumped out by Mancow. Agar was the one that replaced Eileen Byrne when she got thrown under the bus. He IS good. And, being a Canadian immigrant, now a US citizen, he's got a very good perspective on the entire health care agenda.

Good comments.

Do you think frequencies will be reallotted for other purposes?

Unused spectrum is valuable in today's wireless world.

On HF...maybe. But probably not as much as you think. A lot of digital services can be squeezed into a handful of channels. About 10 years ago, I looked at a QEI Quick Link for my remote broadcast business. A digital site-to-studio link that was frequency agile over 12 channels, and used a number of different pn codes to digitally encode the audio on the transmit end, and then decode it on the receive end. I may have the numbers wrong on that, it has been a decade or more. But the point was that the audio was clean, reasonably secure.

When I asked about intereference, the rep showed me the results of a test that had 20 or so of these devices all transmitting/receiving on the same channel with different pn codes, and non could see any of the others.

Where digital will be the mode of choice, spectrum space will be less of an issue. Meaning that a few channels here and there could be reallocated to digital modes, without significantly crowding remaining spectra while still accomodating a large number of users.

And DRM is still in use in some broadcast bands by SW broadcasters.

In the US we have all been duped into belief that anything that is not the latest thing is obsolete. Meanwhile, just in the last year, numerous other countries have initiated and/or expanded their shortwave coverage. While we're running around with fogged heads patting ourselves on the back on our perceived trend-setting status...as is so often the case...we are myopic about what is really going on around us.

Shortwave broadcasting offers much that the Internet does not; portability, anonymity and simplicity. I am certain shortwave will be around for a long time; probably outlasting Internet so-called "broadcasting."

Some has, 7100-7200 HZ has been re-alocated to a ham band. I think it is supposed to be clear of SWBC stations in 2010.

Before someone from the US goes and says it already is a ham band, it is only one in the Western Hemisphere. Here in ITU zone 1 (and zone 3), it was 7000-7100 until a few years ago, now it is 7000-7200, but there are still s-meter pinning SWBC stations on there.

In some parts of the world there is a new 5mHz ham band, but I don't think it came from SWBC allocation.

I signed up with these guys - Stateside TV - http://statesidetv.net

I have a SlingCatcher, so I can watch the stream on my 37"LCD TV at a very watchable resolution. Keeps the wife and son quiet too, she gets all her Lost and Desperate Housewives long before they are shown here (UK) and he gets all his MLB and NFL games. Saves me forking out for an ESPN America subscription! Best games are shown on Fox Soccer Channel and Setanta - got fed up with the lack of decent quality P2P streams that were 'here today and gone tomorrow'. I can also watch the Saturday afternoon Premier League games not shown in the UK.

Hope this helps someone.

I half rolled an R-8 while practicing for a Gymkhana event coming up. It was a hard right to hard left that got me sliding on my right side. I got out by way of the driver's side window, swore every word in the book, grabbed the passenger roof edge and heaved the car upright. The car's total weight was under 2,000 pounds so it wasn't a totally Herculean feat, but the adrenaline of being that pissed off didn't hurt either. I got in and drove it home and never had any delusions about driving in one of those events in a Renault again.

Partially smoke and mirrors. I also had a 1961 Rambler American brick

I'm an engineer so don't even get me started on how much you don't know.
Even the manufacturers are too stupid to realize how to get over 40 MPG even on a big V-8 or don't care. Take it to my email if you want an

What did happen was that once I killed the connection and checked my

When possible, yes. I used to do a once per week commute to work and found myself in some really deserted places coming home. No in dash radio but I did have a marine RDF for AM DX'ing. I still have that radio and a solar cell that will power it so listening is free. The whole idea of a shortwave in the car is not to listen while driving but to be able to drive to a noise free area and listen.
Make sense now?

Oh, no....you dont. The rolling chassis and the coachwork were very nice. And the construction, the suspension, the electrics, were all of the highest quality. And the balance of the car was so good, if you got a flat on one of the rears, you could pull the wheel off, toss it in the back and drive home on 3. The DS's, too, would do this.

But that engine was a Maserati V-6. And it pretty much came with a mechanic. Literally, it had to be wrenched all week to drive it on the weekends.

This was a variant on the Maserati V-6 that went into the Bi-turbo that made it into this country. Very fun. Very fast. Very nicely appointed. But the engines would blow up so often, tune-ups were unnecessary.

Liza Minelli is lower maintenance than these engines.

And in the SM, which flat-out begged to be driven to its potential, they just didn't last.

I know a guy at Hubbard Woods who tried to shoehorn a Menard (Buick) V-6 into an SM. I don't know if he ever finished the project. But THAT would have been a helluva ride.

When I was driving the M100, I met a guy at the service bay at Continental who had a 2CV. He said it was the most amazing way to meet women. He'd fire it up in the morning, and take it out on the expressway, and more often than not, it would die on the road. And he'd have to get out and wait for a flatbed. Damned near every time, a nice lady would stop, and offer him a ride. He'd get her number...and...well...I'm surprised he didn't need a dual hip replacement.

He was doing better than I was, and I was driving a Lotus.

I still see a few Citroen's around from time to time. There's as shop on the North Shore that perpetually has 4 or 5 DS's in the bays. If I couldn't have a DB4 or DB5, I'd snap up a DS in a heartbeat.

Here we go again!

I need to get back to work.Dragging more 4' by 8's out of my van and laying them down on my front porch and cutting them down the middle, two feet wide so I can push them up into my attic.
Busy me, oh busy, busy hard working me!
I take plenty of breaks whenever I want to though.

I looked and like the radios but I am only looking for a receiver and don't want to spend a ton of money. Also, any decent mobile should have a noise blanker, not just a limiter. I did like the built in antenna tuner but it seems a transmitter would be needed to optimize things.

That actually makes good sense since I don't want to listen while driving anyway. The fading would drive me up the wall. I know the deal on car antenna lengths and the antennas on most cars would probably tune to 144 MHz or somewhere way up there. Figuring out how to fake a good earth ground might be a challenge unless the mass of the car would make it a good ground.
All for now.

No, the 2CV was the watercooled flat hemi twin.

The DS was an inline 4. Hemi on DS 19 and up.

I give up. 1960 something cars in California included so many oddball things it is impossible to keep track of them all. From a flathead Anglia to an MG-TC to a Vauxhal(sp?) it seems there is or was one of everything in this state at some point.

A lot of them were pulled off the road on safety and emissions.
They were getting very hard to insure. And in the US they were sold as luxury cars. Most Americans, in a car that cost as much as a Cadillac, were looking for V-8 power, airconditioning, and fresh style. Citroen did none of these things on the DS. Styling was updated sporadically, power never graduated beyond I4 (though an I6 was planned), and air conditioning? Hmmmph. Not happening.

SM was in a different class. But they, too, didn't attract the customers Citroen expected in the US.

Today, both DS and SM models are collectors items. Of the auto museums I frequent, each has an SM. Pristine DS's have sold for $200,000 and up.

LOL! Well, you ARE in the land of the Movie Business. Where vintage, collector and exotic cars are pretty much an industry.

You should go to the British Car Union meets around here. You'd be stunned at how many models show up, including 3-wheel Moggies, 3 cylinder Berkeleys and every incarnation of MG you could imagine.
Including a stretch "B."

And damned near everyone of them from about 1930-1980 have in-dash shortwave radios.

USB 2.0

Note -if- your Connectors and Cables have this LOGO on them :

Then they are most likely USB 3.0 and will work with all the earlier {slower} USB 1.0 & 2.0 'stuff'.

Those were just examples. There are many old rigs, Icom's 706 has gone through 3 or 4 generations, the low power version (703) has gone through 2 or 3, Alinco and Kenwood have also made similar rigs, Yaseu has made 2 versions of the 817 and so on.

While the new ones are expensive, some of the older ones may be available a lot cheaper.

Depending upon which one you get, you can get various filter options or DSP.

For example, there were two Kenwood TS-50s HF rigs which sold on eBay for less than $500 in the last week. While I am not a fan of eBay, that should be a good guage of the price.

An original (no DSP) IC-706 sold for around the same price. It adds VHF coverage and possibly can be used as a scanner. The latest version (mark IIG) includes VHF and UHF, DSP and receives from .03-199 and 400-470 MHz.

The ICOM and Kenwood are two piece units, the front panel comes off and can be mounted in the passenger compartment, while the transmitter is mounted in the trunk. The Yaseu is one single unit.

USB supports following signaling rates:

* A low speed rate of 1.5 Mbit/s is defined by USB 1.0. It is very similar to "full speed" operation except each bit takes 8 times as long to transmit. It is intended primarily to save cost in low-bandwidth human interface devices (HID) such as keyboards, mice, and joysticks.
* The full speed rate of 12 Mbit/s is the basic USB data rate defined by USB 1.1. All USB hubs support full speed.
* A hi-speed (USB 2.0) rate of 480 Mbit/s was introduced in 2001.
All hi-speed devices are capable of falling back to full-speed operation if necessary; they are backward compatible.

Connectors are identical.

* A SuperSpeed (USB 3.0) rate of 5.0 Gbit/s. The USB 3.0 specification was released by Intel and partners in August 2008, according to early reports from CNET news. The first USB 3 controller chips were sampled by NEC May 2009 [11] and products using the 3.0
specification are expected to arrive beginning in Q3 2009 and 2010.[12] USB 3.0 connectors are generally backwards compatible, but include new wiring and full duplex operation. There is some incompatibility with older connectors.

You belong to a collective of thieves.... if you vote to take money from people for no need other than redistribution, it's not even constitutional. It's just stealing.

If you belong to a lynch mob you are a murderer, if you belong to a redistribution mob, then you are a thief.

No matter who you think is right or wrong or how many agree, the constitution lays out the laws and using a mob to break the law is not a way to hide from the laws.

"BB",

Grounds at a 'Remote' DXing Spot -wrt-Making the Ground 'Connection' During a Mobile DXing Field Trip.

You drive up to a Rest-Stop, Camp Ground and Attach a Ground Clamp to some piece of Metal {Pipe} coming out of the Ground.

-or- Road-Side Marker with Metal Pole and Cement Footing + Just add {pour} a Gallon Jug of Water with a Once of Salt in it on the base and around the earth.

Ready Make Mobile "Ground Clamp" : One-Half [Black] of a Set of 12 VDC Battery 'Jumper Cables'.
-tip- Don't forget it whenb you leave.

An alternative would be to use a 30~45 piece of Bare-Copper-Wire that you roll-out and lay directly on the bare earth {ground} as a Counterpoise.

Last pick your favorite 'remote' DXing spot and install a 4 Foot Ground Rod or a buried Bare Copper Wire Counterpoise for you to use when you are 'there'.

Bottom line, boy, no matter what you clown 'tards dream up, there will always be something to listen to.

I've heard your doom and gloom stories since I re-entered the hobby circa 1981, and I've always found something of interest to listen to,

Some of the Founders (notably Jefferson) advocated taxing the shit out of rich people to prevent the establishment of a permanent aristocracy in the USA. They were quite radical in this regard. You tax rich people to prevent them from becoming too powerful. "Redistribution" is an end result, but not the motivation, (which is the preservation of our style of government.)

As someone who has worked in the international broadcasting field for more than 30 years, it's my opinion that shortwave, used for international broadcasting, will indeed pass away.

It's certainly no joy for me to say that, as I was one of those group of kids who grew up with SW in his veins -- and in fact, I still have the addiction even in these days of rapid decline for SW.

But there is just no way that ANYONE in coming years will choose SW over other broadcast media. And the promise of DRM has faded as well.

As a Perseus owner, I have to say that even SDR (Software Defined Radios), in so far as they are used to receive shortwave broadcasts, are already becoming pretty much useless given rapidly declining number of broadcasts available -- perhaps Amateur Radio Operators and intelligence agencies will continue to find SDR useful.

I predict it will pretty much be WIFI/Internet delivery, leaving those of us who cut our teeth with DX-160's, SONYs and Hammarlunds, riding what remains of SWBC until the end.

Sorry to be such a downer, but that's the reality. On the bright side, just think of how many great radios will be available for a song!

I've done NDB DFing with the loop. It works great for that purpose.
However, it is better to use a smaller loop. I find 2ft on a side works best for DFing. I have a setup with a holder for a compass. That loop uses copper pipe.

Regarding shortwave radios in the car, the specs on the Sony are pretty poor. I'm not sure it was targeted for the US market, where there is little good shortwave to hear, other than VOA. I've seen people mount those DC to daylight radios in the car under the dash for shortwave.

No, we always smell that way.

If, as you suggest, Americans are spoiled, it's only because we've built a culture where such expectations are possible. That doesn't happen where a high standard of living is not the norm.

If it's true that Americans are spoiled, then it's also true that we've earned the right through our efforts and successes to be spoiled.

Whether being spoiled is right or wrong is a matter of personal conscience.

The constitution says what limits government has by giving it a few powers and the rest are for the State and the people.

There is no power for the Federal Government to spend on anything but Federal Government, there is no provision to give money to "the people".
When spending is out of jurisdiction, it is the same as taxing out of the Federal governments jurisdiction, it's unconstitutional.

The constitution doesn't say congress may spend on what ever they want,
it prescribes the limits.

There is no Constitutional redistribution.... what ever they "talked about" it is irrelevant if it's not in the constitution as a power prescribed to the United States which in the constitution is actually
"the United States Government" known today as the Federal government.

I can imagine, I'm aware of your setup. After reading this thread I think I may put a receiver back in my car with a 108" ( I think) steel whip. That is the best antenna for shortwave that I found. I tried everything under the sun and the steel whip is hands down the best drill a hole through their rear quarter panel - but I have and Ha! Yeah, back when I had my "fun car" with six antennas, I'd always hear the response from truck drivers. I had my regular car antenna in the front that I replaced with a larger - more sturdy antenna. I had three scanner antennas, one antenna each on the far outside corner of the trunk drilled through the trunk lid and the other antenna was a glass mount that I put directly in the middle of the rear window. Then I had a seven and a half foot skipshooter mounted (drilled through) right in the middle of the trunk and lastly - the 108" steel whip on the rear quarter panel.

I think I may go more covert this time around, the only problem would be the shortwave antenna.

Ah, I saw the google link. I tried to Tims and other versions of coupling, that's why I purchased the longer and tougher radio antenna to begin with. It definitely is better than any other antenna for shortwave except for the steel whip. Anyone who has used a steel whip knows that it has no peers when it comes to shortwave listening in a vehicle, of course that is just my opinion but if there's better I want to know.

Yeah, I have gone "old school" for fifteen years when it comes to AM car radio. I don't really listen to music so I make sure to go to the junk yard and find me an old (just AM) radio that I install myself. I am presently using an old Delco radio that is "extremely" selective, I can barely turn the dial without hearing something.

I had all (in my fun car) the receivers/scanners and CB mounted to 1/2" steel plates that I welded to the front and rear of the car. GROUND - GROUND - GROUND - many think it's only important for transmitting but it's also smart on the receiving end.

I only wish I could find a 108" whip to buy in this country. All I find are center or base loads, good, of course, for only one narrow band. I have a nice CB I'd like to put in one of our vehicles (they even allow you to use FM modulation here!).

I also have a DC to daylight Kenwood RZ-1. 500 KHz - 824 MHz. Thing even gets FM stereo, and, get this: I can receive TELEVISION, yes, EVEN the VIDEO! It's not exactly HD quality, but it could spew NTSC/PAL/SECAM video from an RCA connector on the back. Probably does a better job on SS. Looks like it could even be mounted in-dash in a DIN sized hole, and look for practical purposes like any car stereo (nice for states that don't like you to be able to receive police calls, etc.).

Unfortunately, neither of our cars uses a DIN size radio, and I'd probably be disowned if I pulled out the CD player to put it in anyway. :)

That was a great post Peter. I liked the guardrail story.:-)

My friend hooked onto the railroad tracks once before keying up a lot of wattage on his CB, he used the RR tracks as his ground.<shaking my head>

I really never thought about hooking to the RR tracks for a shortwave antenna, what do you think the results would be?
What type of car were you refering to when you said "308"?? Just curious.

but, you seem to think it's OK for a wall street investor to "invest" a retiree's money into a system that leaves the wall street investor with earnings of several $$million$$ of tax free money at the expense of the retiree's account because the retiree is incapable of understanding the sophistication of the investment created by the banking system?

There is nothing that your limpballs GOP leader of the do-nothing-party-of-NO can say that will make me (or anybody of reason) believe this is OK for our country. Remember, he is one of them with $$millions$$ and your not.

I have an investment for you! what's your phone number?

Just so you know Bill, you can listen and drive without fading if you're listening to a powerhouse. I listened to China's show from the beginning on my way to Columbus and some hams for the rest of my hour and twenty minute drive from Cincinnati.

Like I said earlier, the best way to ground IMO your receiver or transceiver is too run to the hardware store or your junk box and pickup a quarter to half inch piece of metal/steel and drill the appropriate size hole and weld it to the frame of your car. If you don't know how to weld or don't have a arc welder....go to any body shop. Either they'll do it for free or throw them a twenty spot and it's done. Ground - ground and more ground is my motto. Good luck and let us know what you do.

I'd focus first on deporting clown 'tards, as they don't seem to adapt well to living on a moist green island, they rather prefer a more dry granular material beneath their feet.

Not in Norway, it isn't any longer. They have just been granted access to the whole band. They now have a secondary allocation at 5.260 to 5.410MHz, all modes with a 6kHz maximum bandwidth.

You make me laugh.:-D Of course your cars don't use a DIN size radio ( though I have absolutely no idea what you are talking about) that would be too easy.

What would you use the whip for? For your CB or shortwave? You may want to test the strength of your love by pulling out the CD player. ;-)

ISO 7736
From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

International standard ISO 7736 defines a standard size for car audio head units. The standard was originally established by the German standards body Deutsches Institut fï¿½r Normung as DIN 75490, and is therefore commonly referred to as the "DIN car radio size". It was adopted as an international standard in 1984.

Head units generally come in either single DIN (180 x 50 mm panel) or double DIN (180 x 100 mm panel) size. The depth is not standardized. The US standard for a DIN radio is 2" x 7" and the Double DIN sized radio is a 4" x 7".

DIN standards have been around for ages but, since it is of German origin, may not be popular in some parts of the world. My TV uses DIN connectors and a couple of my radios use them as well. From what I am told, all European cars use DIN connectors for diagnostic equipment. No doubt the signals appearing on those connectors conform to DIN standards as well.

Ha, I would like to take the credit for it. But I can't. ;-)
Some people install their toggles in the back, I asume out of fear of messing up the front panel.
But it was done beautifully, looks like it came that way from the factory. The knobs tuning marks were painted with a real high gloss white, really stands out especially in contrast with the black grained contact paper on the top and sides. The idea of adding lead to the tuning knob was brilliant, I really didn't like the feel of the dial, absolutely no weight whatsoever - problem solved.

I doubt SW will ever become totally obsolete. It's enough cheaper to recieve (compared to satelite or Internet transmission) that broadcasts to the developing world are likely to continue for a long time and it's enough cheaper to transmit (for semi-developed countries like Russia which have all the gear, but don't have massive amounts of dirt-cheap Internet bandwidth capacity) that they'll continue broadcasting for quite some time too. It's a shame that the great Western European broadcasters no longer beam a signal at North America, but as long as you stay away from the new and just listen to the music and cultural programming, stuff like Voice of Russia, RCI and Radio Havan is pretty fun.

The power of taxation has traditionally been used to limit corporate

Great car. As I recall it was a 308GTBI, or like that? I went to the factory and saw them built right along with my once loved FIAT X1/9 !!!

Not sure. That would be the fun of the experiment. It may be little different than the guard rail. It may be something entirely different. The results should be unexpected and dramatic.

DIN stands for 'Deutsches Institut fï¿½r Normung,' or the German Institute for Standardization.

In this particular case it refers to standard: DIN ISO 7736, size standard for car audio head units.

It's the standard for most European and many American head unit dash mounting applications.

Magnum's was a 308 GTS. The 'B' was for the Berlinetta, the hard top, and 'I' was for injection. His was a GTS(pyder), carbureted.

Mine was the 308 GTSI-QV. Mine was injected, 32 valve on the same 3.0L V-8. It wasn't quick, but it was FAST. And serious fun to drive.

You had an X1/9? Excellent.

On the Rolls it was called a "hydro-static" suspension. They went from having it on all 4 wheels in the early shadows to just on the rear for the later ones. Rolls didn't let you adjust the height manually - it just leveled it. This meant you also needed an actual jack instead of a metal bar to change a flat. (But the jack was stupid nice)

Had to use Castrol brake fluid that mentioned it was approved by Girling in those cars. (the system used the brake fluid)

Mechanics have to be careful servicing those systems as the accumulator has explosive pressure.

The shadows would squeal a bit on hard cornering, but they held the road pretty nicely for a 6000 pound car. Our mechanic told me squealing tires was the car's way to let you know you were driving with enough spirit to keep things from atrophying.

What I miss the most about that car was the massive trunk with a flat floor. The EPA claimed it had a 14 cu ft trunk - I'm guessing that was the largest size refrigerator they could fit in it. It would be great for hauling my telescopes and radio equipment to star parties.

Sounds like the autolevelling torsion bars of Packard, years ago.

I remember that part. I only worked on two of these, and that was years ago. Both Shadows, as you point out.

LOL! Nice way to think about it.

They really are overbuilt. With considerable performance power.
At a track event with the Ferrari Club, a guy showed up in a Bentley and took the track with the Ferraris. He held his own, too.

Until the #1 turn.

Damn! Now THAT's some nice hauling. Sucks to have to make-do like that.

Yeah, metallic black, 1979 version as I recall, with the more integrated bumpers. A great car, put at least 170k plus on it from coast to coast.

Lead...tuning knob...good idea.

Is there a link to photos of these mods?

4234. Chapter Mary of the Quran

Chapter Mary of the Quran

In the Name of Allâh, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful.

1. Kâf HâYâ'AînSâd.

[These letters are one of the miracles of the Qur'ân, and none but Allâh (Alone) knows their meanings].

2. (This is) a mention of the mercy of your Lord to His slave Zakariya (Zachariah).

3. When he called out his Lord (Allâh) a call in secret,

4. Saying: "My Lord! Indeed my bones have grown feeble, and grey hair has spread on my head, And I have never been unblest in my invocation to You, O my Lord!

5. "And Verily! I fear my relatives after me, since my wife is barren.
So give me from Yourself an heir,

6. "Who shall inherit me, and inherit (also) the posterity of Ya'qûb (Jacob) (inheritance of the religious knowledge and Prophethood, not the wealth, etc.). And make him, my Lord, one with whom You are Well-pleased!".

7. (Allâh said) "O Zakariya (Zachariah)! Verily, We give you the glad tidings of a son, His name will be Yahya (John). We have given that name to none before (him)."

8. He said: "My Lord! How can I have a son, when my wife is barren, and I have reached the extreme old age."

9. He said: "So (it will be). Your Lord says; It is easy for Me. Certainly I have created you before, when you had been nothing!"

10. [Zakariya (Zachariah)] said: "My Lord! Appoint for me a sign." He said: "Your sign is that you shall not speak unto mankind for three nights, though having no bodily defect."

11. Then he came out to his people from Al-Mihrâb (a praying place or a private room, etc.), he told them by signs to glorify Allâh's Praises in the morning and in the afternoon.

12. (It was said to his son): "O Yahya (John)! Hold fast the Scripture
[the Taurât (Torah)]." And We gave him wisdom while yet a child.

13. And (made him) sympathetic to men as a mercy (or a grant) from Us, and pure from sins [i.e. Yahya (John)] and he was righteous,

14. And dutiful towards his parents, and he was neither an arrogant nor disobedient (to Allâh or to his parents).

15. And Salâmun (peace) be on him the day he was born, the day he dies, and the day he will be raised up to life (again)!

16. And mention in the Book (the Qur'ân, O Muhammad SAW , the story of) Maryam (Mary), when she withdrew in seclusion from her family to a place facing east.

17. She placed a screen (to screen herself) from them; then We sent to her Our Ruh [angel Jibrael (Gabriel)], and he appeared before her in the form of a man in all respects.

18. She said: "Verily! I seek refuge with the Most Beneficent (Allâh) from you, if you do fear Allâh."

19. (The angel) said: "I am only a Messenger from your Lord, (to announce) to you the gift of a righteous son."

20. She said: "How can I have a son, when no man has touched me, nor am I unchaste?"

21. He said: "So (it will be), your Lord said: 'That is easy for Me (Allâh): And (We wish) to appoint him as a sign to mankind and a mercy from Us (Allâh), and it is a matter (already) decreed, (by Allâh).' "

22. So she conceived him[], and she withdrew with him to a far place (i.e. Bethlehem valley about 4-6 miles from Jerusalem).

23. And the pains of childbirth drove her to the trunk of a date-palm.
She said: "Would that I had died before this, and had been forgotten and out of sight!"

24. Then [the babe 'Iesa (Jesus) or Jibrael (Gabriel)] cried unto her from below her, saying: "Grieve not! Your Lord has provided a water stream under you;

25. "And shake the trunk of date-palm towards you, it will let fall fresh ripe-dates upon you."

26. "So eat and drink and be glad, and if you see any human being, say: 'Verily! I have vowed a fast unto the Most Beneficent (Allâh) so I shall not speak to any human being this day.'"

27. Then she brought him (the baby) to her people, carrying him. They said: "O Mary! Indeed you have brought a thing Fariya (an unheard mighty thing).

28. "O sister (i.e. the like) of Hârûn (Aaron) [not the brother of Mûsa (Moses), but he was another pious man at the time of Maryam (Mary)]! Your father was not a man who used to commit adultery, nor your mother was an unchaste woman."

29. Then she pointed to him. They said: "How can we talk to one who is a child in the cradle?[]"

30. "He ['Iesa (Jesus)] said: Verily! I am a slave of Allâh, He has given me the Scripture and made me a Prophet;[]"

31. "And He has made me blessed wheresoever I be, and has enjoined on me Salât (prayer), and Zakât, as long as I live."

32. "And dutiful to my mother, and made me not arrogant, unblest.

33. "And Salâm (peace) be upon me the day I was born, and the day I die, and the day I shall be raised alive!"

34. Such is 'Iesa (Jesus), son of Maryam (Mary). (it is) a statement of truth, about which they doubt (or dispute).

35. It befits not (the Majesty of) Allâh that He should beget a son [this refers to the slander of Christians against Allâh, by saying that 'Iesa (Jesus) is the son of Allâh]. Glorified (and Exalted be He above all that they associate with Him). When He decrees a thing, He only says to it, "Be!" and it is[].

36. ['Iesa (Jesus) said]: "And verily Allâh is my Lord and your Lord. So worship Him (Alone). That is the Straight Path. (Allâh's Religion of Islâmic Monotheism which He did ordain for all of His Prophets)." [Tafsir At-Tabarî]

37. Then the sects differed [i.e. the Christians about 'Iesa (Jesus) <><>], so woe unto the disbelievers [those who gave false witness by saying that 'Iesa (Jesus) is the son of Allâh] from the meeting of a great Day (i.e. the Day of Resurrection, when they will be thrown in the blazing Fire)[].

38. How clearly will they (polytheists and disbelievers in the Oneness of Allâh) see and hear, the Day when they will appear before Us! But the Zalimûn (polytheists and wrong-doers) today are in plain error.

39. And warn them (O Muhammad SAW) of the Day of grief and regrets, when the case has been decided, while (now) they are in a state of carelessness, and they believe not[].

40. Verily! We will inherit the earth and whatsoever is thereon. And to Us they all shall be returned,

41. And mention in the Book (the Qur'ân) Ibrâhim (Abraham). Verily! He was a man of truth, a Prophet.

42. When he said to his father: "O my father! Why do you worship that which hears not, sees not and cannot avail you in anything?

43. "O my father! Verily! There has come to me of knowledge that which came not unto you. So follow me. I will guide you to a Straight Path.

44. "O my father! Worship not Shaitân (Satan). Verily! Shaitân (Satan) has been a rebel against the Most Beneficent (Allâh).

45. "O my father! Verily! I fear lest a torment from the Most Beneficent (Allâh) overtake you, so that you become a companion of Shaitân (Satan) (in the Hell-fire)." [Tafsir Al-Qurtubî]

46. He (the father) said: "Do you reject my gods, O Ibrâhim (Abraham)?
If you stop not (this), I will indeed stone you. So get away from me safely before I punish you."

47. Ibrâhim (Abraham) said: "Peace be on you! I will ask Forgiveness of my Lord for you. Verily! He is unto me, Ever Most Gracious.

48. "And I shall turn away from you and from those whom you invoke besides Allâh. And I shall call on my Lord; and I hope that I shall not be unblest in my invocation to my Lord."

49. So when he had turned away from them and from those whom they worshipped besides Allâh, We gave him Ishâque (Isaac) and Ya'qûb (Jacob), and each one of them We made a Prophet.

50. And We gave them of Our Mercy (a good provision in plenty), and We granted them honour on the tongues (of all the nations, i.e everybody remembers them with a good praise).[]

51. And mention in the Book (this Qur'ân) Mûsa (Moses). Verily! He was chosen and he was a Messenger (and) a Prophet.

52. And We called him from the right side of the Mount, and made him draw near to Us for a talk with him [Mûsa (Moses)].

53. And We bestowed on him his brother Hârûn (Aaron), (also) a Prophet, out of Our Mercy.

54. And mention in the Book (the Qur'ân) Ismâ'il (Ishmael). Verily! He was true to what he promised, and he was a Messenger, (and) a Prophet.

55. And he used to enjoin on his family and his people As-Salât (the prayers) and the Zakât, and his Lord was pleased with him.

56. And mention in the Book (the Qur'ân) Idris (Enoch).Verily! He was a man of truth, (and) a Prophet.

57. And We raised him to a high station.

58. Those were they unto whom Allâh bestowed His Grace from among the Prophets, of the offspring of Adam, and of those whom We carried (in the ship) with Nûh (Noah), and of the offspring of Ibrâhim (Abraham) and Israel and from among those whom We guided and chose. When the Verses of the Most Beneficent (Allâh) were recited unto them, they fell down prostrating and weeping.[]

59. Then, there has succeeded them a posterity who have given up As-Salât (the prayers) [i.e. made their Salât (prayers) to be lost, either by not offering them or by not offering them perfectly or by not offering them in their proper fixed times, etc.] and have followed lusts.[] So they will be thrown in Hell.

60. Except those who repent and believe (in the Oneness of Allâh and His Messenger Muhammad SAW), and work righteousness[]. Such will enter Paradise and they will not be wronged in aught.

61. (They will enter) 'Adn (Eden) Paradise (everlasting Gardens), which the Most Beneficent (Allâh) has promised to His slaves in the unseen: Verily! His Promise must come to pass.

62. They shall not hear therein (in Paradise) any Laghw (dirty, false, evil vain talk), but only Salâm (salutations of peace). And they will have therein their sustenance, morning and afternoon. [See (V. 40:55)].

63. Such is the Paradise which We shall give as an inheritance to those of Our slaves who have been Al-Muttaqûn (pious and righteous persons - See V.2:2).

64. And we (angels) descend not except by the Command of your Lord (O Muhammad SAW). To Him belongs what is before us and what is behind us, and what is between those two, and your Lord is never forgetful,

65. Lord of the heavens and the earth, and all that is between them, so worship Him (Alone) and be constant and patient in His worship. Do you know of any who is similar to Him? (of course none is similar or coequal or comparable to Him, and He has none as partner with Him). [There is nothing like unto Him and He is the All-Hearer, the All-Seer]

66. And man (the disbeliever) says: "When I am dead, shall I then be raised up alive?"

67. Does not man remember that We created him before, while he was nothing?

68. So by your Lord, surely, We shall gather them together, and (also) the Shayâtin (devils) (with them), then We shall bring them round Hell on their knees.

69. Then indeed We shall drag out from every sect all those who were worst in obstinate rebellion against the Most Beneficent (Allâh).

70. Then, verily, We know best those who are most worthy of being burnt therein.

71. There is not one of you but will pass over it (Hell); this is with your Lord; a Decree which must be accomplished[].

72. Then We shall save those who use to fear Allâh and were dutiful to Him. And We shall leave the Zâlimûn (polytheists and wrongdoers, etc.)
therein (humbled) to their knees (in Hell).

73. And when Our Clear Verses are recited to them, those who disbelieve (the rich and strong among the pagans of Quraish who live a life of luxury) say to those who believe (the weak, poor companions of Prophet Muhammad SAW who have a hard life): "Which of the two groups (i.e. believers and disbelievers) is best in (point of) position and as regards station (place of council for consultation)."

74. And how many a generation (past nations) have We destroyed before them, who were better in wealth, goods and outward appearance?

75. Say (O Muhammad SAW) whoever is in error, the Most Beneficent (Allâh) will extend (the rope) to him, until, when they see that which they were promised, either the torment or the Hour, they will come to know who is worst in position, and who is weaker in forces. [This is the answer for the Verse No.19:73]

76. And Allâh increases in guidance those who walk aright [true believers in the Oneness of Allâh who fear Allâh much (abstain from all kinds of sins and evil deeds which He has forbidden), and love Allâh much (perform all kinds of good deeds which He has ordained)].
And the righteous good deeds that last, are better with your Lord, for reward and better for resort.

77. Have you seen him who disbelieved in Our Ayât (this Qur'ân and Muhammad SAW) and (yet) says: "I shall certainly be given wealth and children [if I will be alive (again)],"

78. Has he known the unseen or has he taken a covenant from the Most Beneficent (Allâh)?

79. Nay! We shall record what he says, and We shall increase his torment (in the Hell);

80. And We shall inherit from him (at his death) all that he talks of (i.e. wealth and children which We have bestowed upon him in this world), and he shall come to Us alone.

81. And they have taken (for worship) âliha (gods) besides Allâh, that they might give them honour, power and glory (and also protect them from Allâh's Punishment etc.).

82. Nay, but they (the so-called gods) will deny their worship of them, and become opponents to them (on the Day of Resurrection).

83. See you not that We have sent the Shayâtin (devils) against the disbelievers to push them to do evil.

84. So make no haste against them; We only count out to them a (limited) number (of the days of the life of this world and delay their term so that they may increase in evil and sins).

85. The Day We shall gather the Muttaqûn (pious - see V.2:2) unto the Most Beneficent (Allâh), like a delegate (presented before a king for honour).

86. And We shall drive the Mujrimûn (polytheists, sinners, criminals, disbelievers in the Oneness of Allâh, etc.) to Hell, in a thirsty state (like a thirsty herd driven down to water),

87. None shall have the power of intercession, but such a one as has received permission (or promise) from the Most Beneficent (Allâh).

88. And they say: "The Most Beneficent (Allâh) has begotten a son (or offspring or children) [as the Jews say: 'Uzair (Ezra) is the son of Allâh, and the Christians say that He has begotten a son ['Iesa (Christ) <><>], and the pagan Arabs say that He has begotten daughters (angels, etc.)]."

89. Indeed you have brought forth (said) a terrible evil thing.

90. Whereby the heavens are almost torn, and the earth is split asunder, and the mountains fall in ruins,

91. That they ascribe a son (or offspring or children) to the Most Beneficent (Allâh).

92. But it is not suitable for (the Majesty of) the Most Beneficent (Allâh) that He should beget a son (or offspring or children).

93. There is none in the heavens and the earth but comes unto the Most Beneficent (Allâh) as a slave.

94. Verily, He knows each one of them, and has counted them a full counting.

95. And everyone of them will come to Him alone on the Day of Resurrection (without any helper, or protector or defender).

96. Verily, those who believe [in the Oneness of Allâh and in His Messenger (Muhammad SAW)] and work deeds of righteousness, the Most Beneficent (Allâh) will bestow love for them[] (in the hearts of the believers).

97. So We have made this (the Qur'ân) easy in your own tongue (O Muhammad SAW), only that you may give glad tidings to the Muttaqûn (pious and righteous persons - See V.2:2), and warn with it the Ludda [] (most quarrelsome) people.

98. And how many a generation before them have We destroyed! Can you (O Muhammad SAW) find a single one of them or hear even a whisper of them?

That's actually pretty good for that engine. It wasn't known for longevity.

170k is a serious amount of driving fun. I'd say you got your money out of it. You got everybody's money out of it.

Nicely done.

TMT, all of these modifications to the DX-394, with the exception of the addition of the contact paper on the top and sides, are fully described and illustrated on the website of the RADIOSHACKDX394 forum of which you are already a member. On subscribing, you should have automatically received the Master Index of Mods (around 100 listed) with a summary of the benefits, scope of work involved and links for each to the files, messages, photos, external websites where they are fully described.

Some earlier response slagged the DX-394 as being unstable and unable to hold its alignment. That is not the common experience. I have three and they have all held alignment well over several years. The radio has excellent stability over the short and long term with the exception of slight pulling as the RF gain varies due to manual or AGC action, corrected in the B version. There are only three versions, as I have informed you elsewhere, and as you have described here: the original, the "A" with the same pc board but with kluged on revisions to the BFO and to the AGC, and the "B" with a redesigned main pcb incorporating the "A" revisions plus the addition of the buffer amp between the 2nd LO and the 2nd Mixer.

To correct another piece of misinformation, there is no tuning backlash that I am aware of unless somebody loaded up the tuning knob with eccentrically placed weights. "Controls feel cheap"? They still work as new on my three, which is more than can be said for my much younger and less used Kaito 1103 main tuning shaft encoder. And I've always thought that weighting down the 394's main tuning knob was ill-advised - the DX-394 has better ways of jumping to a far frequency than by fly-wheeling this knob and putting extra wear and tear on the encoder because of the added weight.

The unemployment rate would have been more then twice as high if there were no stimulus package. In just a few months, the Obama administration was able to save the nation from the the destruction the overspending that the GOP had done. Not bad for LESS THEN ONE year in office.

If we would have had McCan't in office, they would have done nothing as they are known as the hypocritical do-nothing-party-of-NO! O wait, they would have raised taxes with breaks for the rich.... Again!

beside, this website is a Corporate GOP funded FUD website. If you have a brain, use it and don't be lead by corporate dollars.

Thanks. The car always started with just a click of the key. Never a problem. It was the undercarriage that failed.

If you recall the design it had a trunk in the front as well as the rear. What happened to mine was that moisture up under the front apparently rotted out the area that supported the front struts.

I've only encountered dramatic rust like that once. On a Renault

Places where they use salt on the roads, bridges, wherever, Coastal areas too, in the Winter time, cars and trucks rust out pretty fast.(Rust Buckets, Rust never sleeps) Around here they use sand instead of salt.Howsomever, about a year or so ago, I read somewhere they might start mixing salt into the sand.That is a DUMB idea!

Y'all should look around under your vehicles every once in a while and spray that salt s.hit off of there.

I know that but I don't hide my email anyway. There is a short flurry of junk mail and as long as I don't click into one they think it is a dead address and give up.
Sandboxie looks like fun to play with but for now I am messing with virtual machines with VirtualBox and VMware server.
I have a tower (huge Antec) and about ten hard drives so I could in theory change OS's by changing the physical drive or booting from another drive.
Running Windows of any kind as the host puts your whole system at risk.
Dang.
Veering OT again.

Have you ever seen a Renault R-8?
They are lighter than VW bugs.
I had to put out about 300 pounds of dead lift to right the car and that is hardly Herculean.

I saw the CD slot and conclude that it is consumer fluff. I may be looking for something that doesn't exist, like a dedicated DX'ers type radio without surround sound, Dolby, or any bling garbage.

Fiat must have had a real issue with rust. I had a 128, cute little car.
Was driving it to work one day when it just stopped moving, but the engine was still running. Pushed it the rest of the way to work (only 4 blocks or so) and had a look at it. The front behind the bumper had rusted out and the strut that held the engine up and fallen, allowing the engine to drop, disengaging the transaxle from the wheels..

Fortunately, we had a metal shop where I worked at the time, and I was able to fabricate a fix and got to drive home.

That is what turned me off on the Sony, no real specs. What I want may not exist or may be relegated to an Ebay find. When I see consumer blather and no real data I turn away.

It's non-critical so I'm not pursuing it that hard.

Well, that sounds like a bad day. I've not had anything like THAT much fun. I did strip the splines off the input receiver on the torque converter of a '71 Torino, and went freewheeling through South St Louis one afternoon. But nothing like that kind of rust failure.

There for awhile, I guess FIAT was getting their engineers and manufacturing techniques from Peugeot: The cars showed rust on the showroom floor.

Sure saved a lot of time.

My uncle sold Peugeots and Renaults in the 50's and 60's. So, he always had one in the driveway. Fun little cars. Not exactly quality, but seriously fun little cars. One of the reasons I've always wanted a Dauphine. Pre rusted, or not.

Just so you know, this is going (eventually) into my 1966 Chrysler stealth hot rod and I am doing the engine right now so it will be a while. After 250,000 miles I finally need to bore the block of my trusty old 440 police engine. I bought the car in 1985 and can't bear to part with it. It's a tank, but a trusty and fast tank.

Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their Public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the Legislative Powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary Powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil Power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States:

For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefit of Trial by Jury:

For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences:

For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies

For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments:

For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation, and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & Perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Spoiled, to me, means Americans always want something done for them and not by them. It will be stopped soon enough by giving the country

The problem is he is correct. This country is a sinking ship right now and nobody wants to do anything to fix it. My personal standard of living is gone due to overcrowding and paving over all of my childhood

A friend of mine in 1976 had one of those and the routine was after work he would get a few people to help him push start the car. I never saw him use the starter.
When it was running it sounded like everything was about to fall off.
The last time I saw him he was still driving it, maybe waiting for the doors to actually fall off.

I didn't say 190, just well over 140. I gave up on a real number years ago when I realized that the tests were as much about how much education you got and not that much on the reasoning and abstract problem solving.

I would refuse to go to the White House to worship the parasites feeding off Americans while they contemplate on actually charging you rent in the name of health care for simply being a citizen. Scientific achievement? For what, almost 80% tax rates and then tell us how to live? Too much work, it's not worth it?

Gee, will the local "health panels" decide since all males over 35 don't need to reproduce, we'll just chop off their egg rolls? Hey, that would create jobs, huh? In other words, these plans violate our civil rights, and the first Black President is not saying a thing, he wants to turn the United States into a giant plantation?

I don't care if I rescue a group of people in a tragic accident, I would tell Congress and the White House it would be an insult to be present while those who hold office today invited me.

It is an insult to think that health care will be cheaper for employers if there is a government option? Those who advocate such concepts never point to the mass production of goods or services in the midst of costs cuts that have ever been proven in the past? Such propaganda is easily discovered for the lies that they are, because if such financial principals worked, there would be no market for labor unions?

Bah, Humbug.

Gee whiz, thanks a bunch mister!
I actually came here looking to see if anyone had any propagation data, equipment links or ideas, technical stuff, and found the typical news group, complete with resident jerks.
Mostly I am provoking to get people to put up links to some good sites that others may not know about.
Good links are my payoff in this group, insults are secondary.

Rolls Royce engines and transmissions are based on Buick V8 engines, or they used to be.

Speaking about FIAT, (Fabrica Italiano Automobili Turino, sumpin like that anyway) that married Irish woman wayyyyyyyy over yonder across the big pond, she drives a 2007 Fiat Punto Grande 1400 car.She once said onetime when she was getting something out of the car she leaned on the steering wheel and the car started talking to her.(some sort of a talking computer thingy) I reckon she likes her car OK, I haven't heard herself complaning about her car.

Some things we take for granted in new cars nowadays were first invented and developed by Fiat and other foreign auto manufacturers.

Fiat provided rust as a factory fitment, not an optional extra, back in the seventies. That said, I owned 3 of the 128s, the last being the 3P, a nice little hatchback bought new in 1977. I kept the hatch the longest, passing it on to one of my nephews in about 2000. Apart from a couple of stretched valves, a common habit I'm told, we did nothing to the engine in 200,000 kilometres. Only rust it seemed to have was around the hatch glass. It was still a runner when my nephew onsold it to someone in N.S.W. about 2 or 3 years back. I rarely drove it in all the time we had it as I had a work supplied vehicle for most of my working life. It was just a glorified family shopping trolley. Probably did less than 3,000 of the odometer total and a thousand of that was when we delivered it to my nephew in another state. It was on that trip that I discovered the standard fitment radio had good AM dx qualities. Picked up stations from all over when we were miles from any nearby towns. Could even pick up Melbourne station from the middle of N.S.W. Don't know what brand it was but suspect it was some Italian variant. All the electrics on the Fiat were Italian manufacture so reasonable to assume the radio was as well.

Where's the proof? GM transmissions are so bad they would tarnish the image of Rolls Royce. As for Buick V8 engines they were nothing exceptional. During the war the UK had to pull the Allison engines from the P-51 Mustangs and put in Rolls Royce Merlins to get any real performance.

Rolls Royce Factory in America

Rolls Royce's ''official explanation'' was that Rolls Royce wasen't selling enough cars in America.TRUTH is though, the Rolls Royce cars which were made in America were better and more reliable than the Rolls Royce cars made in Limeyland.

I have stacks and stacks of hardback books here about antique and vintage and classic cars.I read about it in one of my books.

As soon as all the people in the third world get computers and broadband connections you will see SWL broadcasting go away. We will see a lot less of English broadcasts to NA, but plenty of broadcasts to other parts of the world that don't use the English language.

That's sweet. Even better then. Are you planning on keeping a radio in there from the 60's era?

You could just go to the MFJ web site. There you will find the converter, a download link for the manual and a place to send them a message asking them any question you want. You can also call them.

It would be an insult to be invited to go to the White House if you were either smart or stupid. I must apologize since the concept was apparently so confusing for you. Resistance is futile, the biological and technical uniqueness of the Democrats will be assimilated by the truth, they will comply.

So you wish GW was back in the White House? I picked up a copy of the movie Celsius 41.11 at a garage sale for a buck. But of course only communist sympathizers would cheer for a guy that made a movie with a bundle of dynamite in his hand, super imposed in front the White House, with assorted signs showing GW as Hitler, and yet, guess who is trying to pass a health care plan that would "reward the young" and would make Hitler proud?

The Demo Crap Party?

It will be fun "reviewing" the movie and then writing about it.

Bah, Humbug. (the frequency at which communications are intercepted coming from a black berry (hummm bug)).

They are all over the internet. There is a Yahoo group just for the DX-394 that I joined back in the day.
But yeah, just type in "DX-394 Mods" and you're off.

Hey Tom :-) Yeah, on the tuning knob, there was just enough put in to give it a tad of weight, not too much.
I didn't want the extra weight to go spinning around, I just change the 'step' and problem solved there.

Is there another forum that has been added somewhere on this piece?
I'll check it out. Is this T.Holden by chance?

I was actually quite fortunate that it let go where it did in Muskegon, MI. On a certain city street there one has (or had) to cross four or five railroad tracks in rather rapid succession, at not a high rate of speed. It let go then.

Another two or three miles and I would have been on the highway to home probably doing 70 MPH.
Had it all came apart then I might not be here now.

I don't do news. I do live variety shows, awards shows, tributes, conventions, half-time shows, etc; stuff with lots of production values on the quick.

They were pissed because the British East India company was getting unfair tax breaks, allowing them to undercut local merchants' prices, particularly for tea. When the British East India company's tea ended up in Boston Harbor, the English typically responded with hostility and things just kind of snowballed from there.

So I guess locating in the Third World part of America makes sense until a hailstorm wrecks a million dollars worth of car bodies?

Why not Arizona? It's an open shop state with very tiny hail stones.
Gov. Barbour must get these French (Nissan is a French company, BTW)

I use Panda Cloud. I do not put anything crucial on a Windows machine.

My files are stored on external drives. My current OS is Puppy 4.20, I use that for my main computer and for my ham computer. I have a Netbook with XP and use Windows at work. It is so lame and square. Microsoft is apparently run by nerds.

Yeah. I did get a lot of use out of that car though! And, it still had its original exhaust system on it.

A poor man's Ferrari!

Rolls Royce did use a couple of GM transmissions. A version of the 400 was in the Silver Shadow line. They also used a GM water pump - but these were not off the shelf GM parts - they were made at a price to Rolls Royce specs.

The Engine Cuhulin is thinking about is the 3.5l v8 that was used in the Rover 3500, the Triumph TR8, a version of the MGbGT that wasn't sold in the states, a couple of land rovers, and some limited production sports cars like the TVR Tasmin and at least one Marcos. It wasn't used by Rolls Royce.

At what price of efficiency and speed? People mock Microsoft because their shit is klunky. The company was built by acquisition of innovators, as opposed to innovating in-house. At their core they are insular and paranoid. Apple is only slightly better. I find the open-source world to be the most people-friendly of all. Yes, you need a brain to play in Linux land; conversely you get way more control over your complete IT environment.

Software, except for very specific business applications, should be free. People who build CPUs should give you the means to employ that CPU.

Why would any one, that is any sane person go to the White House to worship?

Geez, right wingers, thinking that the White House is a cathedral.
The Bushies really did a number on the stupid right wingers.

Indeed. I had a g/f years ago, with an X1/9. She couldn't keep it running for love or money. I spent a weekend going through that drive train and rebuilt everything I could put my hands on.

Fired it up and took it out for some break-in driving.

VERY serious fun. Not too unlike that 914/6 I was driving at the time.

I wouldn't mind owning one, myself, today.

The only thing I did to the car later on was remove the catalytic convertor and put some slightly larger jets in the carb.

It was indeed a very fun car and I miss it like I miss my Dodge Dakota.

Damn near got killed in the Dakota on a Saturday afternoon just minding my own business.

Only two cars, well maybe three, I ever had totalled. My Opel GT was also totalled by a gal who was 'running late'.

Foreign made, foreign name brands vehicles I have owned before, I still own one now, a 1976 made in Germany Hercules Moped, it has bicycle pedals on it.
1957 BMW Isetta car, 1961 VW van, 1963 VW beetle car, and a 1970 VW van.
I still have the big thick operators manual that came with the 1957 BMW Isetta car.

There is at least one, perhaps two nowadays, Rolls Royce manufacturing facilities here in the ''third World'' State of Mississippi.Turbine engines for Ships/Generators and Rolls Royce Ship Propellars for U.S.Navy Ships.
Also, a new factory is being built in Mississippi right now to manufacture composite jet engine fan blades for General Electric and Rolls Royce Jet engines.

California is a Beautiful State with ''Beautiful people'',,, but I believe most Californians are regular normal People.

That's kinda what happened with the Opel! Wasn't going very fast, the gal I could see was looking right at me in her station wagon, then suddenly pulled out from the stop sign. Nailed her right between the doors. Engine in the Opel was coming up through the dash. And, she had I think two kids in the rear seat.

I had just had the car rebuilt.

That's gotta hurt. I've only totalled one, myself. A '62 Studebaker GT Hawk. White over Riviera blue. 289 Quad/4 speed, floor shift, and Twin-Trak Spicer (Dana) 44 rear axel. About 10 years ago.
I'd just finished the restoration. Like 24 hours before. Was driving it to work when I was at CBS, and I got run into a bridge abutment by a guy in a Tundra who ran me off the road on the Ohio feeder.

Screw yer crumple zones. That 900lb cast iron block/tranny damned near wound up in my lap.

Almost bought one when I bought the 3P. Kids were getting too big by then so wasn't much use to the little woman as a shopping trolley. The X19 really is a 2 seater, definitely not a 2 + 2

Then the practical solution would be to let the wife take the station wagon, and you take the X1/9.

When I was married, we had three cars. A 4 seater sedan, her MG and my MG.

After I got divorced I had 7 cars. Lots of choices. Too much fun.

And a whole lot less maintenance.

Yep, Kramer had that idiot Johnson run out of Chiang Mai and the city thanked him for it. Note that Cheesy Bob doesn't post here any more?
Isn't that a blessing.

That picture was when Kramer dragged the self titled Pickle King down to the copshop. It was Bob harassing Kramer that got Bob run outta town!
Chiang Mai is a much better place without that drunken sot Bob.

While you're at it, take that other idiot Brett with you. He, like you, fact since he was deported from Thailand he doesn't post at all.

THAT IS A BLESSING.

Bob on the other hand still lives a relaxed lifestyle in Chiang Mai

I'm no longer limber enough to shoe-horn myself into a X1/9.

4329. Re: RCA RP7887 AM/FM Super Portable Radio (SuperRadio) - You Won't Believe This Price

The radio arrived a few days after I ordered it - and it was an OBVIOUS "return." You know the little tab which holds the cover in on a box? Generally it is stiff. Not this one - the box had obviously been opened and I said to myself, even before I got the radio out of the box, "This is a returned item." And it sure was! Plus, it was returned for a reason: the AM section did not function properly at all; even my local 50,000 Watt KYW NewsRadio 1060 kHz came in weakly and there was a great deal of hiss on all of the AM band.

So I contacted Amazon via their customer service e-mail and I explained that the radio was obviously "used" and returned. As I had ordered and paid for a new radio, I wished to exchange the one I received. I quickly received a shipping label (I had several choices: take it to a local UPS pick-up location, have UPS pick it up - both of these options free to me, or to return it though my local post office, for which I would have to pay postage which would be refunded. I chose to bring it to a local UPS store which is less than a mile away) and it was shipped and scheduled to arrive today, November 24 - and it did.

In the mean time, Amazon shipped another RCA Superradio to me and it too arrived today, November 24. This unit, a new one, is fine (though when I took it out of the box, the Power button had come loose and was askew. I thought, "Oh brother! If THIS one is defective too, I'm just going to ask for my money back." But when I pressed down on it, it seated itself properly and it seems to be okay. This radio also functions correctly. AM is excellent and good sounding (as is to be expected) and FM is fine too. By the way, this is not my first Superradio. I have the GE Superradio III version also as well as the Superradio I and II so I know how this radio is supposed to function.

Anyway, at $20.66 and with Amazon having to pay shipping three times, they certainly didn't make an money from THIS sale! But I got a bargain.

I suggest that anyone interested keep monitoring Amazon's site to check the price of this radio. Check a couple of times every day if you're interested. Maybe they'll offer it again at this low price, but I wouldn't hold my breath ...

Yeah, I think most of my current problem may just be due to the weather. Kinda damp it seems, and I'm sure that you as well as I will be getting some rain soon, at least according to the radar picture.

Not so! Antoinette was the first in 1902.The engines were used in

That engine slipped under my radar since a V-8 of that size is kind of a waste where a V-6 would fit that displacement nicely. It would never move a Rolls with any gusto.
Just to be somewhat radio related, what radios does a Rolls use?

I've never had a problem with security on Windows boxes. That's not the point. Just the fact that Windows stayed stuck on the single desktop for so long should tell you something.

The Windows world is like a red light district, heavy on panhandlers.

I need to find an original radio just for stock status since the previous owner took it out for an 8 track combo or something. Right now I have an AM radio from a 1973 Dart pulling that duty. Anything I put in the car beyond a stock radio will be on a quick release so it can come in with me at night.

I have seen converters like that and the absolute best feed into a CB radio for a 27MHz first I.F. stage. The CB has all the sharp bandwidth, noise blanking and other things to make a good setup. Problem is I can't remember if they were a home build project or not. Since CB is dormant except among truckers it may be a bit of a specialty trick to find stuff.

4348. Congress can regulate commerce only to collect taxes

Please forward this message to 3 of your best friends, and at least one enemy, and all members of Congress:

Apparently, the Botox has invaded Speaker Pelosi's Brain (that they have unlimited power)? If what she says is truly what they believe, then all you old farts out there need to stop jerking those quarter machine levers for a few weeks, and lets get this mess cleaned up, and if the Democrats don't want to obey the law, then elect Republicans who have the legislation in hand (or posted on the internet) their agenda that they will pass, and they should do this by spring time, or summer at the latest?

And I say this because apparently Mrs. Pelosi can not understand English?

Section 8 (of the US Constitution).

The Congress shall have Power to lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts, and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts, and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

stop right there, what do you see? A semi-colon after the word United States. In fact that semi-colon is the second one. That semi-colon indicates that what ever follows that punctuation mark is part of that sentence, necessary to its function and meaning (the semi-colon swallows, or digests it), so what ever follows that semi-colon applies to what verb? the word "uniform". So what ever follows this sentence, which applies to the word "uniform" describes how that uniformity will come about, mind you, this is after the first sentence which describes the power to lay taxes lets continue....

[2] To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

[3] To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;

(more continues)

The "regulation" applies to the ability to enact taxes on existing commerce, not interfere with commerce. So this is not some kind of "magical power" extended to Congress, it was a simple mechanism to collect taxes so that this article of the Constitution can actually work (there was no income tax) and they had to come up with a way to pay for government.

This clause in the Constitution is not meant to regulate our lives, it was meant to tax what commerce existed then, and in the future, to pay for government. Let us also keep in mind that Congress and its members were forbidden to accept the title of "nobility", and that would necessarily include that such a title would mean that citizens would fall to bend their knee to whatever eccentric wishes the "nobility" thinks is good for them?

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not

n) Use of this disclaimer for either personal or professional use is permitted with no restrictions. These restrictions or disclaimers do not prohibit the author from pursuing or communicating in a truthful manner, or guarantee that the audience will understand all things as intended, and, or result in being called incoherent, or even a Chicken Chaser!

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Nah, in WWII they didn't take prisoners unless there was a good reason to? So let me guess, the liberals want to send a message to the Muslims out there that they will not be captured and treated well anymore, they will just be shot three or four times in the head by paranoid soldiers who will see these people reaching for imaginary pistols, rather then face murky trials in the United States where the details are left to the imaginations of greedy lawyers?

Soldier will play by the rules, and it is starting to look like the rules were a lot better for Muslims under President Bush?

How's that hope for change, change in the poll numbers working for ya?

Obviously not, since you wrote a post about it. And if you have to think about it, don't write any more posts about it?

4352. Cass Sunstein's new book raises questions of LSD damage?

Reading a review of a new book called "On Rumors", let me guess, does Mr. Sunstein explain how to split the hairs that divide "opinion" (protected speech) from "rumor" (protected speech)? One man's opinion is the "rumor" of in another person's mind, which would amount to preventable, self inflicted mental harm and amounts to negligence on his part that we should reward financially?

And even if his wildest regulatory dreams came true, just exactly how do you propose to pay for the obvious book burning and destruction that would follow such regulation approval? There goes Cable TV, huh?

Which is why it is my opinion this fellow has suffered permanent LSD brain damage, evidenced by his numerous hallucinatory ideas that are not grounded in common sense, the law, or even science, but are simply the memorized phrases that he seems to have picked up while in an academic setting over the years that sound important, really don't make sense?

It's fun crushing the egg shell minds of liberals under the weight of their own stupidity?

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Seems to me Krypto the Klown needs a history lesson as to the goings on in Chaing Mai regarding Pinkie...Looks like we'll have to dig into the archives and post a bunch of threads to show Krypto that once again you are mistaken...But thats understandable seeing how you are a life long government peon sucking off the tax payer tit, no independent thoughts required on a daily basis...Bottom line Klown, Cheesy Bob is still in the Yogurt and Cheese business from what I am led to believe (postings here on UseNet) and living a laid back lifestyle while "the Kraven" is supposedly in Singapore reportedly opening up a Pan Asian Bistro with Nobuko because he was run out of Bangkok on a rail..:-)...any questions?...thought not!...see ya at the Jan 8th Arrest BASH!

The SW8 is the wrong shape, IMHO for a car radio. It will be fine to sit in on the seat next to you, or to keep in the the trunk or back seat until you stop, but that opens up a whole lot of other receivers of similar shape and size, and smaller portables (Sony ICF-2010, SW-77, etc).

AFAIK the last good shortwave radio designed for mobile use was the Kenwood R5000, it has the same shape, and ergonomics of their series of mobile/base rigs, eg. the TS-120,180,130,430,440,450 with the performance of 430 on up.

My recently aquired Drake SPR-4 runs quite nicely on 12 volts, and while it has the worst ergonomics of any radio every made, (you have to set two different switches to set the band, then tune it in two places), it has the best sound of any radio I've ever owned, no synthesier noise, etc.

Another similar rig would be the Grundig Satellite 650, which has a similar design and sound, with much more automation, so it's easier to use.

It seems that with the advent of general coverage receivers in moble HF ham rigs, separate receivers faded away. Except for a car radios designed for broadcast reception only (limited bands, AM only), the last one was designed in the late 1980's.

Try the radio first. If you're happy with the way it performs out of the box, go no further. Otherwise, try the radio for a while and see what "features/deficiencies" annoy you most and fix them first.

Nobody can really make recommendations of which feature needs fixing first as it's a matter of personal choice and, more importantly, your own expectations.

I buy my radios based on my own needs and preferences and have yet to find one single modification that I find I need to make. I do my research before I buy and then find I am quite happy with my units "out of the box".

In the meantime, if Windows is easily secured, without a performance

Actually they might go for much more than a buck!

I've seen certain QSL's go for quite a bit on eBay for folks into that sort of thing.

Swan Island, I don't have that one :-(, I've seen fetch better than $300 and Radio Lebanon get over $700, and yes, I do have that one from the early 70's.

I'd value the stuff I have here at between 3 and 5 thousand dollars, but who knows?

That is NOT within the spirit of the law.... Taxes are prescribed to Side valve/flathead engines for cars went out of favor in the 1950s.You can buy an old Rolls Royce/Bentley car in UK for about 5,000 British pounds money.It will cost that much money, or more, each year just to keep the thing going.

Ask the Brits about that if you don't believe me.

I need to yank the circuit breakers and get back to working in my attic.I need to remove a couple of junction boxes in my attic so I can put down some plywood in those areas.

They made some changes to the normal TH400 design to make it shift smoother and improve reliability. Tell the bean counters to leave the room and the engineers can do wonderful things. (probably why I like radios built for the Government)

I don't know what radio the factory is using these days, but IIRC ours had a Blaupunkt Frankfurt, and we changed to a Motorola because we wanted a cassette deck.

When I was a kid, sometimes when us kids saw a Studebaker car, or truck, us crazy kids would sing,,, Studebaker, Studebaker spit on the wall, Studebaker, Studebaker ten feet tall,,,,

I own an old 1950 (maybe it is a 1949 or 1951?) Studebaker center nose ring/circle thingy which also has a Studebaker ''bullet'' in the center of the ring/circle thingy.I also own a reproduction radiator mount thermostat which has the Studebaker brand name on it.Studebaker manufactured Wagons before they started manufacturing cars and trucks.

Do you really want to own an old, or new Rolls Royce/Bentley car?

Gee like Im just too stupid to use a search engine. If you look, the only working killfile solution is to install a greasemonkey script in Firefox. No working solution for IE 7 or 8. The stuff out there written for IE is malicous webscripting. Google needs to provide some user moderation since they are not going to take the responsibility to do it.

I used to do the same to Hotmail addresses. Blanket ban, if you had Hotmail, you weren't getting through to me, no way, no how! These days I use Thunderbird so I filter the dipsticks out more easily and on an as needed basis.

Setting a radio on the seat would be OK for long trips and would probably be a good compromise for me. I have a marine RDF powered off either 4 D-cells or a 6 volt solar cell. Of course at night it would have to be either batteries or the lighter. Mounting an expensive radio in the dash might be asking for trouble, but once the thieves stole it they might toss it because they never heard of short wave. Drake is a known brand to me and I have really never heard anything bad about them.
Drake it might be, and in dash it might be not.

Given the choice between Obama and some unknown perceived "greener pasture", they would not vote for Obama. Given a rematch with McBush/ Palin and time to actually think about it, they would still vote for Obama.

There is a lot of disillusionment among those that wanted some real changes. We haven't seen any. But return now to reality land and run him against any Republican currently on the radar. You will get a very different answer.

Rambler made a flathead six until about 1963 or 1964. We bought a house in 1963 and the neighbor was showing us his shiny new Rambler with a very obvious flathead six. It ran good and he was perfectly happy with it. One of the reasons flatheads got a bad rap was they would not wind like an overhead. They all had over 4" strokes, so duh..., no 7K RPM.
It turns out that high RPM is good for power but sucks for mileage.
Ramblers in the 60's were actually good cars, but economy was not the priority in the 60's.
Now we have over-winding 4 bangers trying to make up the power gap.

I got a deal on 5 1957 Plymouths in 1968 and had everything from a baby hemi (332) to a flathead six. The Hemi (circa 1952) was gutless and the flathead 6 was a monster chunk of iron. It did run quiet as with all flatheads the valve noise was very minimal.

When I was in the Army at Scott Air Force Base,Illinois and SL 60 in 1963, I bought a 1957 BMW Isetta car from an Air Force Officer.Shortly after that, I sold the car and I bought a 1950 Dodge car.From 1983 to about 1990, I owned a 1967 Plymouth Fury four door hard top car.Both of those cars, the Dodge and the Plymouth Fury were very good cars.

The Ship logo, Plymouth, does not mean Ship.There used to be a brand name of Plymouth twine.Plymouth cars and trucks were named for the twine.

OK, just to be silly, I thought they were named after the rock.
Anyway, I did own more Mopar cars than anything else and they would usually stand up to my best efforts at killing them. I was a teen aged

No real need to expand. You have Nurk already.
I don't worry about fools like him but I hate cross posting, which I have to do to reply to you.
See, I don't intentionally cross post but answering the few idiots on here gets me where I don't want to be.
No insult to other groups, just seems foolish to raise the noise level in your groups.
I'm in shortwave hoping to pick up some information on radios, antenna's and of course what frequencies are hot.
Knives? I can throw a knife or a lumberjack ax in a contest (ax preferred) but don't see a need for a group with me in it.
Thai culture? I'm clueless and a trip over there is not in my immediate plans. Maybe a work trip someday but on those you never get to mix enough.

One of the reasons flatheads had a bad rap was they had one hell of a bad combustion chamber shape. Way too much surface area hence too much heat loss. Smooth they were, efficient they weren't. If you want combustion efficiency, then a hemispherical (hemi) chamber is the way to go with at least 4 valves per cylinder and the spark plug as central as it can get. Minimise flame propagation distance so avoiding detonation at higher compression ratios. Throw a good bit of swirl into the combustion chamber to get that fuel well and truly mixed with air and properly vapourised. Then you have yourself a powerhouse.

> like an overhead. They all had over 4" strokes, so duh..., no 7K RPM.
> It turns out that high RPM is good for power but sucks for mileage.

High RPM is good for BHP at the expense of torque. The poor fuel mileage is purely due to inefficiencies.

So explain to me how these "overwinding 4 bangers" crap all over the "old" detroit iron in the performance stakes!
> Bill Baka

Piston speed is THE defining factor in all of the above. Higher RPM equals more power strokes in a given time frame. Long stroke engines have a piston speed that is far too high when wound up around 7k RPM. Remember, that piston is reciprocating, not just going in the one direction. Usually this results in catastrophic engine failure when piston speed exceeds sensible limits. Cut down the stroke and you keep the piston speed reasonable at the expense of torque. Appropriate gearing and more gear ratios compensates for the lack of torque. My current daily drive is a five speed and its fifth gear is NOT an overdrive. It's high revving 1800 cc 4 banger that pumps out 100KW and it's as stock as the day it came out of the factory. The sports models get 50% better power and still remain street drivable.

Sure isn't like my younger days when we were into street rods that were barely street drivable. Sounded good though! ;-)

Left all that behind in the 70's and got into shortwave for the first time. This was mainly because I was in and out of the country so much in that era that I didn't have time for cars any more.

The flatheads had minimal reciprocating mass as valve gear, big advantage but they couldn't take advantage of it as they couldn't rev much anyway. Overhead valve with overhead cam is the way to go, even twin cam.
Keep that reciprocating mass to a minimum for better get up and go.

Those old long stroke engines of many years ago, on level roads, you could start out from a dead stop in high gear, smooth and easy as pie.They had that real good low end torque.Some of those cars had a built in air compresser at the transmission, flip a little lever and you can air up those tires.

Some new car manufacturers nowadays add some Bar's Leaks to every new car and truck before they send them out the factory doors.

ACE, if i remember, John moved out west bout a year ago. posts on the FRN; he did a few up grades. i used to get him better when he was still over your way. now, it's not so good. so, i was tickled to catch him this morning, when conditions were good for us people in east. TCS, and that pirate from NM, are the only western pirates i have ever caught.
you should do a bunch better where your at, than i do here in the east.

Please do explain your logic. We are, through our own stupidity and cheapness making Wal-Mart a super store that sells 95% or more Chinese goods.
The food aisles don't count although they sell Chinese toilet paper that isn't worth a damn.
Nothing ever made in China has been a good deal for me because things tend to break as soon as the Wal-mart warranty is up.
I did manage to get an exchange Kodak for one I bought there and got a refurb for a replacement and some total crap about how it was the lens/focus mechanism. I have rarely been able to find good quality anything at a Wal-mart.

I wasn't talking about racing RPM's and for what it may be worth to you
I had one getting 38 MPG on the highway, a 1961 flathead with overdrive.
85 MPH absolute top speed but with 38 MPG I didn't care. Obviously I could have gotten more with an aerodynamic car but pushing a brick at 65 MPH and getting 38 MPG did not make me want to run out and buy a new piece of shiny junk.

I have a 400 HP ++ 440 police engine. Just how much do I need. It smoke the tires shifting into second at about 60 MPH. It will already just about tow a house, and yes I do know I could put 8 little injectors on the manifold and use 8 little embedded boards to control each injector, but of course I would use shortwave control. Grin

EhhhTT! BHP is RPM times torque. At about 5,500 RPM 1 foot pound of torque equals one HP. At 1,000 RPM it would be 5.5 foot pounds.
The poor fuel mileage

Yes, like spinning the engine too damned fast. If there was an extra highway cruising overdrive even my 440 would get over 30 - 35 MPG.

Do you know anything about applying geometry and trigonometry to cars?
I never said the imported crap had a chance against a properly set up V8. It is gearing and the manufacturers have either been too stupid or the American public does not want to have to shift and think while talking on the cell.

I am leaning to 6 speeds like in the performance cars. A Tremec 6 speed with a 3.35 first and 0.70 and 0.50 are perfect overdrives for the road.
RPM is what sucks up mileage.

Krypsis,
You are totally missing the point. I built my older cars when gas was 21 cents per gallon for pure speed and city cruising. My later cars have just proven that I can make a car get better mileage than these half assed cars being advertised now.
It can be done but nobody is even attempting it.
Now, please go work out the math for any piston engine and you will find that over about 1,000 RPM for an 8 or 2,000 for a 4 is overkill.
Go see how much is lost moving those little Aluminium things up and down 100 times per second at 6,000 RPM.
Do your own math.

The question is, when did they make the major shift from selling only products made in the USA (a point of pride with Sam Walton, who is now no doubt spinning in his grave) to selling almost nothing but cheap Chinese carp?

Trouble is, at this point, and you can claim WM is part of the cause of it, in some categories, like electronics, the only USA made stuff is very high end hifi equipment, a few other odds and ends, and some military grade items, and those are all priced insanely high, even though they are built, for the most part, amazingly well. And made in limited quantities. Affordable electronics are all imported at this point. Even the "Made in USA" Drake R-8's were made with mostly imported parts. Assembled from domestic and imported parts would have been a more accurate claim.

You can't buy a USA made camcorder, it's basically down to China or Japan. You can't buy a USA made TV, Mexico is as close as you'll probably get, and the parts are made in Japan or China anyway. I try to buy US, if possible, but sometimes, there's no choice. I recently bought both a camcorder and TV, both from Japan. I have two Chinese made scanners, and they work fine, but if you open them up and compare the PC boards to older models from the same company, GRE, there's a difference that's easy to see. The Chinese scanner has a lot of rosin on the boards, and the components aren't as accurately placed as they are on the older ones.

With computer parts, Taiwan and/or China is about it for most of it. I don't think you can even buy a US made motherboard anymore.

He has a R7100 for sale. "Government Model". These are really easy to unblock if you have the service manual. I really don't think it is a government model.

Here is an old blast from the past regarding Martyn:
<http://chat.qth.com/viewtopic.php?p=5243&sid=6e3b32aa2356c46c9996f1b589d6d734>

He used to have private feedback, but I guess ebay doesn't allow that anymore. He screwed 19 people in the last year.

Supposedly you can get a refund from Radio-Mart, but you have to wonder about a person that writes glowing reviews for items that don't work.

Incidentally the other person peddling a service manual for the radio is another ripoff. It is free on the net.

If you buy an LCD or PDP television, the panel was made in Korea. The rest of the electronics, probably China. Japan makes little of their own electronics anymore.

I see 'The Poet' posting to FRN just last night where he mentions a station 'Blaring into Michigan', so perhaps he's moved back?

This projector only has a resolution of 480 x 240 which is way below the standard definition standard of 640x480 and nowhere near the hi def standard of 1920x1080. It has one standard composite input so you can only have one device connected at one time. It uses a standard 50W/12V
MR-16 halogen bulb so the light output is very low. Because of the low resolution you cant really display a very large image. Bottom line is this projector will make regular tv look like a low quality video you downloaded off the internet unless you keep the screen size below 20 inches.

Sounds like overkill to me. Why push more iron than necessary? Anyway, fuel injection and electronic/computer controlled ignition is the only way manufacturers could meet the emission standards. The carburettor is dead.

Sounds to me like you're so in love with old oversized American iron that you can't see beyond it. Have a look at the rest of the world where fuel is hellishly expensive so performance, efficiency AND fuel economy go hand in hand. Let me guess, you love valve radios and don't have a single tranny version in the house, right?

Yes, up until about 40 years ago. Not done much since.

Power to weight ratio is a critical factor. It takes so much to push a ton a mile and you can't get an improvement on that without applying efficiencies and minimising losses/wastage.

Don't you find it a little strange that American brands are absent in F1 racing? They do use V8 engines albeit limited to a maximum engine capacity of 2.4 litres (146 Cu Inch). Now those fellows really have to work on engine efficiency. Fuel efficiency never used to be factored into the equation but I think that has changed in recent years.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Formula_One_engines

Have a look at the above link and tell me those engines aren't efficient. Look at the BHP/Torque figures as well.

Performance cars typically have narrow power bands. You NEED the extra ratios so you can keep the engine in the power band.

Efficiency is what saves fuel. That applies to engine design, aerodynamics, vehicle mass, the whole gamut.
Used to run stock cars once. Couldn't do much about the aerodynamics but did we ever shave the weight off them!

You can but you need an intelligent approach to it first.

You "shouldn't" be trying to car educate me on this group.

These days I select my cars on suitability to task rather than ego pandering. Same as I do when selecting a radio. I look at what I want to do, work out a spec list, look for suitable candidates, then compare to see which fulfills my needs best. Garage space is an issue for me these days.

For the kind of driving we do nowadays, a four cylinder is more than adequate. Anything larger is overkill. That said, I have a couple of larger beasts in the garage. They haven't seen service for quite a while now. Just keep them for old times sake and dust 'em off now and then. I am more interested in radios now.

Should I need a larger car for any reason, I will rent one, or perhaps borrow one from my children as they are still in the ego stroking stage!

I didn't have a choice. I started in the job when I was 15 and retired a year or so back when I was 70. I always had full expenses paid flights, limo supplied to get to and from airports and five star accommodation. My only hassle was that the trips, and they were frequent, were never planned in advance, always short notice (ie. be at the airport in 3 hours) and they played merry hell with my social life. Had to give up racing and the rods. It's also why I got started in radio. It was easy to cart a small radio around interstate and overseas, a truly portable hobby. Still got my Sony ICF SW7600 but you wouldn't like it because it is (a) small and (b) has no valves, not to mention (c) made in Japan.

SB PROP ARL ARLP048
ARLP048 Propagation de K7RA

This is a brief Propagation Bulletin preceding the Thanksgiving holiday. ARRL headquarters is closed on Thanksgiving Day and the day after, Friday, November 27. Part of the reason for the brevity is because of limited internet access at the moment. I hope to have another bulletin out Monday morning to catch up with the sunspot, solar flux and geomagnetic data normally at the bottom of this bulletin.

Last Friday's Propagation Forecast Bulletin ARLP047 reported sunspot numbers for November 12-18 as 11, 0, 0, 11, 12, 0, and 29, and since then, November 19-24 they were 30, 31, 14, 13, 0 and 0. Nice conditions for the ARRL SSB Sweepstakes last weekend.

This weekend, November 28-29 is the CQ Worldwide CW DX Contest. Although recent activity seems a good trend, we have no indications when sunspots will return.

With increasing sunspot activity have come reports of openings on 15 meters.

Jack Emerson, W4TJE of Fancy Gap, Virginia says a friend in North Carolina copied the VR2B beacon (Hong Kong) at 21.15 MHz some mornings via long path.

Jack said he began listening, and most of the time the signal is barely copyable. But on November 23 at 1210z via long path Jack said he was able to hear the signal, although with S1 signal strength, 519. He was about to leave for work but decided to tune up the band, and on 21.255 MHz at 1212z found special event station VR2009EAG coming in very well at 5x5. Jack worked him with 100 watts, and swung another antenna around to the short path direction to make sure he was actually receiving the signal via long path propagation.

The evening before (November 22, local time) Jack heard more JA stations on 15 meters than he has ever heard during the new solar cycle. Jack worked UA0CM just after local sunset, with a 599 signal report.

Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA reports recent openings on 12 meters.

Jon Jones, N0JK operated casually on a Sunday afternoon outing in the ARRL SSB Sweepstakes, and took along a 5 watt transceiver and a CB mag-mount whip. He was on a trap clay shoot outing at a friend's farm. Jack added some wire to the whip to get it to load on 15 meters, and reports "Figured it might be good enough to make a Q or two. To my surprise, it really got out! Over the next hour and a half I made 43 QSOs on 15 Meters, including some real DX like WP3R, AL1G and KH7XS. A number of stations commented 'great QRP signal!' Even some short E-skip to NM, TX and CO. But the comments that impressed me the most were: "thank you for getting on and helping out."

In Sweepstakes, weary contesters on Sunday afternoon digging for new calls really appreciate the casual operators getting on to give out some needed contacts. Jon's 43 contacts were with 20 sections.

Aki Akai, JQ2UOZ of Nagoya, Japan has also had good luck on 15 meters recently, running 500 milliwatts into a dipole on his apartment balcony. You can watch a video at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uvCsl327k5w showing his station and some contacts he made on November 22. He wrote to us last year (see 2008 Propagation Forecast Bulletin ARLP035 at http://www.arrl.org/w1aw/prop/2008-arlp035.html) about a personal challenge to earn DXCC during the solar cycle minimum using only one-half watt. On November 15 he made 19 contacts with Czech and Slovak stations on 15 meters during the OK/OM DX Contest, and you can see his log of these contacts at, http://www.k4.dion.ne.jp/~jq2uoz/GoodEarsList.html.

Look for the data normally at the bottom of this bulletin in a dispatch early next week.

As far as I know, the higher end Sharp panels are still made in Japan, but it's hard to tell for sure. The camcorder is oddly labeled, the charger is made in China, the lens says "Japan" on it, but on the body of the camera itself, there's no label at all, except for the model number and the brand. As cheap as it was, $200, China is a possibility, for sure.

Radio-Mart sells under one ID, and buys under another. So the lovely

My old iron is mostly for freeway use and floats at 100 MPH. I had a 1988 Mustang GT 5.0 that got bouncy over 100. I could care less about emissions standards since there are so few vintage cars left.

Grow a brain before you try to insult my logic. High RPM is the biggest waste of fuel, 4 cylinders or 8, 10, 12. Learn some basic math and see

You have been reading too much Hot Rod. Power/weight is only for quarter miles and stop light drags, neither of which is a limiting factor.

I can, so why can't you realize it????? My 160 MPH Mustang got 33 MPG in fifth (overdrive in a Tremec). It would also spin me around if I was rolling in first and stepped on the gas too hard.

Those are not streetable engines and you know it. 12,000 RPM is great for racing but sucks on the street.

They are not efficient for the street and they would not be usable below about 6,000 RPM. Ever hear of 'Peaky'? They are tuned for one thing only.

My big thick detailed owners operators BMW Isetta manual with photos and stuff is probally worth at least $300.00 to a serious BMW Isetta collector.$350.00 is what I paid for that car.The first owner of that car was a woman in Germany.

Little bitty cars,,,, little bitty Death Traps on Wheels.That is why I got rid of my BMW Isetta, and the three VW aircooled vehicles I used to own.I know where there is a 1960s VW Dune Buggy, about three miles East behind doggy's couch.The dude who owns it said it isn't for sale, he doesn't drive it anywhere.About a month ago, when I was pulling into the parking lot at the Lowe's store, I saw an old guy driving his 1962 VW beetle out of the parking lot.There are a few more old 1960s VWs rolling around town.There is a guy who owns his own VW repair shop, about one mile South of doggy's couch.He works on old aircooled VWs too.

The "simple" man goes away with the first 3 links ;-) ::

http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/swlist/ for languages, click on an hour for tx in that hour & language

http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/txlist/ for stations, click on an hour for tx in that hour & from that station

Use of the (previous and) following list: It's 3PM, where's VOA now?? Where can I hear Spanish at 19UTC??
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/timelist/ complete hourly lists of sw tx (with crosslinks to language/ station)

The source for this data is Eibi.

I put Aoki here;:
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/swlistaoki/ for languages
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/txlistaoki/ for stations

Space limits made me decide to drop hourly lists for Aoki.

There are more than 700 stations, more than 300 languages, that makes about 24 hours x ( 300 + 700) = 24000 files on the site.

I also made a comparison of the 2 sources: aoki and eibi: (frequency order)

Good morning, pirate radio afficionados!

WAKE UP! PIRATE RADIO IS HAPPENING!
We may be too early for many of you, but what the heck.

The Crystal Ship goes on the air this AM, starting up before 1300 UTC, (8 am EST).
We will be on our usual morning frequency of 6876 kHz AM, likely running well into the morning.

Thanks to all those who sent QSL and other reports for our Thanksgiving Day show. We will be issuing eQSLs to those who requested them. Sorry I haven't gotten to it yet, but they'll be out soon.

Happy 'Red Saturday Morning'. I don't know what that means, but it sounds good to me.

My "young iron" is also for freeway use and I don't need to do 100mph, not to mention that such speeds are illegal here. On the other hand, my car is quite capable of maintaining the 100 - 110 freeway maximums here so I am nonplussed.

It's not too difficult to bring older vintage cars up to reasonable emission standards but then the analists will question their "authenticity.

Engine efficiency depends a lot on volumetric efficiency and the maximum volumetric efficiency can occur at either high or low rpm depending on engine design. My own car has the best efficiency around the 4,000 RPM mark. Above 5,000 and below 3,000, it drops off dramatically. No point sticking it in a tall geared overdrive and chugging around at 2,500 RPM as I won't get the best economy.

> why you down-shift for engine braking coming down a hill.

If you use engine braking, you may as well do it in a fuel-cut situation. In fact it's already programmed into most modern vehicles.
Nearly all modern fuel injected cars turn off virtually all fuel when you're not requesting torque via the accelerator pedal. Injection will be cut when the accelerator is released and engine RPM is above approximately 1500.

Please explain to me then why there is a push to use lightweight materials in cars if the weight isn't a factor. Seems you have been letting your basic physics slip a tad! The laws of physics say that if you have twice the mass, it will take twice the energy/effort to accelerate said mass to a given speed. That applies whether you are drag racing or simply getting up to speed on a freeway.

That is around 7 litres per hundred kilometres, definitely in the medium sized 4 cylinder engine, fuel injected, electronic ignition and definitely not old world carb and mechanical breakers. I can get that sort of mileage all the time in city cycle, better in highway cycle. I am more than a little skeptical that you can achieve that sort of mileage in any form of real world driving, especially in a piece of old world American iron. Just so you know, we did have, in my younger days, a heavy representation of American cars on our roads so I am not unfamiliar with them - and their fuel consumption.

They are incredibly efficient in terms of power output per given litre of engine capacity. They are not designed with fuel efficiency in mind though the developments in racing do tend to filter down to the average

Mine are simply too valuable to risk on the road. I've had them for over 40 years, put a lot of time and effort into them and don't want to throw it all away with all the clowns that consider themselves drivers that currently infest our roads. Besides, they attract a bit too much unwanted attention these days as well. Very few people know they exist and I intend to keep them that way.

A friend recently had his rather special Ford GTHO stolen from his garage. Owned it from new but some other swine is enjoying it now. Told him to keep it low key but he didn't listen.

Know them well. A friend of mine was a buick aficionado and had 2 or 3 of them, one of which was a Roadmaster Riviera hardtop. He died back in 1970 (trees and cars don't mix!) and his son inherited the cars. I haven't seen the son Peter since 1980 so I don't know if he still has them. His father ran a bus company and I last remember the cars gathering dust at the back of the bus shed. Must look him up and check on that.

Never had any interest in shares. A friend of mine finally convinced me to play the stock market and was giving me very good advice based on his very successful experience. Went to his funeral last Wednesday.
Diagnosed with cancer on the Tuesday, gone by 6pm Sunday. He was a year younger than me, just turned 70 this month.
Now this chap could machine up just about any part you wanted for your rod or restoration. Went up to see his wife and help her out on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Had a look through his workshop where he had been restoring a 22 and a 26 Buick. He'd been casting up some bits ready to machine up and use on the Buicks. Don't know what will happen to those cars now. Sad loss for the rod and restoration community here.

Google offer a free usenet service. They took over the usenet archive and keep it available for all. I use one of the firefox addon scripts for when I want to read usenet at work. Works fine.

Why don't you subscribe to a free usenet provider, install a proper Better yet, drop Windows and install Linux. Far better security and great usenet clients.

By 1970, there was a huge loss in electronics manufacturing, such as TVs, and what was made here was basically inferior stuff, like Zenith TVs, that were hand wired (and being that way was part of their advertising back then!), and they had a ton of problems. My dad sold them, and wouldn't touch them with a 10 foot pole. Philcos were also made here, and were junk, and there were a couple others, too. Curtis Mathes were good, but insanely expensive. Later on their stuff was rebranded Panasonic, and it was actually better stuff anyway.

Hifi was the same way, the stuff made here was either junk, or very nice, but really expensive. Almost everything sanely priced that was any good was made in Japan (everything but speakers, most of them were to be avoided, for your ear's sake), the UK (some speakers, and a few other items), or Germany (Speakers and Dual turntables). The only things we made, and still make a lot of, were speakers.

I remember the electrician fixing something on our A/C about 1970-71, and he had some part that had a German name on it, and said the US maker had closed up, and the German ones were better anyway.

It was well underway a decade before Reagan was Prez.

Hi,
there is something nagging me about this thread, we used to have a guy in the UK that had a shop in Cambridgeshire, he had a similar reputation. Rumour was he also had an American wife. He disappeared suddenly from his shop some years ago, 5 + maybe. I'm sure his name was Martin / Martyn, before I do any digging to see if it is the same fellow
I wonder if any of the above rings a bell with any one? This is just

I own a wooden cabinet floor model 21 inch screen Zenith color tv set which dates back to 1965 when I bought it new.It still works, although the picture isn't as bright as it used to be when new.I haven't used that Zenith tv set since the 1970s, it is sitting on the floor in my front bedroom now.(I do all of my tv watching in my living room, right here on doggy's couch) I also have an old 12 inch screen Zenith tv set, it still works too.I own quite a few old Zenith tube type and transistor radios too (small ones and larger table top ones) and a very, very, very old Zenith antenna and a very, very, very old Zenith derocative speaker, it is octagon shape and has a cloth/fabric floral grill on it.I sure do NOT bash Zenith products! When I was in the Army at Fort Hood,Texas, I bought a little Sony tv set, there is a carrying case and an auto clip on a window rabbit ears antenna, the tv set has a cord for plugging into an auto cigarette lighter.I bought it at a pawn shop in Killeen,Texas, next door to Fort Hood.It only gets a thin white horizontal line across the picture tube now.I still have that old Sony tv set I bought in Killeen.I used to hang it from the upper bunk with a coathanger wire in the barracks at Fort Hood and watch tv.
My current tv set I use for watching tv is a Sony Wega Trinitron 27 inch screen flat screen CRT tv set.CRT tv sets still are the Best tv sets.Not long ago, the RCA 27 inch screen tv set I used only for WebTV kicked the bucket.I went to the Wal Mart store on Highway 80 five miles West of doggy's couch and I bought a new Sansui 27 inch screen CRT tv set for my WebTV.
SCREW those damn thin screen non CRT so-called ''tv sets''! They are JUNK straight out of the factories!

At Zenith, the Quality goes in before the name goes on!

Nixon was president in 1970. Sony had the Trinitron patent, which killed Zenith and Philco and everyone else with a delta CRT. Vietnam made Asian hifi cool. Johnson didn't give anybody tax incentives to move factories to China. He was just in Halliburton's pocket, like GWB.

Can't say as I do. Name doesn't ring a bell with me. I was into rodding more than restoring. I left the others to be fussy about nit picking restorations. Only jeep restorer I know was a fellow in a small Tasmanian town. He had a very nice one but, like so many of the people I knew from the old days, he passed away years back. Same chap had an MG as well. I recall how he was hunting a matching front wing as his had two different headlight cowlings from different models, one horizontal, the other with a droop. Used to irritate him no end. This was before the days of eBay and easy communications. He'd be rapt now at the ease of finding bits anywhere in the world through the internet.

When I was into rodding, I was the younger one in my circle of friends. Sadly, most of the old crew are gone now. Robert, who died last Sunday, being one of the last. He was an unconventional character and his restorations were unconventional to say the least. The nit pickers would have a field day. Saw a couple of the remaining old timers at his funeral, the years have weighed heavily on them. Suppose they might have been saying the same thing about me! ;-)

One of them still gets about on his old Harley, nice machine!

Actually, they've dropped that name, too, in favor of the simple initials:
LG. Not sure if they bother making Zenith TV's anymore, think that's been farmed out to China.

Mercer's article is a polemic, rather than a scientific, approach to the issues that are involved in the diagnosis and treatment of children with disorders of attachment. An example of such a scientific approach can be found in the special issue of Attachment and Human Development. Mercer is Chairwoman of Advocates for Children in Therapy's (ACT) Professional Board of Advisors. ACT is an activist group with a limited focus on eliminating any treatment for children that uses attachment-based interventions.

I appreciate your giving me the opportunity to respond to the inaccuracies and misrepresentations in the Mercer article. I would also welcome the opportunity to respond to any questions that readers may have about Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy or the evaluation and treatment of children with disorders of attachment.

My 3 year old Sharp shows that's wrong. CRTs are pretty much dead. When OLED TVs hit the 40" under $2K mark, everything else, plasma and LCD will be doomed. They will just get cheaper, and bigger at that point, and eventually will be covering a whole wall for what a 32" costs now.
When you can make a huge display that can be rolled up into a tube, it's gonna kick ass.

Zenith towards the end, just before LG bought them was truly pitiful. My mom had one and it constantly blew flybacks up in it, and after three strikes, it went out on unlimited pickup, and a Mitsubishi took it's place for about 20 years, and only got retired when the dog pulled it off the stand and blew it up.

Johnson was POTUS until 1969. You can look at the hifi and electronic mags, and see the change come in. In the radio business, Hallicrafters, Hammarlund, National, etc, all were pretty well gone by the mid seventies. In the hifi business, Fisher, Marantz, and some others either disappeared, or became foreign owned. Sanyo bought Fisher, Phillips bought Marantz, and the products went from great stuff to junky stuff, for the most part. I started selling hifi out of my house when I was 15, and by far, the most reliable stuff I sold was Panasonic/Tehnics. The worst by far was Sansui, they seemed to hire people whose soldering skills were equal to mine when I was seven. Lots and lots of shitty looking joints. Pioneer and Kenwood were hot and cold, depending on the model. Some were very good, some pretty bad, soldering wise. No real pattern some of the cheapest ones were the best. I think maybe some were built at one factory, some at another, and that was why they varied so much. Harmon-Kardon was one brand that seemed to get worse every year after it was foreign owned, and then it came back, after I had exited the business. My HK receiver sounded very bad, until 2 trips back to the service depot, and six months passed, then it sounded fine. The Panasonic/Technics receiver that replaced it is still in use by a friend of mine as a surround amp, at the ripe age of 37. I bought another one off ebay, just as a kind of a nostalgia trip for $30, and it works perfectly, and to be honest sounds better than my Yamaha surround receiver, that seemed to sound very good, until a side by side proved otherwise. Of course, the new one can do things the old one can't, but in pure sound quality, the old one kills the new one.

There were many non-trinitron TVs being made until the late 80's, I have a couple of them, both 17", I think. They work fine, fed by the cable, and actually have a nice pic on them. Both are RCA's, made by Panasonic. My 27+ year old trinitron type Mitsubishi is being retired as soon as I can get someone over to help me hang the new 40" Toshiba. The Zenith my mother won in a casino in 1981 has long been gone, after the tuner failed in 1985 or 1986.

I get a new Onkyo every few years. They have real output transistors.

FM tuners are pretty useless up here, unless I transmit the signal myself, in which case I feed the computer sound directly into TV2.

Back around 1987 I helped ship the Sheffield Steel Houston pipe plant, all 1,300' of it, to China. In addition to being able to bend and arc weld 1" steel plate into tubes, the plant could be used to produce blockbuster bomb casings in war time. Mr. Reagan did not care.

I own an older Onkyo stereo receiver I bought at the Goodwill store a few years ago.I think www.pricewheeler.com still has a link about high end stereo equipment.My Brickwall www.brickwall.com Model PW8R15 surge suppressor was manufactured by Price Wheeler in San Diego,California.

An old buddy of mine and his wife snail mail subscribe to Consumer Reports magazine.He said Consumer Reports rates Sansui tv sets right up there at the top, although I don't believe everything Consumer Reports says.

Ask the guy at Wink TV & Electronics repair shop at 2821 West Capitol Street here in Jackson,Mississippi. phone number is 601 352 6781

He told me those thin screen tv sets only last about two years before something goes wrong with them.He works on them Mondays through Fridays, I reckon he knows.

Something I already knew for years is those new fancy thin screen expensive tv sets (some people pay thousands of dollars for those high end tv sets) need to be properly adjusted if people want them to last longer and get a better picture.There is a company/store in Biloxi,Mississippi, (wouldn't take me long to find their website, years ago I emailed it to meself) their website has some information about that.It is not as simple as people who buy those tv sets and adjusting the tv set themselves.Technicians have to get inside to adjust them properly.They have expensive electronic tools and stuff to help them. cuhulin

Gulf Coast Audio Video Calibration

In Biloxi,Mississippi.Ask them about those fancy high end tv sets.

I reckon I ought to fix my old bathroom door.The two hinges fastened to that narrow strip of wood, the hinges are ok, but that old glue has come loose from the rest of the door, there are about half a dozen wood dowels and the old glue which held that narrow strip of wood to the rest of the door.I am going to scrape out the old dried out glue and reglue the two door pieces back together and clamp it with my four long bar clamps.When the new glue sets up, I am not going to reinstall that damn door.That damn door always gets in my effin way anyway.Nobody here but doggy and I, so who cares?

Yes, it is the same guy - Martyn/Martin Allison (G4AGV). His business was called Multicomm2000 (all one word), and shop was in or around St. Neots, Cambridgeshire Sansui is Orion, who makes a lot of the junky cheap TVs. A lot of the cheap TVs have a decent picture, but if/when they break, they are a throw away item, no parts are available, so the only option is to cannibalize another one, or toss it. Orion stuff is pretty bottom of the barrel.

All you need to do is back the backlight level down, takes about 10 seconds with the remote. The newer sets with LED backlights aren't bothered with even that, you can run the backlight full blast, if you want to.

If you like the pic the way it comes, it doesn't matter, if you want to get it set so the color is exactly right, then you need it calibrated. I got talked into it, and it was a total waste of money, the setting were almost exactly what I had in there already, maybe one or two clicks up or down. Most of those settings are in such fine increments, one click is barely visible.

updated the whole bunch

http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/swlist/ for languages, click on an hour for tx in that hour & language (here you can fetch CSV data for (Open)Office if you click the language for the complete list))

http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/txlist/ for stations, click on an hour for tx in that hour & from that station (here you can fetch CSV data for (Open)Office if you click the station for the complete list))

Use of the (previous and) following list: It's 3PM, where's VOA now?? Where can I hear Spanish at 19UTC??
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/timelist/ complete hourly lists of sw tx (with crosslinks to language/ station)

The source for this data is Eibi.

I put Aoki here;:
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/swlistaoki/ for languages
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/txlistaoki/ for stations

Space limits made me decide to drop hourly lists for Aoki.

There are more than 700 stations, more than 300 languages, that makes about 24 hours x ( 300 + 700) = 24000 files on the site.

I also made a comparison of the 2 sources: aoki and eibi: (frequency order)
http://users.fulladsl.be/~spb13810/radio/indexsrc.htm

Enjoy listening!

Thanks for that John,
I worked just around the corner from his shop, I was being intentionally vague by saying Cambridgeshire in case it wasn't the same guy. I bought a few things from him, luckily only books and a few other relatively safe purchases. He did have somewhat of an "interesting" reputation back then too.

Best of luck with him.....

It will cruise over 130 but I am not into explaining that to a judge.
It just happens to do it with ease and not 7,000 RPM out of an

You still don't get it. I was talking about where is the most efficient point to make a car move at 65 MPH continuous. More RPM's don't make efficiency for fuel consumption, and that, dear boy, is exponential in the loss department.

I don't need to watch a video on cars.
The fuel cut is mainly so the muffler does not explode when ignition begins again. I ran a Texaco service center back when there were Texaco's. Engine breaking only works due to the losses in the pistons.
Big trucks have an exhaust brake to boot.

Well then, pick up some engineering magazines and start reading because the hot rod magazines only showed the power curve down to maybe 2,000 RPM. These days I am more interested in what they can do at low RPM, and the accompanying mileage.

Don't even think of trying to make me sound stupid. I was talking freeway miles, not around town. It would be a small matter to install a stop and go traffic battery/motor-brake with out taking over the whole car. I have been in Silicon Valley traffic jams and drive 20 feet then stop for five minutes, repeat until done, can ruin any running gas engine's fuel efficiency.

Engineering for Dummies 101.
Most of the energy is wasted on making the pistons go up and down.
A V-8 can be geared to get over 30 MPG as long as the driver is aware that any lead-footing will cost him at the pump.

Yeah,
Shares aren't worth much when the whole company goes down.
I hate to lose a young guy at only 70.
His wife or kids might just try to auction off the cars.
Nobody under 40 seems to give a crap about cars anymore.
He will be missed whether I knew him or not.

Back when ham radios had analog tuning, they would tune in 500kHz bands.
The one of interest to pirates is the 40m ham band 7000 on up. However 7100 on up is loaded with high power shortwave stations, no place for a pirate.

The radios had some "give" on either side, usually around 50kHz, so you could go out and buy a ham rig, and with no modification get it to tune down to 6950, possibly lower.

Most shortwave radios, even those with sperate bands, would tune down to around 6900. My first generation Sony ICF-7600A with analog tuning is marked as going down to 7.1mHz, but I'm sure it goes down to around 6.9.

So the transmitters were easy to get, receivers were common (the most important part) and the band has good nightime propigation, relatively low noise, and not much in it.

Just the place to toss a wire dipole in the air, plug in your radio, and start broadcasting.

The old rigs were rated at 200 watts input, which is about 25 watts output in AM or 100 watts PEP for SSB. More than enough when the band is open and quiet.

Now of course, it is irrelevant, you can buy a ham rig, clip a wire or key in a code and it will transmit almost anywhere from 1.8 to 450 mHz.

BTW, in most places in the world, you can not legally buy or own a ham radio without a license.

Seems like a great place to catch knob spinners while not sticking out like a sore thumb in a Ute band. The Region 1 41 M HFBC band went bye-bye earlier this year, BTW.

which was his goal, income, not growth.

Yeah, especially when he was "younger" than me. Funny thing was, his family has a history of longevity. Practically the only one who died under 90 was his father and his death was due to workplace injury. In fact, when they were looking for relatives to inform after his death, they found 2 aunts and an uncle still living. All of them would have to be well in their nineties by now.

> His wife or kids might just try to auction off the cars.

He didn't have any kids and his wife is at a loss right now just what to do. Money isn't a problem for her in the short and long term as share dividends will see to that. More of an issue is her remote location and inability to drive a car. Her home is in the hills outside the urban limits with limited public transport options.
Anyway, the cars are all in bits. There was only one person who knew how they all went together and he's gone. It would take weeks to just find everything. In my brief visit to the workshop, I saw bits scattered all over. Interestingly, he had been working on converting the engine bearings to full pressure fed lubrication. He'd drilled the crank and was in the process of building a larger oil pump to supply the extra requirements. He even had a new sump and pan cast to provide the extra room for the pump. He had been talking about doing this but I hadn't realised he was as far along as he was. I did say his restorations were "unconventional", didn't I?

> Nobody under 40 seems to give a crap about cars anymore.

Yep. I don't know what will happen to my garage full of rods when I drop off the perch. None of my kids are mechanically inclined, the grandkids are more interested in partying and hooning. Guess the great grandkids are my only hope. Would hate to see the rods get sold off. Don't want to risk using them, don't want to risk losing them. What a conundrum!

Sure will be missed around here. Used to have long phone calls about his projects. Sometimes an hour, sometimes 2 but always interesting. Miss them already.

She can't drive? What is up with that? Sounds like a 1920's kind of problem.

In other words, you or I or any car nut would be in heaven just trying to find parts to match to the cars. Found a manifold, must be for that one, radiator must go there, etc. Then the cars would get worked on as I found the parts.
Damn, am I dreaming.

Damn. I wasn't even allowed to drive my first car (with a legal permit) until I could convince my dad I could change a tire, diagnose a no spark or bad fuel pump, and fill every last one of my fluids. Only then did I get to go anywhere. My daughter, BTW, could care less about anything

Records show feds used ultra-right radio host for years
Sunday, November 29, 2009
Last updated: Sunday November 29, 2009, 9:21 AM
BY MIKE KELLY AND PETER J. SAMPSON
The Record
STAFF WRITERS
They called him "Valhalla."

But it was more than a nickname.

For more than five years, Hal Turner of North Bergen lived a double life.

The public knew him as an ultra-right-wing radio talk show host and Internet blogger with an audience of neo-Nazis and white supremacists attracted to his scorched-earth racism and bare-knuckles bashing of public figures. But to the FBI, and its expanding domestic counter-terror intelligence operations in the wake of the Sept. 11 attacks, Turner was "Valhalla" — his code name as an informant who spied on his own controversial followers.

Turner's clandestine past was confirmed this past summer when he was jailed on charges that he made threats on his blog against three federal judges in Chicago. In court after his arrest, federal prosecutors acknowledged Turner's FBI ties but downplayed his importance and even described him as "unproductive."

But an investigation by The Record — based on government documents, e-mails, court records and almost 20 hours of jailhouse interviews with Turner — shows that federal authorities made frequent use of Turner in its battle against domestic terrorism.

As Turner took to his radio show and blog to say that those who opposed his extremist views deserve to die, he received thousands of dollars from the FBI to report on such groups as the Aryan Nations and the white supremacist National Alliance, and even a member of the Blue Eyed Devils skinhead punk band. Later, he was sent undercover to Brazil where he reported a plot to send non-military supplies to anti-American Iraqi resistance fighters. Sometimes he signed "Valhalla" on his FBI payment receipts instead of his own name.

His dual life of shock jock and informant offers a window into the murky realm of domestic intelligence in the years after the Sept. 11 terror attacks — in particular, the difficult choices for the FBI in penetrating controversial fringe groups with equally controversial informants.

In interviews, conducted before Turner was released on bail, he said the FBI coached him to make racist, anti-Semitic and other threatening statements and now he feels double-crossed by the bureau after his arrest. The documents reviewed by The Record, however, show repeated instances of federal agents admonishing Turner for his extremism.

Federal prosecutors in Newark and Chicago declined to respond to Turner's claims, as did FBI officials. "We do not comment on matters before the courts and will not address Mr. Turner's allegations in the press," said the FBI's Weysan Dun, who runs the bureau's Newark field office.

Turner's "Valhalla" life will likely be on display this week when he is scheduled to go on trial for his alleged blog threats against three federal appeals court judges in Chicago who upheld a law banning handguns. The trial, originally set for Chicago, was switched to Brooklyn, with a judge flying in from Louisiana.

The trial may have its share of political intrigue. Turner's defense attorney, Michael Orozco, said he plans to subpoena Governor-elect Chris Christie to testify about whether he advised the FBI about Turner while Christie was U.S. attorney in Newark. On Friday, Orozco filed a motion to dismiss the case, accusing the government of "outrageous conduct."

But the center of the court battle will likely be the story of Hal Turner and his FBI connections, which began in 2003 with the Newark-based Joint Terrorism Task Force, and continued on and off until this year.

Rumors of Turner's FBI work surfaced two years ago after unknown Internet hackers electronically broke into his Web site and found e-mails between Turner and an FBI agent. Turner never acknowledged his FBI role until after his arrest in June — and then with a mix of anger and chagrin.

"Imagine my surprise," he wrote in one of several letters from jail to The Record, "when agents from the very FBI that trained and paid me came to my house to arrest me."

In a memo only two years earlier, the FBI said Turner "has proven highly reliable and is in a unique position to provide vital information on multiple subversive domestic organizations." The memo went on to say that Turner's "statistical accomplishments include over 100 subjects identified, over 10 acts of violence prevented and multiple subjects arrested."

"I was not some street snitch," Turner said in one of several lengthy interviews at the Hudson County Jail, where he was kept until the terms of his bail were worked out in October — terms that prevented him from talking to reporters after his release. "I was a deep undercover intelligence operative."

Misgivings on both sides

Whatever his role, one thing is clear: The relationship between Turner and the FBI often was rocky, with both sides cutting ties several times.

In March 2005, Turner abruptly quit. In a letter to his FBI handlers, he cited a "complete failure" by the agency "to achieve the goals for which I began the relationship," the "dismal lack of arrests," the failure to track down a "threat to kill me and my family" and "exploitation" by the FBI "to interfere with content of my Internet Web site."

By June, however, Turner was again on the FBI payroll. The FBI, meanwhile, harbored its own doubts about Turner.

Five days after Turner's March 2005 letter, an internal FBI memo summarized rising concerns that his rhetoric was too controversial and possibly dangerous.

"Is he a big mouth? Yes," the memo said. "Does he say really deplorable things? Yes. Is he a physical threat to anyone? I don't think so."

Records show the FBI continued this kind of questioning throughout its connection to Turner — valuing his ties to right-wing hate groups, but also worrying that his audience might follow up on his violence rhetoric.

In a July 2007 memo, Turner's primary FBI handler, Special Agent Stephen Haug, wrote that Turner "will continue to be admonished in the strongest possible terms and on a periodic basis about his rhetoric and the potential of it inciting acts of violence."

Haug went on to say that Turner would be "instructed to utilize his celebrity status to insure he continues to remind those who follow his rhetoric that such rhetoric is not intended to incite violence."

"In balance," Haug wrote, "this source's value outweighs the discomfort associated with source's rhetoric. Source's unique access provides important intelligence which, if lost, would be irreplaceable."

Turner, meanwhile, often tried to assure the FBI that his shock jock rhetoric was not serious. "The audience loves the rip-roaring radio psycho," he wrote in one e-mail to the FBI. "They literally throw money at it. Just be confident that the personality you hear (or hear about) on radio is not real life. I have zero intention of doing anything stupid."

Nonetheless, Turner's statements were closely watched.

In February 2008, in the midst of the presidential primary season, Turner attracted the attention of federal officials when he turned against then-Democratic candidate Barack Obama.

"I'm starting to come to the realization that it may be up to a sole person, acting alone, to make certain this guy is never allowed to hold the most powerful office in the world," Turner wrote on his Web site. He later removed the statement.

But later that year, court records show that he contacted federal authorities to say that he had heard of a possible assassination plot by white supremacists against the president-elect.

"I didn't like Barack Obama," Turner explained in an interview. "But he won the election."

Seven months after the possible threat to Obama, Turner was in FBI handcuffs — for allegedly threatening the Chicago judges.

"Let me be the first to say this plainly: These judges deserve to be killed," Turner wrote on his blog on June 2. "Their blood will replenish the tree of liberty."

Turner also posted photos of the judges, their work phone numbers and office addresses as well as a map of the courthouse that pointed out "anti-truck bomb barriers."

"The word 'deserve' is just an opinion," Turner later told The Record. As for posting the photos of the judges, he added: "I can't tell you to this day how sorry I am."

Even if he wins his federal case, Turner's legal problems will not be over. In June, Connecticut authorities charged Turner with inciting violence against state officials who supported a proposed state law to give Roman Catholic parishioners greater control over church finances.

In each case, Turner contends his words are protected as free speech under the First Amendment. Turner's attorney, Orozco, adds that other federal prosecutors routinely ignored his outlandish statements. "He has made other controversial remarks about judges, none of which have ever been prosecuted," wrote Orozco in a legal brief.

"I never intended for anybody to feel threatened," Turner said.

Longing to be heard

Whatever his intentions, it remains unclear who the real Hal Turner is.

A fraud? A serious threat to homeland security? A white supremacist? A loyal citizen trying to help the FBI? A radio showman trying to build an audience — and income — with shocking statements?

After he was arrested by FBI agents in June, Turner was sent on a journey that took him to jails in Newark, Oklahoma and Chicago — often in solitary confinement. By late September, he was transferred back to New Jersey and sent to the Hudson County Jail in Kearny. In all, he spent 119 days behind bars.

In the interviews at the Hudson County Jail, Turner offered many glimpses of his personality and motivation.

"My country needed me," he said when asked why he accepted the FBI's offer in June 2003 to become an informant. "I'm a loyal, patriotic decent American citizen."

But why did he say — or hint — that some judges and other officials should be killed? Turner blames the FBI, saying that while agents never said he could threaten judges, they coached him on the limits of what he could say. As a result, Turner said he felt he had wide latitude.

"I was given specific instructions," he said. "Here, I am in prison, betrayed."

In one of his more controversial statements, Turner gloated over the murder of the husband and mother of a federal judge in Chicago in 2005. But Turner described his rhetoric as fake, arguing he hoped it "would solidify my anti-government credentials" among ultra-right-wing groups he was spying on.

As for hanging out with neo-Nazis and skinheads, Turner said, "That's not me. It never has been."

Raised in Ridgefield Park, the 47-year-old Turner labored more than a decade in a variety of positions with several moving-van companies. In 1988, while working for a moving company in Atlanta, Turner was arrested on a drug possession charge. In interviews, he said he had a cocaine addiction at the time and checked into a rehab program.

By the early 1990s, Turner moved to North Bergen and worked as a real estate agent. Within a few years, however, he began to dabble in politics, trying to beef up the Republican Party in overwhelmingly Democratic Hudson County. He also was a campaign manager in New Jersey for Republican presidential candidate Pat Buchanan.

Politics seemed to offer Turner something he never realized he had — a voice and a need to speak out on hot topics. Now, however, several close associates question whether that voice is authentic or just the work of someone looking for the limelight.

In 1997, when Ramapo College Finance Professor Murray Sabrin ran for governor on a libertarian platform, he hired Turner to manage his campaign. Turner was a frequent caller on WABC's popular talk radio shows with Bob Grant and Sean Hannity — "Hal from North Bergen," as he came to be known.

Turner surely had a conservative flair, especially on such issues as abortion and immigration. But Sabrin noticed a complete shift after Turner started his own talk radio show. In particular, Sabrin, who is Jewish, found some of Turner's remarks to be anti-Semitic.

"People have a public face and a private face," said Sabrin. "Everything that he is doing now is a complete 180-degree shift. It's totally opposite from what I knew. I don't know where this is coming from. I certainly wouldn't have tolerated it."

For several years, the Southern Poverty Law Center, an Alabama-based civil rights group, has regularly monitored Turner's radio broadcasts and blog. Indeed, the center was one of the first organizations to raise questions that Turner might be an FBI informant.

Hearing now that Turner admits to being an informant, the center's director of research, Heidi Beirich, was especially critical of the FBI. "We've never seen anything like this with informants. It's essentially idiotic on the part of the FBI. Anybody who spent two seconds looking at Hal Turner's Web site would know he is a wild hare," she said.

Indeed, Turner's own recounting of his life with the FBI does not always mirror what records show he did.

Turner, for example, says the FBI asked him to participate in a mission to plug leaks of information inside the Department of Justice to a variety of groups including the Southern Poverty Law Center and the Anti Defamation League. Turner also says the FBI asked him to specifically criticize such African-American leaders as Jesse Jackson and Al Sharpton.

"I was supposed to be a counterbalance to Sharpton," Turner said.

Officially, the FBI declined comment on those unproven stories by Turner. The documents bear no trace of those operations.

Expedition to Brazil

Unofficially, FBI and other federal officials expressed a mix of dismay and outright anger when told of Turner's claims of being coached to make provocative statements.

"Absurd," said one. Another added: "And pigs will fly beginning with the next full moon. It never happened."

During interviews with The Record, Turner was at times unclear on some details. FBI records indicate, for example, that he did not become an informant until June 2003; Turner originally said he was recruited by federal agents in 2002, but later said he was mistaken.

Along with Haug of the FBI, his other regular contact was Leonard Nerbetski, a New Jersey State Police detective assigned to the FBI's Joint Terrorism Task Force.

Requests to interview Haug and Nerbetski were turned town by the FBI and by the state police.

In an early communication, Turner reported to the FBI about a meeting in Elmwood Park by the National Alliance. A few months after that, FBI records show that Turner was reaching out to several national leaders of the alliance.

FBI memos indicate that the bureau had appropriated as much as $100,000 for Turner's work as an informant.

"It was good money," said Turner, who would not say how much he was ultimately paid by the FBI.

Turner said he was earning about $15,000 a month from his suddenly popular radio show and blog.

As 2004 wore on, Turner found himself reporting to the FBI about a possible theft of evidence in a Bergen County drug case and about an attempt to set up a chapter of the Aryan Nations in northern New Jersey.

A year later, with the FBI paying for his visa and passport renewal, Turner embarked on his most ambitious mission — to confer with a wealthy white supremacist in Brazil who was considering making a $1 million donation to his American counterparts.

While in Brazil, Turner also reported meeting a World War II German Luftwaffe flying ace and linking up with a representative of the Brazilian Arab Society, who discussed a plan to ship $10 million in consumer goods to anti-American Iraqi resistance fighters.

After Turner returned to New Jersey, the records show that the FBI investigated the Arab Society representative and even reached out to U.S. officials in Brazil for help in monitoring his activities. But it's not clear if the $10 million shipment was attempted.

The $1 million donation also never materialized, records show. The Brazilian benefactor backed out of the deal when an American white supremacist did not accompany Turner on the trip.

Records indicate the FBI wanted Turner to return to Brazil to spy on white-supremacist training there. But Turner never went. While in Brazil, Turner said, he carried a gun for protection, which was not authorized by the FBI.

Only a few weeks after returning to the United States from Brazil, Turner again found controversy. In a radio broadcast, he targeted African-Americans.

"A full day of violence against blacks would be a really nice thing," he said.

Turner went on to call for "lynchings, church burnings, drive-by shootings and bombings to put these subhuman animals back in their place," according to a report complied by the Anti-Defamation League.

The episode illustrates the complicated relationship between the FBI and Turner. Despite Turner's racist radio rhetoric, the FBI also valued his undercover work — and was apparently willing to take a risk with him again — and pay him, too.

For example, a July 2005 memo by the FBI said Turner had been paid $10,365 in the previous fiscal year and that he "provided information which continues to be highly accurate and sensitive."

Turner continued to reach out intermittently to the FBI — with tips including a possible KKK murder plot — until June 2, 2009, the day he posted the alleged threats on his blog about the Chicago judges.

In an e-mail that day to the FBI, Turner says he has heard reports that agents had interviewed skinheads and others about him.

"Am I unapproachable?" Turner asked in the e-mail. "Geez, I'd think by now I would have proved myself. It's not like I'm gonna go postal or anything."

Three weeks later, Turner was arrested.

Four months after that, Turner, unshaven and wearing frayed green prison garb and fumbling with a loose tooth, sat in an interview room at the Hudson County Jail and pondered his journey — from shock jock to FBI informant to inmate charged with a serious federal crime.

"I can't believe this is happening to me," he said.

Falcons were everywhere back then and I am surprised the Falcon didn't come back with the oil emblem around 1973-1974 when the oil shit first hit the fan. Fairlanes were good too.

My favorite for quiet running was a 1948 Studebaker at 65 in overdrive.
Flat head again so no notice able engine noise.

Let me assure you that you won't learn much about Thai culture from Soc.Culture.Thai since the trolls pretty much destroyed it. Certainly there are no Thais posting there. Anyone who wishes to discuss Thai culture hops over to moderated forums such as ThaiVisa. The idiots don't last long in those forums.

BTW, you should seek out a Thai restaurant and try some Thai food. Make sure that the restaurant is run by real Thais however as many are run by Chinese or similar trying to cash in on the popularity of Thai food. I am married to a Vietnamese lady but prefer Thai food. In fact, so does my wife. There is a lot that is similar between Viet and Thai cuisine but there are huge differences as well.

83 is still a reasonable innings if he had reasonable health up until then. I'd be happy with that as long as I was in good health and able to do all that I wanted to do without limitations.

More common here amongst older women than you would realise. Younger

Waste of a good car. Don't think I could ever do that! Might leave them

When I was in my teens and twenties, a lot of my friends died in car wrecks. Now I'm in my seventies my friends are all dying of more natural causes. Most of my friends from the teen years are gone already as they were ten and twenty years older than me then. I was the youngster of the group. Guess I'm used to seeing friends depart this life. Trouble is, a lot of the departures these days are friends younger than me!

Forget the details but there was a propagandist for Nazi Germany who turned out to be an English agent. Tehre was some debate as to whether he did more damage in his role as a Nazi than his work for the English made up for.

In the Vietnam war days, it was not uncommon for someone to stand up at a public meeting and advocate violence and have whispers go through the crowd that this was a government plant. i'm not sure how many (if any) were really government plants and how many were just whack. I'm guessing some of both.

Allaccess, a highly regarded broadcast website, reports...

"Internet talk show host HAL TURNER, facing charges of making terrorist threats against three federal judges in CHICAGO, has claimed that he was set up and was really working as an undercover agent for the FBI; now the BERGEN RECORD reports that its investigation has turned up evidence confirming that TURNER was indeed working for the FBI.
The paper's MIKE KELLY and PETER J. SAMPSON report that TURNER was spying on his own right wing extremist followers under the code name "Valhalla". At one point, the paper says, the agency sent TURNER to BRAZIL to report on a plot to send non-military supplies to Iraqi "resistance fighters" battling American troops. An FBI memo obtained by the RECORD says that TURNER "has proven highly reliable and is in a unique position to provide vital information on multiple subversive domestic organizations ... (his) statistical accomplishments include over 100 subjects identified, over 10 acts of violence prevented and multiple subjects arrested."

"Gorman wrote a piece a few months back about Casablanca Records pressing a million copies of a Cher album just so the company's CEO could go on the Today show and claim it shipped "platinum". The same thing applies to HD Radio chips. They count the chips manufactured, not sold. Did you see the e-mail from Radio Ink's Eric Rhodes claiming they sold 50% more HD radios than their "shipment"? That is very misleading. How many radios were in their shipment? 5? 10? 15? It is that kind "Tin Men" mathematics that kills the credibility of those connected with HD Radio. Eric Rhodes should be ashamed of himself. Or maybe he should go back to selling radio stations vans and juke box trucks."

And:

"This is really bush league. This is the text from Eric Rhodes: Good news! Though we never anticipated selling the entire shipment of Mighty Red HD Radio receivers from a note I wrote last week, we sold out in four hours. In fact, since many people bought multiple units, we sold about 50 percent more than our shipment. (Okay, Eric - how many did you ship? You bought three, you sold six? You bought four, you sold two?) Therefore, the people at Ibiquity immediately contacted the manufacturer and ordered another shipment, which they believe will be in the U.S. and available for shipment in time to arrive for Christmas. (That's rich! Where is this secret manufacturer who will make more radios just for you?) We thought you should know in case you want to get in on the next shipment before Christmas. (Order before midnight tonight...call 1-800....Eric you should be ashamed of yourself. This is such low ball stuff. You should be above this by now)."

LOL, it's a clip of Canadian military vehicles being transported across Canada. Why does that upset/interest you anyway? Notice how they edited it before you can get a good look at the locomotive? That seems to be a common thing done to videos by some people for reasons readily apparent. It almost never, ever works. Too many people have too good a memory for it to fly. And the people trying to pass it off for something it's not are too dumb.

Besides, there are military vehicles on trains all the time. Means nothing. I've seem trains of tanks and stuff dozens and dozens of times over the years. I might have even taken a couple pics. This time of year, it happens a lot, since the fall is prime wargames season.

Other than spin, what else do they have left? HD radio is a bust and they know it. It's like the pink elephant in the living room that everybody in the know chose to just ignore or hoped would improve. Media in general is struggling. Advertisers are love new media and view radio/tv/print as part of the old media crowd. A station owner heard what his HD radio sounded like in real time and said " it doesn't sound any different. This is the HD crowd, who are so optimistic, but fail to do the math and see reality.

OK,
Close but no cigar.
The fun thing about the Studebaker and the 1961 Rambler was that a friend was actually leaning on the Rambler and asked to hear it run.
He almost fell over when I said it was running. I replaced the generator with an alternator, breaker-less ignition, and super quiet mufflers. The Rambler was about as stripped down as I have ever seen an American car and the Studebaker was an example of how good American cars could be.

Your stupidity never fails to amaze me. I am not making Meth in my bathtub nor am I selling or growing anything. The FBI could care less about me smoking dope, you dope.
I am refining only in the manner of removing wood pulp (Cellulose) so I don't have to ruin my lungs. If it is a class 1 narcotic then it should be below Cigarettes and Alcohol. There is a pretty strong argument for legalizing it and stopping wasting money on trying to enforce our drug policy on the world.

You may now switch that little brain off before it overloads.

So maybe I should have just said "American iron". I miss Checker cabs bulletproof as any car made. I don't know why they stopped production unless the cab companies started buying foreign.

True. My aunt just died this year just short of 90 and never in all those years got behind the wheel of a car. Why have one when the market and most of your friends are only a block or two walk? My youngest

Heh,
My dad commanded a 3 gun Howitzer crew during the war. They could shoot over an entire island to hit a target as far as 20 miles away. Small wonder they never had to move much. I thought Howitzers were pretty much obsolete anyway. 2009 minus 1941 is a long lifetime for a piece of field artillery.

Handy Shortwave Chart
Bill McFadden
billmc@agora.rdrop.com

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown. Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2005 FCC rules and Jan 2006 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day; frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Please e-mail suggestions and corrections to billmc@agora.rdrop.com.

Phone line as SW antenna

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area. Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the
| telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead. Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should | be rated 250 volts or higher.

Phone line RF connector
red .01 uF center cond. / \
or o--------||-----------------------------|-o | To receiver
green \ /
50 ohm coax |
ground |
or o-----------------------------------------+ N.C. shield

N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:

Phone line RF connector
red -------- center cond. / \
or o----| |-------------------------|-o | To receiver
green | | \ /
| FILTER | 50 ohm coax |
ground | | |
or o----| |----------------------------+

FILTER PLANS

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------
```

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

The proper way to connect them is in series, i.e.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

SB PROP ARL ARLP049
ARLP049 Propagation de K7RA

This is a follow-up to last Wednesday's pre-Thanksgiving Propagation Forecast Bulletin ARLP048. It was a little early to provide the complete Thursday through Wednesday sunspot, solar flux, and A index that normally appears in Friday's bulletin, so we are including it here at the bottom of this bulletin. The next bulletin will be out four days from now.

Our exciting period of nearly daily sunspot activity ended with the first spotless day on November 23, and the Sun has been blank since then. A look at the STEREO image at http://stereo.gsfc.nasa.gov/ shows a bright active area perhaps five days over the eastern horizon, but we don't know if that will give us sunspots or not.

As the two STEREO craft move further from earth, the visual gap on the Sun's far side is gradually closing, and we look forward to the time in 2011 when all of the Sun will be visible from STEREO and earth. Currently the gap is about 14.3%.

You can calculate the approximate percentage of the Sun in that dark spot by using the "Where is STEREO?" link on the STEREO home page, which takes you to http://stereo-ssc.nascom.nasa.gov/where.shtml. Check the "Separation angle A with B" stat at the bottom, subtract that number from 180, divide the result by 360, then multiple that result by 100 to get a percentage figure.

You can check future dates by clicking on the "STEREO Orbit Tool" link, taking you to http://stereo-ssc.nascom.nasa.gov/where/.

When you check February 1, 2010 at 0000 UTC it yields a separation angle of 135.197 degrees. Subtracted from 180 degrees, this yields 44.803, divide that by 360, then multiply by 100, and you get approximately 12.45% remaining on the dark side. October 1, 2010 yields 5.58%, and January 1, 2011 just 1.26% in the dark. Check the arithmetic!

WorldRadio Online posts a new issue on the twentieth of each month, and each has a column on propagation by Carl Luetzelschwab, K9LA. You can download it at, http://www.cq-amateur-radio.com/WorldRadio.html and read Carl's article on "The Impact of Deep Solar Minimum on 160m Propagation." Carl's column begins on page 28 of the current December issue. The January 2010 issue should appear online on December 20.

Past bulletins mentioned the incredible WSPR mode for weak signal communication. Doug Hawkins, W3HH of Ocala, Florida was using WSPR mode on November 18 on 30 meters, and copied AA1A in Marshfield, Massachusetts -- 1,105 miles away. Not unusual, except that AA1A was running only 10 microwatts! Doug points out that this signal is 20 dB below 1 mW. Doug says that several other stations have copied AA1A, but so far this is the longest distance record.

Doug thought the distance was about 900 miles, but I looked up the address for each station at the top of the ARRL web page at http://www.arrl.org/, then plugged the addresses into a computer atlas to find the exact latitude and longitude coordinates, then used W6ELprop to calculate the distance, which turned out to be over 20 percent further than Doug's estimate.

If you would like to make a comment or have a tip for our readers, email the author at, k7ra@arrl.net.

For more information concerning radio propagation, see the ARRL Technical Information Service web page at, http://www.arrl.org/tis/info/propagation.html. For a detailed explanation of the numbers used in this bulletin, see http://www.arrl.org/tis/info/k9la-prop.html. An archive of past propagation bulletins is at http://www.arrl.org/w1aw/prop/.

Monthly propagation charts between four USA regions and twelve overseas locations are at http://www.arrl.org/qst/propcharts/.

Instructions for starting or ending email distribution of this bulletin are at, http://www.arrl.org/w1aw.html#email.

Sunspot numbers for November 19 through 25 were 30, 31, 14, 13, 0, 0, and 0 with a mean of 12.6. 10.7 cm flux was 76.7, 76.2, 75.8, 76.3, 75.7, 74.7, and 74.2 with a mean of 75.7. Estimated planetary A indices were 2, 1, 8, 4, 0, 6 and 5 with a mean of 3.7. Estimated mid-latitude A indices were 0, 2, 6, 2, 0, 3 and 4 with a mean of 2.4.

Has anybody deal with this company or can offer another source for the Seven or eight years ago, there used to be a user here named Frank Dresser.

he was knowledgeable, and familiar with old Hallicrafters boxes.

Anyone know if he's still around?

Get a Sony 7600 and a 2m mag mount. Use the 2m antenna and input it to the 7600 external antenna jack. You can power the radio via cigarette lighter and output audio into your FM radio or Tape player.
Full coverage, better receiver. The longer the 2m whip the better.

Thomas Jefferson said "We act not for our selves alone, but the whole human race".

Richard Nixon: "Roosevelt and Churchill inspired the people of the free world by presenting in idealist terms not just what we are fighting AGAINST, but what we were fighting FOR...."

That's what won WWII, Americans were projecting freedom for the world?

Richard Nixon wrote in 1985 a book that describes to a very surprising degree how politics today are in many ways a mirror of what he faced in the 1970s (although he did not know it at the time)? Richard Nixon has a view that "spreads the wealth around", but to prevent communism, and not by way of looting the country?

The way to defeat communism is to simply take the fuel, poverty, out of the picture, and conservatives know how to do that?

I have not finished the book yet, but I have found so much useful material in it that outweighs anything negative you might find in the book, and I tend to catelog and compare writers in my head in different ways?

I also did not listen to the speech of Mr. Obama tonight, because I sense that there would be no viewpoint that Americans are FOR something, but that he would just give us a photo op speech that contained a bunch of filler speech material that would sound compelling, but really designed to keep his image intact so that he can retain power as long as he can?

You've got a problem when the President of the United States has a "problem" with the word "victory"? Mao was tutored under the wings of the Soviets, did Mr. Obama explain his fascination with seeking out college professors with ties to the Soviets?

If you can't say the word victory, and your speech writers can't tell us what America is for, you are not having speeches, you are having campaign stops to collect power?

This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Well, he didn't say Muslims, did he? So "Taliban" are radical Muslims that are proselytizing 7th century Islamic tribal laws at the point of a gun, and not just people that worship God?

Does the medical community need the opium to make morphine (a potential legitimate source of income), how do you prevent drugs being exchanged for ammo and guns to the "Taliban", and how do you get rid of poverty so the region does not turn into either radical Islam or communism?

And if you answer these questions, you will understand what the money is for?

distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

A site's homepage is the first page the user stumbles upon and it gets most of the search engine's focus. This article will summarize several important points one should remember when constructing a homepage.
The 'ultimate' goal of a website is to sell - service, product, incoming contact, a specific reaction - and a homepage must summarize effectively what the site has to offer. In layman's terms, to (positively) 'capture' the user. A person, who wasn't able to find what he was looking for right away, will just skip to the next website, considering the options the web can provide.
In most cases, a webmaster is able to reach solid conclusions by simply surfing the web and the sites of his competitors, gaining inspiration from what other sites have to offer in terms of ease-of-use and accessibility

Life is full of distractions, interruptions, unexpected challenges and needs. With the arrival of the cell phone, these distractions have tripled. Nowadays you are constantly reachable unless you take definite steps to control your phone and your time. Now that you are working from home, your friends think that you are easily available to chat, go for coffee, or help them with their home project. And you being the nice guy or gal that you are, always say "yes." Well, not any more. This is where you need a firm resolve to put some boundaries around your work and separate it from these distractions. First of all you will need the proper frame of mind. One of these is flexibility.

4655. Rush Limbaugh was right, speeches not given from West Point

President Obama showed his operational effectiveness as a “Looser in Chief” by televising his speech about Afghanistan against a back drop of soldiers graduating from West Point by giving enemies of America a convenient snapshot of whose those officers are, painting a bullseye on the backs of all of their heads? These officers will have to wear sunglasses the rest of their lives?

This address could have been done from the oval office, by using the back drop of officers for a photo op, these officers will now be the target of espionage agents world wide, and they should avoid places where alcohol beverages are served for the rest of their lives? The Communist Press in the United States was all to willing to cooperate in providing this coverage to the enemies of the United States?

Freedom isn't free, Mr. President? Have a nice day, next time use the Oval Office for what it is for, and stop painting targets on American Officers?

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of

potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

Most opioids are synthesised these days. The Bush Crime Family needs the poppies to make smack.

Make $250,000! In Weeks - As Seen On Oprah And 20/20

Proven by various, highly-respected U.S. TV and Radio programs as being 100% legal, feasible and true.

Oprah Winfrey and ABC's investigation team 20/20 also prove it can be done.

IF A 15 YEAR OLD BOY COULD MAKE $71,000 IN JUST 5 WEEKS AND OTHERS $250,000 IN A FEW MORE WEEKS -- SO CAN YOU !!!
THIS REALLY CAN MAKE YOU EASY MONEY!! IT WORKS!!! BUT YOU HAVE TO FOLLOW THE LETTER FOR IT TO WORK!!!! THIS IS NOT A PYRAMID SCAM!! :

I came across an article similar to this that said you could make thousands of dollars within weeks with only an initial investment of $6.00!
....here's how!
Paypal verifies that this $6 investment program is 100% legal and is a big hit this year see their note below or ask them directly...
For a simple investment of 15-30 minutes and just $6, it is 100% worth it to make thousands so quickly.
This is not another scam that takes lots of your hard earned money; this is a no risk investment that will make you thousands of dollars very easily and quickly.

>From PayPal:
"Dear Member, it has come to our attention that there is a paypal scheme floating around at the moment you may have heard or seen the $6 scheme. You may have even taken part in it well we have been asked a lot of questions about this scheme the answer is yes it does work and yes it is safe to use providing you follow the rules it is legal and has made a big hit on the internet this year. If you would like to take part in this scheme or would like a bit more information then please see the attached file that was kindly donated to us. Thank you for using PayPal!" Turn $6 into $15,000 in only 30 days...here's how! You have most likely seen or heard about this project on TV programs such as 20/20 and Oprah, or you may have read about it in the Wall Street Journal.
If not, here it is below - revealed to you in step-by-step detail.
This program is by no means new. It has been in existence in many forms for at least a decade. In the early days, it required a lot more time and effort, as well as an investment of a few hundred dollars. However, thanks to PayPal and the Internet, the investment is now virtually ZERO! And what's more, the entire process is FASTER, EASIER, and MORE LUCRATIVE than it has EVER been!

I found this on a bulletin board and decided to try it: Make Money with your Paypal account as shown on Oprah! "A little while back, I was browsing through news groups and came across an article similar to this that said you could make thousands of dollars within weeks with only an initial investment of $6.00! So I thought, "Yeah right, this must be a scam", but like most of us, I was curious, so I kept reading. Anyway, it said that you send only $1.00 to each of the 6 email addresses stated in this article.

You then place your name and address at the bottom of the list at the # 6th position and email it to your friends as well as post this message (with your email address in the list) to at least 200 newsgroups. (There are thousands) No catch that was it. So after thinking it over, and talking to a few people first, I thought about trying it. I figured "what have I got to lose except $6.00, right?" So I invested the measly $6.00,

Well GUESS WHAT!!
Within days, I started getting money coming into my Pay Pal account! I was shocked! I figured it would end soon, but the money just kept coming in. In my first week, I made about $25.00, which means that 25 people joined the group after they saw my posted messages. By the end of the second week I had made a total of over $1000.00! In the third week I had over $10,000.00 and it's still growing.
This is now my fourth week and I have made a total of just over $42,000.00 and it's still coming in rapidly.

It's certainly worth $6.00, and the few minutes it took to join Paypal. I have spent more than that on the lottery! Let me tell you how this works and most importantly, why it works. Also, make sure you print a copy of this article NOW, so you can get the information off of it, as you need it. I promise you that if you follow the directions EXACTLY, that you will start making more money than you thought possible by doing something so easy!

SUGGESTION:
Read this entire message carefully!
Follow the simple directions and watch the money come in, it's that easy! It's legal. And, your investment is only $6.00. IMPORTANT: This is not a rip-off; it is not indecent; it is not illegal; and it is virtually no risk-it really works! If all of the following instructions are adhered to, you will receive extraordinary dividends.

AGAIN, PLEASE NOTE:
Follow these directions EXACTLY, and $20,000 or more can be yours in 4 to 6 weeks.
This program remains successful because of the honesty and integrity of the participants.

Please continue its success by carefully adhering to the instructions. In this business your product is not solid and tangible, it's a service. You are in the business of developing Mailing Lists.
Many large corporations are happy to pay big bucks for quality lists.
However, the money made from the mailing lists is secondary to the income, which is made from people like you and me asking to be included in that list.

Here are the 4 easy steps to success:
STEP 1:
Take a few minutes to join Paypal: www.paypal.com Paypal: The Internet's most trusted Internet banking system for your future income. When creating your Paypal account make sure you use the same Email
address as your user name in the list below so people can send money to your account. I would suggest signing up for a business account because it does not limit you to the amount of money you can receive.
STEP 2
Once you have a Paypal account running, use Paypal to post $1 to EACH of the 6 Email Addresses below because you pay people with an email address in Paypal.
To do this you may need to use a credit card, which is very easy, and secure so nobody but Paypal may see it.
If you don't have a credit card show this great lucrative offer to someone that has one and get them to help you pay the $6. What you are doing is creating a service. This is absolutely legal! You are requesting a legitimate service and you are paying for it! Like most of us, I was a little skeptical and a little worried about the legal aspects of it all.
But, I looked around and did some homework and found it was perfectly legal.

Pay people with an email address in Paypal.
FOLLOW THESE EASY STEPS:
1. Log in to PayPal. Go to SEND MONEY tab.
2. Type in Recipients name: (Email address)
Subject:: "EMAIL LIST"
Category:"SERVICE"
Comments: "PLEASE ADD ME TO YOUR EMAIL LIST".
3. Next screen: CHECK PAYMENT DETAIL - Select "NO SHIPPING ADDRESS REQUIRED"
4. Send Money.
THAT'S IT. YOU'RE DONE!!

What you are doing is creating a service.
THIS IS ABSOLUTELY LEGAL!
You are requesting a legitimate service and you are paying for it!

These email addresses are PayPal IDs or usernames:
#1) thephoenixs@hotmail.com
#2) robert_otto82@yahoo.com
#3) rdwsr@comcast.net
#4) bbplayer012@yahoo.com
#5) anthonymthornton417@yahoo.com
#6) kimberley.marron2@mail.dcu.ie
STEP 3
Now,... after paying $1.00 to each of the email placements above, take the #1 Email Address off the list, move the other Email Addresses up (6 becomes 5, 5 becomes 4, etc...) and add Your Email Address as number 6 on the list.
STEP 4
Change anything you need to, but try to keep this article as close to the original as possible. Now, post your amended article to at least 200 newsgroups (there are thousands of groups). And email your message to as many people you can. Remember, the more you post and email the more money you make! This is perfectly legal!
IMPORTANT: This is not a rip-off; it is not indecent; it is not illegal; and it is virtually no risk-it really works! If all of the following instructions are adhered to, you will receive extraordinary dividends.

PLEASE REMEMBER:
This program remains successful because of the honesty and integrity of the participants and by their carefully adhering to the directions. You are simply paying into a money making chain of participants and if the chain is broken you are screwing someone else out of their fair share.
So, as each person who joins the family and the directions are followed, six members will be reimbursed for their participation as a List Developer with one dollar each.
You then insert your Email Address into the list and it will move up geometrically.
So that when your name reaches the #1 position you will have potentially received thousands of dollars into your account!!!

What an opportunity for only a total of $6.00!!
$1 for each of the first six people listed above to begin with, please send you're joining fee now (which is $1.00 to each email address listed above) then add your own Email Address to the list and you're in business!

HOW TO POST TO NEWS GROUPS:
Use Netscape or Internet Explorer and try searching for various newsgroups (on-line forums, message boards, chat sites, discussions.)
Log on any search engine like yahoo.com, google.com, altavista.com, excite.com, etc., then search with the subject ''millionaire message board'' or ''money making message board'' or ''employment message board'' or ''money making discussions'' or ''money making forum'' or ''business message board'' etc.

You will find thousands and thousands of message boards. Click on them one by one and you will find the option 'post a new message'. Then Post this article as a 'new message' by highlighting the text of this letter and selecting copy then paste from the edit menu.
Fill in the Subject, this will be the header that everyone sees as they scroll through the list of postings in a particular group, click the post message button. You're done with your first one! It only takes about 60 seconds to complete postings on message boards after you catch on.

REMEMBER, THE MORE NEWSGROUPS YOU POST IN, THE MORE MONEY YOU WILL MAKE!!
BUT YOU HAVE TO POST A MINIMUM OF 200!
That is it. You will begin receiving money in your account from around the world within days!

JUST MAKE SURE ALL THE ADDRESSES ARE CORRECT.
Now the WHY part out of 200 postings: Say I receive only 5 replies (a very low example). So, then I made $5.00 with my name at #6 on the letter. Each of the 5 persons who just sent me $1.00 make the MINIMUM 200 postings, each with my name at # 5 and only 5 persons respond to each of the original 5, this is an additional $25.00 for me.
Now those 24 each make 200 minimum posts with my name at #4 and only 5 replies each. This brings in an additional $125.00. Those 125 persons turn around and post the MINIMUM 200 with my name at #3 and receive 5 replies each, I will make an additional $625.00.
Ok, now here is the FUN part, each of those 625 people post a MINIMUM of 200 letters with my name at #2 and they receive 5 replies each.
That just made me $3,125.00!!!
Those 3125 persons will all deliver this message to 200 newsgroups with my name at #1 and if still 5 persons per 200 react, I will receive an additional $15,625.00!!
With an investment of only $6.00!!
A - M - A - Z - I - N - G - !!
When your name is no longer on the list, you just take the latest posting in the newsgroups, and send out another $6.00 to Email Addresses using Paypal on the list, putting your name at number 6 again. And start posting again.

The thing to remember is that thousands of people all over the world are joining the Internet and reading these articles everyday. JUST LIKE YOU ARE NOW!!
So, can you afford $6.00 to see if it really works?? I think so!
People have said, "what if the plan is played out and no one sends you the money? So what! What are the chances of that happening when there are tons of new honest users and new honest people who are joining the internet and newsgroups everyday and are willing to give it a try.

Their uniforms and insignia might be a giveaway too. Maybe they shouldn't wear any.

Change of management--it's the Obama crime family now.

The obvious choice is to punt on poppy suppression and to simply buy the crops.

President Obama showed his operational effectiveness as a Looser in Chief by televising his speech about Afghanistan against a back drop of soldiers graduating from West Point by giving enemies of America a convenient snapshot of whose those officers are, painting a bullseye on the backs of all of their heads? These officers will have to wear sunglasses the rest of their lives?

This address could have been done from the oval office, by using the back drop of officers for a photo op, these officers will now be the target of espionage agents world wide, and they should avoid places where alcohol beverages are served for the rest of their lives? The Communist Press in the United States was all to willing to cooperate in providing this coverage to the enemies of the United States?

Freedom isn't free, Mr. President? Have a nice day, next time use the Oval Office for what it is for, and stop painting targets on American Officers?

That's ridiculous. They will shoot any American they see, not just the

I would think the Talibans would simply buy a copy of The Howitzer.

Well, no, Bush served in the Air National Guard; but he ducked a combat assignment when he was given the chance to go to Viet Nam. This gave him the opportunity to play hero-fighter-pilot with the Air Force's multi-million-dollar birds while avoiding the chance of actually being (horrors!) shot at by unsympathetic men who didn't care how rich he was.

In any case, Cheney, Rove, and Limbaugh would all tell you that they served a "higher" calling: telling other people where they should die and what they should die for.

4675. Barack Hasan Obama's Audacity of Failure?

Barack Hasan Obama not so innocent anymore?

Was it innocent Mr. Barack Hasan (of West Point) Obama that the Soviet Union provided virtually unlimited arms to enemies of Israel and the fall of Shah of Iran resulted in the invasion of Afghanistan? Was it innocent Mr. Obama that you left out the most important, fundamental American policy that the Krukid Kommy Kukes in the Media refuse to mention, that American freedom represents a way out of poverty, and a choice between a brutal dictatorship in your country and real Democracy not run by crooks?

That's why Kommy Hillary will only talk about training the Afghan Army, not get them out of poverty to prevent future revolutions?

Why has the Krukid Kommy Kuke media outlets not describe that the Nixon Doctrine and the Reagan Doctrines represent the vision of freedom that provides a stark choice between Soviet style looting disguised as communism and the progress of mankind by countering problems with solutions through competition in the free market system that a central government can never achieve since it punishes achievement?

Was it innocent Mr. Barack Hasan (of West Point) Obama that America defends Israel not because of oil deposits, but because of the defense of liberty, freedom, and Democracy?

Was it innocense, Mr. Barack Hasan (of West Point) Obama, that the Soviets would not be fighting a bloody war with extremist Muslims if they ruled entire regions and manufactored their own weapons, if it were not for the United States?

My vision for America is to drive down energy prices, make it more available, and promote a way of life that destroys poverty not through looting disguised as legal intellectual property, but through the demonstration of honesty and integrity that the United States and Russia should have developed right after WWII? With 800 lb gorillas jumping in the swimming pool like Mr. Soros, and rampant weapon sales around the world, what good are nuclear discussions when the real discussion is poverty?

Innocence depends on not being able to blame others, Mr. President? If you can blame others, just exactly what makes you think they don't blame you?

What are you going to do, when all the little conservo maniacs, who say their prayers and take their vitamins, go running wild OVER YOU?

Hope is for loosers, and citizens of communist regimes.

Universal Legal Disclaimer for the Public Domain, Version 1.6, dated Nov 10th, 2009 (which supersedes all previous versions, to which this new version applies, which takes approximately 8 minutes to read)

The writings, views, expressions expressed by this author to include all written and electronic forms of communication are subject to the following disclaimer and conditions:

a) The views expressed by this website and the author to include all electronic forms of communication are not representative of advertisers, or other third parties that may store and or transmit the messages from this private computer, which you may observe at your own risk, with no liability to the authors, or any party related to transmitting, storing, or any other aspect of the material involved, including email correspondence, which is not necessary to the function of the website, and may or may not be archived due to other limitations incorporated into the licensed email software in use at the time such as automated spam or virus filters. No personal information exchanged will be shared without your consent, or provided to third parties with out the express permission of the parties and, or, individuals concerned.

b) The author(s) of this content and those who may interact with it in various known or unknown electronic methods do not give permission to any third parties to share or provide private personal information who may operate as part of any type of electronic or written communications system, including all parties, who may technically intercept communications due to the nature of network conditions beyond both the author's legal and physical control, unless those communications represent violations of the law, upon which the author, and or web site will cooperate to pursue any legal remedies.

c) The views expressed by the author or website may or may not contain factual information, due to the use of sarcasm or parody. The views may or may not be complete, either by design, to pre-empt being called a liar even if telling the truth, or by error due to typographical, grammar, or other technical communication problems not realized or imagined, or the possibility of views based on false or missing information, or with the intention of being used for entertainment purposes only, and not as a definitive judgment on the actions, character, or reputation of an organization, individual, or groups of individuals, with the intent of communicating with a limited group of people, and not the general public, however no distribution restrictions apply for fair use purposes described by the US Copyright Office, if no other restrictions are present or communicated, with all commercial proceeds associated with the distribution of the content to remain the sole possession of the original author.

d) Any reference to copyrighted material is done in the spirit of fair use, to illustrate the context of a discussion regarding public events for reference purposes that adds to the conversation, for which that discussion constitutes a new and separate piece of intellectual property, for which the referenced copyrighted material can not convey by itself, and that the author reserves the right to retain any profits from the newly created intellectual property. This term also serves to promote the referenced copyrighted material, without necessarily endorsing the material for any particular fitness, use, or purpose, for which the purpose of fair use referral law was created for, through inclusion of a partial, but not whole, body of works that the copyright fair use reference applies, for which the intent of all terms of this disclaimer apply to that reference of a copyrighted work.

e) Any humor if used, is not intended to offend people, and may be designed to apply the principals of peer pressure through reverse examination to accomplish the communication of principals or ideas that consist of traditional or proposed social values that are proven to advance the common good, and are not meant to discredit, disparage or demean any person or entities in any professional or personal manner, by attempting to share through the eyes or opinion of the author, for which it is expected that you read at your own risk, with no liability held to the author or any third parties who may store, transfer, or forward this message to others, in the traditions of free speech, fair use, and to play a positive role in a society that believes that graphically depicting male homosexuals having sex, and other unusual sex acts is considered free speech or that the use of abortion to limit Negroes, Latinos, and other races from "spreading the wealth around" as a "matter of privacy" (which the author does not condone).

f) The use of humor is a known ingredient in providing teachable moments, and to validate and even demonstrate artistic expressions that are not shared by others, as demonstrated by many valuable scientific observations that were scoffed at in the past, yet proven to be quite valid decades later, upon which the humor used in all electronic communications by the author are based, in the principals and traditions of free speech and pursuit of happiness, and may not be a representation of others, including God.

g) It is the opinion of the author that you respect people when you consider their views, by reflecting their thoughts or actions against your own, which may include use of language that conveys an emotional depth that is to be imagined, but not enacted through use of language that accurately, or inaccurately describes the situation, circumstance, or idea, which does not imply that any action occur other than the consideration of the thought, for which beyond the author has no control, or liability for the action of the reader as presented in all terms of this disclaimer, and may simply be the venting of emotions with the intent of no consequence by the author to an audience the author assumes will understand the message and intent, and wishes to hear those views.

h) Since all intellectual property, discussions and other communications this disclaimer applies to, either in written, or electronic form, subscribe to the terms described in paragraph (e) and (g) of this disclaimer, under no circumstances are any communications meant to violate the terms of any electronic harassment laws which include the word “harm”, for which the author understands to be limited to the definition of physical harm (not self inflicted mental harm) that requires immediate medical attention based solely or in part by the communications of the author, regardless of whether the author chooses to remain anonymous or not.

i) It is the intention and opinion of the author that History is full of individuals that are not harmed by criticism, and in fact such criticism can motivate and inspire them to prove their critics wrong. Based on this historical evidence, any alleged mental harm amounts to self inflicted injury not treatable by either medical or other professionals (despite the fact that many people live from the profits of lies through gradual illusion, without judicial interference), for which the author has no control over the mental development of any potential reader prior to the discovery or reading of the material for which this disclaimer applies, as evident by the necessity that speech is to be protected by law as determined by the founders of the United States of America, who, in the opinion of the author, wrote the legal framework, which was created by God, not slaves.

j) Additional use of automated anonymous page use tracking computer scripts (web page programs) or advertisements may be licensed by www.google.com, for bandwidth verification, or determination of potential advertisement opportunities subject to all other terms described in this disclaimer. The author is not responsible for distributions of this work, which may be posted in public forums, and archived by www.google.com which may then create comments from people who hide their true identities by using false email credentials, who will then be violating terms of service regarding accessing computer systems by directly or indirectly accessing computer systems through hacking (hiding their requested email address or other forms of requested identification) which should not be archived for public display by www.google.com in order to fight acts of criminal behavior ranging from acts of nuisance, to lethal forms of terrorism, for which the author does not intend to encourage, and to remind it is a civic duty to all web masters to remove from public view such illegal postings by hackers, and ban their use.

k) Advertisements that may appear are not necessarily endorsed by the author, either by admission, or by silence, nor are any electronic links that may transport the reader to other web pages, sites, or computers, and such links that may be provided for all or any of the following known or unknown purposes, but not limited to, informational, educational, and for the purpose of giving copy right credit referral information under the terms outlined in the conditions applied to the term "fair use" regarding conversations and print under US Copy Right Law, and for which the author assumes no liability for any particular use, fitness, or legality there of, any link, current, past, or future, which the reader should use at their sole risk, with no liability to the author, or any other party that may store, transmit, or otherwise facilitate use of the material for which this disclaimer applies.

l) It is the opinion of the author that effective 1 December, 2009, the proposed regulations from the FTC violate the first and fifth amendments of the United States Constitution, by infringing through economic affliction the burden without compensation all financial details concerning the communications of both free enterprise and opinion, and other civil rights such as "punishment must be fair" and not at the "discretion" of public officials, or that advertisers are assumed to be guilty of deception when United States law provides that you are innocent before being proven guilty, and are in fact demonstrations that there are current members of Congress that neither understand the spirit of the law our founding fathers made for the United States of America, or understand how they work in the opinion of the author, as of October 10th, 2009, especially in light of anticipated, and hopefully defeated, legislative taxes relating to energy use and the burden of publishers and advertisers to comply with the law and manage the environment, and in light that there are various consumer protection agencies, including the Better Business Bureau, which has free consumer information which preclude the use and need for excessive government regulation that burdens business with obstacles it may sense that it can not overcome without inflicting harm on the business plan or survival ability of the business to provide advertised, goods and or services.

m) Although the content provided meets or exceeds those new requirements to the knowledge of the author, and modifications to version 1.3 or 1.4 of this disclaimer is a result of the opinion of the author that “blogging” is another definition for a potentially infinite number or forms of electronic communication, as such the author will retroactively apply this version, 1.6 to all forms of previous communications, when and wherever possible, as time allows, in order to properly convey the intention of the author and to demonstrate an enthusiasm to comply with the law, and not enthusiastically pursue getting high on cocaine as often as possible as Barrack Hussein Obama has admitted in his book (paraphrase, synopsis), according to (mmm, mmm, mmm (sonic emphasis)) Rush Hudson Limbaugh, (mmm mmm mmm (sonic emphasis)).

o) This disclaimer is meant to establish the intent of the author who may participate in message forums, or create other written or electronic forms of communication to comply with current law, and may be revoked without prior notice, due to circumstances beyond the author's control, changes in the law, or for any of the purposes, terms, or conditions that may be in effect or described by this disclaimer, or to changes in this disclaimer that the author may clarify in a revised version of this disclaimer.

p) This disclaimer is attached to this message, and retroactively applies to all previous forms of communication by the author, and is done so because there is no recognized central suppository of a public disclaimer recognized by the Government of the United States to the author, and as such, the legal imperative of the author is to apply this disclaimer to all manner of correspondence as the author seems fit or prudent, so that no misunderstandings occur, or to comply with past, current or future revisions of the law, due to any of, but not limited to, any or all of the terms, partial terms, or combination of terms, of this disclaimer, which is derived from the freedom of speech, for it appears to the author that the zeal of lawmakers to take away free speech outweigh the providence of attaching this disclaimer to all correspondence for which this applies, and any inconvenience for which this presents, is the result of simply complying with the law, and not to inconvenience the reader.

"Marxist revolutionaries speak the language of a hopeful future, while traditional autocrats speak the language of an unattractive past".

Nowhere is the affinity of liberalism, Christianity, and Marxist socialism more apparent than among liberals who are "duped" time after time into supporting "liberators" who turn out to be totalitarians, and among Left-leaning clerics whose attraction to a secular style of "redemptive community" is stronger than their outrage at the hostility of (from?) socialist regimes to religion.

(excerpts from Jeane J. Kirpatrick)

Autocrat -- Snob Democrat?

Some of this book is interesting, although it is apparent that Jeane has no clue about the financial side of the equation, focusing mostly on the linguistics of the political buzz words of the day and morphing them into some kind of "rationalism and reason in politics"?

She fails to credit Nixon for what little success President Carter enjoyed, by largely ignoring the financial aspects of eliminating poverty as a role in international politics because business leaders just assumed that the politicians would do the heavy lifting, and that their participation in the freedom of the world was not necessary?

I'm shocked that you regard President Obama, the Democratic house, and the Democratic Senate as being in the pockets of defense contractors, and that they would send America's sons to their deaths in Afghanistan in order to increase defense industry profits.

It sounds like you should work for their defeat. Will you pledge to work with me to vote them out of office? We must join hands across party aisles to work on projects that all agree upon.

I know the HawaiianEye (aka Steve Kombat Kramer) posted a receipe here for a Joe's Special quite a while ago...Did anyone make a copy of it?...As I recall "Pinkie" got into a flaming war (what's new) over his recommendation to use garlic in an age old receipe that normally doesn't call for it...I'm also trying to recall if he used a red onion or a walla walla sweet as opposed to a white...If anyone has the receipe and and can repost it would be most appreciated...Sorry, I've looked through the archives and can not locate it however I know its there...Quite surprised we haven't seen/heard anything from Kombat Kramer regarding his planned Cookbook release...anyone heard anything?...:-)

Up to 1/2 inch here:

http://www.cwsbytemark.com/index.php?main_page=index&cPath=216

The site you mentioned:

http://www.stormwise.com/page26.htm

Slotted rods to 0.748 inch dia.

http://www.magneticsgroup.com/f_rods.htm

1/2 inch dia. up to 8 inches long:

Tubes seem to available in a one inch dia. much more frequently than rods.

LOL - gotta ask you Fred. Are you being serious? Some of these posts by you and the boys are 'almost' too much.

What I'm going to do is copy and paste this post and the one about the Bankok Banger's arguement over that ladie's recipe if I can find it and whenever I need to "snap out of it" - I'll just read those and my problem will be solved. "Walla walla sweet as opposed to white."

Nice Fantasy, Mr. Carlson.

"...Author Joe Trento will later allege that the Safari Club, and especially the Saudi intelligence agency led by Kamal Adham and then his nephew Prince Turki from 1979 onwards, fund off-the-books covert operations for the CIA. But rather than working with the CIA as it is being reformed during the Carter administration, this group prefers to work with a private CIA made up of fired agents close to ex-CIA Director George Bush Sr. and Theodore Shackley, who Trento alleges is at the center of a ï¿½private, shadow spy organization withinï¿½ the CIA until he is fired in 1979. The Safari Club and rogue CIA will play a major role in supporting the mujaheddin in Afghanistan. [Scott, 2007, pp. 63-64, 111] It is not clear when the Safari Club disbands, but it existence was exposed not long after the shah was deposed in Iran in 1979..."

This is one of many that have been suggested. 2m itself is almost non-existent around here so I am looking at D.C. to 30 MHz. An F.M. detector on the under 30 MHz would be nice too.
So far I have seen Sony, Drake, and a slew of others so now it becomes decision time. A unit that I could bring inside would be nice too.
I think this will be a cigarette lighter portable with a magnetic antenna on top. That should be good for car DX'ing and even might be a carry along on my bicycle in one of the rear racks. It would have to bear the indignity of being wrapped in a plastic bag to seal out dirt and then a towel to dampen vibration. I bicycle places that even a 4 wheel drive can't get to.
Sitting near a babbling brook and daytime DX'ing would not be a bad way to spend the day.

Bill. Good choice. got one here, about 5 years. it goes in the suite case, coat pocket, glove box, everywhere. been dropped a number of times. just a few small hair-line cracks. works great.
only trouble i have had is a tight antenna. little wd-40 fixed it right up. even tho i miss an old type tuning knob, i'm well pleased with mine. i believe there may even be a yahoo group for this model. seems like there is a yahoo group for everything. enjoy.

Ok, why? There are several things that could be heard if you had HF FM, but how many of them exist or can be heard in your area?

1. 10m FM (very rare)
2. CB FM (or freeband modifed CB's) illegal in most places, and because of the poor efficency, probably not used in favor of SSB.
3. Station to station relay links (in the US). Are they still used?
4. 29mHz cordless phones. Do any still exist?

A Sony ICF-2010 or SW-77 would be a good compromise. Good performance, sync detector, SSB/CW detection, and if you end up on a flight path, VHF air coverage.

I don't remember any cordless at 29 MHz. As I recall, the first cordless were 1.8/49 MHz (you could buy antenna kits with a long wire for base transmit. We could get around a 4-5 block range with those). Second generation went to 46/49 MHz, and could be heard on many cheap baby monitors.

They did exist. I remember finding one on my Kenwood R-5000. They were in that small spread between 29.7 mHz (the end of the 10m ham band) and 30mHz.

I found it listening for 10m FM activity.

They were selling them here, illegally of course, but I know/knew the

At 144 MHz maybe. We do have repeaters here on the mountaintops.

I'm actually under the landing path for Sacramento International so I pick up a lot of jumbo jet chatter going over my head on my old 1974

I own a pair of those heavy, thick, insulated, clumbsy as they can be boots.I bought them about seventeen years ago across the mighty Pearl River in Pearl at Dave's Army Surplus store in Pearl,Mississippi, about seven miles East behind doggy's couch.

Those damn boots didn't keep my feet warm then and they don't keep them warm now! Sheeeeeeeit, can't hardly drive with them boots on either.It's like hitting the gas pedal and the brake pedal at the same time.

I paid about forty five dollars for those boots.I wonder how much money I can get for them on fleabay?

Even City States are too big. Look at history and Rome, Venice, Carthage, Athens etc...

4709. Make Money From Home - How to Deal With Distractions

Life is full of distractions, interruptions, unexpected challenges and needs. With the arrival of the cell phone, these distractions have tripled. Nowadays you are constantly reachable unless you take definite steps to control your phone and your time. Now that you are working from home, your friends think that you are easily available to chat, go for coffee, or help them with their home project. And you being the nice guy or gal that you are, always say "yes." Well, not any more. This is where you need a firm resolve to put some boundaries around your work and separate it from these distractions. First of all you will need the proper frame of mind. One of these is flexibility. http://daytradenews.com

Riddle me this Gregg...

If you've never posted in SCT or rec.knives, what's your interest in Kramer? If Kramer is posting on a cooking group, what skin it it off your nose? For that matter, why do the trolls (including you) have such an obsession with Steve. He's leaving the newsgroups you frequent well enough alone so why not reciprocate in kind? You do realise that, psychologically speaking, such obsessions are a real cause for concern as they indicate deep seated psychological disturbances. The activities of your troll friends provide ample evidence of that! You seem destined to tread the same path.

Riddle me this Krypto.
Why do you bother defending a bigotted bloated blowhard such as Steve Kramer.
Your continued syncophantic defence of the Chiang Mai clown reminds me of a certain sock puppet operated by the clown himself.
